A GAME OF SKILL OR . . . ?

Ringo set for August; new legal battle looms

By LARRY LYNCH
Staff Writer

Ray Shira came to Long Beach in 1924 from Youngstown, Ohio. C. Ransom Samuelson arrived in 1926 from Hildreth, Neb.

Both remember that the ballroom on Cedar Avenue just below Ocean Boulevard was known as the Majestic in those days. Big bandleader Benny Carter played there nightly, Shira recalls.

After the war there were a good many dark nights, and at some point in time the place became known as the Lido Ballroom. Harry James and his Music Makers reopened the Lido on Dec. 15, 1959 for five days before moving on to play Las Vegas that Christmas Eve.

As the years went by, the Lido fell into disrepair. It was used occasionally for dances by the older folks and the teen-agers of the Long Beach area.

Today it stands in unmajestic disuse between the balloon game and the 100-shot machine gun booth on the Pike.

But carpenters are frantically shoring up and cleaning up the place.

For the Lido marquee is coming down.

In its stead, by Aug. 15, thanks to Shira and Samuelson, will be the House of Ringo.

City Prosecutor James Starr thinks Ringo is a gambling game—little more than bingo for cash. Starr said this week he is planning to have police arrest operator Shira as soon as he opens the doors.

Samuelson, Shira's attorney and one-time counselor to such notorious local gaming magnates as Signal Hill's Kid Mexico (also known as Bingo Baron Todd Faulkner), is not dismayed. Samuelson plans to go to court for an injunction to keep the Ringo game operating "until the court determines if we're guilty of gambling or not, and if we're found not guilty, we'll get a permanent injunction to keep them from harassing us."

The attorney describes Ringo as "just good recreation. It involves a strong element of skill and probably a slight element of speculation. Enough to tantalize everybody."

Shira, with the help of Samuelson and some unnamed investors, has put considerable time and effort and some cold cash on the line to get the game going in Long Beach.

Most of the time and effort has involved battling the city of Long Beach through the courts for two and a half years.

The cold cash came into play recently. Samuelson said this week that Shira paid out a "four figure sum" as a down payment on leasing the ballroom from Long Beach Amusement Co., which operates Queen's Park, better known as the Pike.

When Shira and Samuelson are interviewed together, the attorney does a lot of his client's talking. Samuelson is a hefty, gravel-voiced man who keeps the world at bay with an enduring sense of humor. Shira, short, clear-eyed, with a neat grey mustache, takes this whole business more seriously. Either one of them will tell you exactly what they want you to hear.

It was Shira who described what the physical set up will look like, though he insisted many of the details are yet to be worked out.

The game will be played at a pair of five-man tables, with 20 to 30 such tables installed in the ballroom to begin with. "We're only going to use about half the space at first," Samuelson said. That nonetheless will be a sizable area. The Lido paces off as about half a football field.)

Under a yellow ceiling in a gaily-colored room each player will sit on a chair in front of his gaming area, a kind of box four and a half feet deep and two feet wide. At the far end of the box is a peg an inch around. The player will be given first a pink ring with a center opening of an inch and a quarter to two inches. ("I'd say an inch and a quarter, but I don't want to stand on that," said Shira. "You can say two inches," said Samuelson.)

If the player tosses that first ring over the peg, he gets several free cards to play ringo (read bingo). Whether he hits or misses, he then has to select his cards. Then he gets a white ring to toss. If the second toss is good, his cards still are free. If not, he pays for the cards. "We haven't settled on the price, whether it will be 25 cents a card or what," said Shira.

The sequence sounds confusing.

It's rest and relaxation for the McGoverns

Strategy meetings set in Black Hills retreat

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Democratic nominee George S. McGovern relaxed with his family in the privacy of their Washington home Saturday prior to plunging into an uphill campaign to win the presidency in November.

Kirby Jones, press secretary to the South Dakota senator, said McGovern would remain secluded in his Japanese-style home throughout the weekend and had no work or appointments scheduled. The interlude marked the first real relaxation for the candidate since he began his bid for the nomination 16 months ago.

McGovern is scheduled to leave Monday for the Black Hills of South Dakota where he will stay at the rustic sylvan lodge near Custer until the end of the month. He plans to do nothing the first week except relax, swim, and ride horseback, but aides said staff meetings to lay the strategic framework for his campaign will begin during the second week of his visit.

Additional political stories on Pages A-12, 13 and 18.

THE NOMINEE also will celebrate his 50th birthday Wednesday.

Gary Hart, who ran McGovern's whirlwind campaign and set up the nationwide organization that took control of the Democratic Party, said in Miami Beach that McGovern may begin campaigning in August, ignoring the traditional rule that Democratic campaigns begin on Labor Day. Hart, however, said no extensive campaigning is planned until the fall and the August forays will be limited to a few appearances each week.

"We just don't want to yield the month of August to President Nixon and the Republicans," Hart said.

THERE WAS NO indication when or how McGovern plans to seek peace with organized labor and party regulars in the big cities. His aides, however, have acknowledged that this will be one of McGovern's priority tasks and the quicker he can accomplish it, the better chance he will have to upset Nixon in the election Nov. 7.

Under the best of circumstances, the McGovern strategists say, the one-time history professor will start his campaign 20 to 25 percentage points behind Nixon in the polls. The hope is to close the gap gradually with the aim of passing Nixon in the polls by the end of October and smoking him out of the White House onto the campaign trail, where McGovern believes he can beat him.

McGovern is expected to begin two chores very quickly:

— He will launch a direct mail fund-raising campaign to get one million Americans to contribute an average of $25 between now and November. This would produce about two thirds of the money his aides feel will be necessary to mount an effective campaign against Nixon.

— He will start a drive to register all first-time voters between the ages of 18 and 25, seeking the advantage from the constitutional amendment lowering the voting age from 21 to 18.

Police battle crowd to arrest slaying suspect

Long Beach police armed with shotguns virtually had to fight their way through a hostile crowd Saturday at the Carmelitos housing project after the slaying of a resident and assaults on police who were on the scene.

A crowd estimated to be near 100 was held at bay by police as they attempted to protect the murder suspect. According to police, the crowd had threatened to take justice into their own hands.

Police at the scene said the suspect, Frank Roney Corley, Sr., 809½ Via Wanda, Apt .10, was going to work early Saturday evening when he found his way blocked by a car full of youths who refused to move.

Corley reportedly returned to his apartment to get a gun. At the same time one of the car's passengers, John Francis Mitchell, 23, an unemployed maintenance man, 753 Via Wanda, followed him.

"I begged him (Mitchell) not to come at me," Corley later told police. "He came and swung at me one time."

CORLEY SHOT MITCHELL in the chest with a .22-caliber pistol, then went back into his house, put the pistol on the table and called police.

Mitchell was taken to Memorial Hospital where he died a short time later.

Police arrested Corley at the scene, but not before a crowd gathered outside, threatening to "take care of him ourselves."

Police reported that Lewis Corswell, 24, 1722 Lime Ave., who was in the crowd, shoved one officer aside and rushed into the building where police had Corley under arrest.

Corswell reportedly pushed past a second officer, David Barbee, and threatened Corley, then swung his fists at a third officer.

Barbee placed Corswell under arrest, but on the way to a patrol car, Corswell broke free and began beating Barlee. He was joined by three others from the crowd and, as they pummeled the officer, Corswell grabbed Barbee's pistol and attempted to point it at him, police said.

Barbee grabbed his pistol back and as an estimated 30 people closed in to prevent Corswell's arrest, continued to kick and punch at the officer and hit him on the hand.

Corley was booked for investigation of murder. Corswell was charged with interferring with a police officer, battery on an officer and assault with a deadly weapon.

DRIVER LEAPS TO DEATH

His car kills friend

A Long Beach man ran several blocks to a Los Angeles River bridge and dived to his death early Saturday after recognizing a dying friend in a car that his auto had smashed into.

Wayne R. McDougall, 22, of 1153 Magnolia Ave., Apt. 10, fled the collision scene at Golden Avenue and Hill Street while his girlfriend was phoning for help at a nearby house.

Both McDougall and his girlfriend, Patricia Cavenah, 19, of 1153 Magnolia Ave., Apt. 13, had gotten out of McDougall's car to aid the other driver and recognized him, police said.

The victim, Frederick B. Parker, 21, of 2264 Daisy Ave., died in Pacific Hospital at 2:18 a.m., about an hour after the accident.

McDougall was dead when police found him in the Los Angeles River Flood Control Channel after he leaped off the Willow Street bridge.

Miss Cavenah, who was treated for minor injuries in St. Mary's hospital and released, told police that McDougall — prior to the accident — had been despondent over unpaid bills and losing his job, and that he was thinking of committing suicide.

She told police that they were returning from a market early Saturday, and that McDougall had been driving fast, when the accident occurred. McDougall was southbound on Golden when he struck Parker, who was eastbound on Hill.

Miss Cavenah said that when she and McDougall got out of their car and recognized Parker, McDougall began to cry.

She told him to stay at the accident scene and went to a nearby house to call an ambulance, she told police. When she returned, McDougall was gone.

William E. Harrison, of 2545 San Francisco Ave., told officers that he saw a man who matched McDougall's description run by near his house, hide behind a tree and look back toward the direction where he could hear sirens. He appeared tired or intoxicated, Harrison told police, but continued running.

Minutes later he apparently leaped off the bridge, police said.

They said he had been fired from his job as a stock clerk and had been working part time as a vendor at Blair Field.

Peace hopes seen in North Viet 'nuances'

Rogers brings Nixon report on world trip

SAN CLEMENTE (AP) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers held open Saturday the possibility of new secret Vietnam peace talks and said "there are some slight nuances" in Hanoi's latest proposals that "give us some encouragement."

Emerging from an hour-long meeting with President Nixon, Rogers told newsmen on the lawn of the Western White House that he did not want to raise premature hopes of progress toward ending the war.

He would not comment directly on the statement Saturday by a chief North Vietnamese negotiator, Le Duc Tho, that he is ready to hold more private talks with Presidential adviser Henry Kissinger if Kissinger has "something new" to discuss.

BUT ROGERS said the United States is "prepared to have any kind of diplomatic activity" that holds out hope for peace.

Tho returned to Paris from Hanoi Saturday.

Tho is North Vietnam's behind-the-scenes special adviser at the peace talks. He does not participate in the actual talks, but as a member of the Politburo in Hanoi, he is considered close to the seat of power and the man to see if any solid results are to be achieved.

Arriving by plane in Paris, Tho chatted briefly with newsmen and said he would be willing to hold new secret talks, if President Nixon's special adviser, Henry A. Kissinger, has "something new" to say.

Rogers came to California to report to Nixon on the 11-nation around-the-world tour he completed Wednesday. He said he found in the countries he visited that Nixon is "regarded as the world leader in the cause for peace."

"Without exception," he continued, Nixon's programs are greeted with "warmth and enthusiasm" by foreign leaders.

Rogers said he found a widespread feeling abroad that Nixon

12 jailed in young JFK kidnap plot

ATHENS (UPI) — Greek authorities Saturday announced the arrests of 12 persons, including eight Greeks in one gang and four West Germans in another, on charges of plotting to kidnap John F. Kennedy Jr., the 11-year-old son of the late American president.

A 22-page statement issued by police said the two gangs also planned to carry out a series of other kidnapings, as well as robberies and bombings.

The four West Germans were identified by authorities as members of the terrorist "20th October Movement" while the other gang was comprised entirely of Greeks inspired by ideas of what police called the "new left."

POLICE said one of the suspects, identified as Panayotis Kabanas, 45, a literature teacher and economist, told them the gangs intended — "if we were well organized" — to kidnap young Kennedy.

"We could have blackmailed her (Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis) for as much money as we wanted," police said Kabanas told them.

The former Mrs. John F. Kennedy is now the wife of Greek shipping magnate and industrialist Aristotle Onassis. Friends said Mrs. Onassis, her children and several friends were cruising in the Aegean Sea aboard the family yacht Christina.

Police said the gangs also planned to kidnap government officials, businessmen and diplomats and to raise more money by robberies and other crimes.

The West Germans were identified as Ernest Zorer, 32, of Stuttgart, Wernere Robbers, 26, and Jurgen Obermoyer, 25, both of Tubingen, and Suzanne Bausinger, 19, of Reutlingen.

The authorities did not define clearly what connections, if any, existed between the two gangs.

The announcement said the German gang was a branch of the "20th October Movement" which operates mainly in Germany and France. Five other members of the movement were arrested last Octo-

Prisoners riot, seize guard; six injured

JESSUP, Md. (UPI) — Six persons including two guards were injured Saturday night when 200 rampaging inmates of the Maryland House of Correction took control of a section of the prison and set a fire in one building.

Warden Ralph L. Williams said one guard was being held hostage by the inmates who gathered around a huge bonfire in the central yard of the prison.

"One guard is reported isolated and that's all we know at this point," Williams said.

About 70 state policemen carrying rifles and teargas launchers entered the prison and moved through the occupied west wing of the complex in a cell-by-cell search to regain control of the building.

Police said that when they finished retaking the building a decision would be made on whether to storm the yard to clear the inmates gathered there.

A group of inmates talked by walkie-talkie with prison officials and demanded a meeting with Maryland Gov. Marvin Mandel and Rep. Parren Mitchell, D-Md., a black congressman from Baltimore City.

A prison spokesman said there was an unconfirmed report of an inmate sniper firing in the direction of police. One spotlight was reported knocked out by gunfire.

Smoke and flames belched from the west wing of the main complex of buildings at the medium security prison. It appeared to be isolated to one section of an upper floor.

THREAT FADES IN BAY AREA

Cities avert water shortage

Public cooperation and cooling temperatures combined to reduce the threat of water shortages in two Northern California communities, authorities said Saturday.

Water levels were still reported low in both Hayward and Belmont, but the crisis that arose Friday appeared to have passed.

"The situation looks pretty good here," Hayward Fire Department Battalion Chief Charles Peterson said. The city's water pressure level was still about 20 per cent below normal, he said, but that is expected during summer months.

Water Supt. Bud Blair said Friday several major reservoirs were dry and water levels were excessively low in other reservoirs because of heavy water use by residents of the East Bay city, where the temperature high was 104.

A FIRE department spokesman had said, "If a fire broke out right now, there wouldn't be enough water pressure in the hydrants to put it out."

Peterson said at least two areas of the city were still suffering from low water pressure Saturday and he cautioned citizens "not to be too luxurious" with their water.

Walt Wilburn of the Belmont Water District said the water situation in his community was "still bad," but did not constitute a crisis. "We caught up a little during the night," he said, "and we expect to be in pretty good shape by Sunday."

He praised the citizens of Belmont for their cooperation in cutting back on water usage.

"The people here have come through like champs," Wilburn said.

In Belmont Friday breaks in two city water mains depleted the city's water reserves.

YOUNGEST BAPTIST PRESIDENT

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The California State Baptist Convention elected a Los Angeles pastor as its youngest president ever Saturday.

He is the Rev. Dr. E. V. Hill, 38, pastor of Mt. Zion Baptist Church in Los Angeles.

The 100,000-member organization held its annual meeting this weekend in the Sacramento Memorial Auditorium.

Hill also is an associate professor of evangelism for the Billy Graham Association, co-chairman of the Baptist World Alliance Commission on Reconciliation, a member of the Los Angeles Planning Commission and former chairman of both the Los Angeles Fire Department Commission and the Los Angeles Housing Commission.

Hippie heirs lose share, will decrees

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Harold P. Bowhay left $1,999 in his will for each of his 16 grand-children and great-nieces and nephews, but they will lose it all, Bowhay decreed, if they become hippies or hang around with drug users.

Bowhay's will was probated last week in Sacramento Superior Court. Bowhay, who died Sept. 7, 1970, at age 62, soon after making out the will, left an estate valued at about $70,000.

If any of the youngsters becomes a hippie, the will says, he is to receive only $1 instead of the $1,999.

18 prisoners injured in melee at Calif. facility

BAKERSFIELD (AP) — The situation remained quiet but tense at the California Correctional Institution Saturday following a disturbance between 350 black and white inmates which left 18 prisoners injured, one of them seriously.

A spokesman at the prison, about 60 miles east of Bakersfield, said one or two windows were broken Saturday morning but there had been no renewal of the violence which rocked the minimum security area for several hours Friday night.

Guards finally quelled the fights by using tear gas and firing several shots. No one was injured by the gunfire, the spokesman said.

The fighting, said prison official Fred Johnson, began with an argument between a black and white inmate over a seat in the dining room and spread to two housing units of the prison, which houses 1,100 inmates. The prisoners "were moved to the ballfield for the remainder of the night," Johnson said.

He said the seriously injured inmate, who was not identified, had suffered a skull fracture. The other injuries apparently were not serious.

Johnson said the prisoners involved were being screened and several of the ringleaders will be transferred to other institutions in the state.

Talks halted in Berkeley city strike

Associated Press

Berkeley city representatives met for three hours with leaders of some 350 striking public employes Saturday but failed to reach an agreement.

City Manager Paul Williamson accepted an offer Friday by Paul Varacalli of the United Public Employes Union Local 390 to come to the bargaining table.

The Social Service Union Local 535 and the Library Employes Union Local 2077, some of whose members have also gone out on strike, were also represented at the meeting.

"We were prepared to stay in all weekend and even further if necessary to resolve this thing," Varacalli said, "but the city representatives didn't feel that would be productive, so they left."

HE SAID the strike, which began July 12, would continue despite a court order against it last week by Alameda County Superior Court Judge Robert Bostick.

CHIEF WILL GO TO JAIL FOR 2 DAYS

ANGELS CAMP (UPI) — Police Chief Jack Whiting has devoted his 18 months in the job to putting people behind bars. A week and a half from now, he's going to jail himself for two days.

Whiting, 33, was fined $250 and sentenced to two days in jail by Angels-Murphy Judicial District Judge Marvin Shoupe for failing to appear as a witness in two cases. He is to begin serving his sentence July 26.

3 upstate fires char forests

Associated Press

Northern California firefighters battled one forest blaze to an uneasy standstill Saturday but struggled to stop two more in dry, rugged country.

Officials said a 1,240-acre blaze in brush and timber country near the town of Mokelumne Hill in Calaveras County was shakily contained" after briefly threatening the town. The town was not in danger, authorities said.

A blaze in Stanislaus National Forest in Tuolomne County raged beyond the control of 350 men and four air tankers dropping fire retardant chemicals. The flames were aided by warm east winds and high temperatures.

DUE to the heat wave which beset the state last week, night temperatures have been abnormally hot, hindering fire-fighters' efforts to control the 400-acre fire.

The men made a stand on two ridgelines east of the fire in hopes of controlling it late Saturday night or early today.

Meanwhile, an arson-started fire west of Rumsey in Yolo County scorched more than 1200 acres of tough timber and brush country on a 2½-mile front. Hoyt Thornton, of the state Division of Forestry, said the fire was in steep territory with heavy growth and no roads, and no immediate control was in sight.

JERRY GAUSE, spokesman for the U.S. Forest Service, said the service had temporarily barred campfires outside developed campgrounds in the Plumas, Tahoe, Eldorado, Stanislaus and Sequoia National Forests because of the continued high temperatures.

Regional forester Doug Leisz said, 'Nine national forests in the state have very high to extreme fire danger conditions and the situation will worsen as the summer and fall months go by."

Welfare embezzler fined $5,000

INDEPENDENCE (AP) — Former Inyo County Welfare Director Marie Lane has been fined $5,000 and placed on five years probation for embezzling county funds.

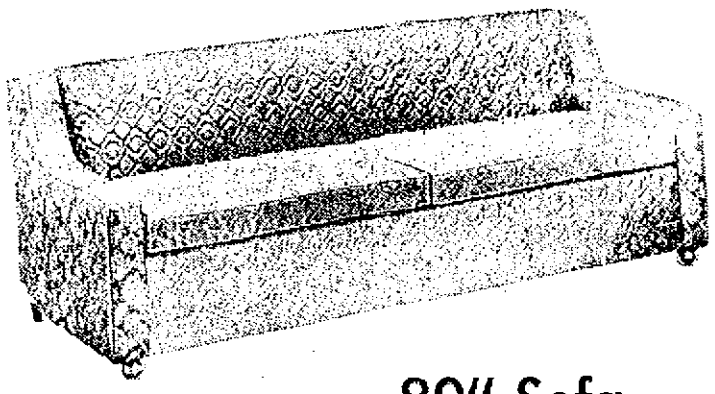

Mrs. Lane pleaded guilty to embezzling $2,017 last month, and she received her sentence last week from Inyo County Superior Court Judge Verne Summers.

The court also required her to pay back the money in installments. A grand jury indictment had accused the woman of using money intended for Northern Inyo Hospital to pay personal accounts.

The county probation office had recommended no prison sentence, because of the women's 28-years of experience in the welfare department.

EXPERTS SEE 'NO DANGER YET'

Ocean rising on East Coast

New York Times Service

NEW YORK — The level of the sea, after rising and falling only slightly and slowly on a very limited scale through the Millennia, has suddenly risen three inches in eight years according to measurements from Maine to Virginia.

At least one scientist sees in the trend, which is continuing, a potential for "catastrophe on low coastlines within 30 years."

Other scientists are less pessimistic, however, seeing it as a temporary increase, but adding that they were "on shaky ground" when it came to making forecasts because of various unknown factors involving nature's behavior.

The three-inch change in sea level was reported recently by Stacey D. Hicks, a physical oceanographer with the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration of the Department of Commerce, who called the rise "unprecedented."

He also said that the continued upward swing — a rate of three feet a century — posed a problem to resorts, home owners and industry along the coast.

When interviewed at Rockville, Md., by telephone following the completion of his study, Hicks expressed some concern over the possibility of alarming the public and he said:

"I stand by my findings 100 per cent, but I don't believe there is anything here to worry about in one man's lifetime."

His study has made use of 115 sea-level monitoring stations along all the coast of the U.S. operated by his agency and its predecessor, the Coast and Geodetic Survey.

A study of the sea level readings at the monitoring stations, he said, showed that the oceans were inching their way upward steadily, relative to the land, at most of the points, but with notable exceptions on the West Coast.

The reason for the change is not clear.

Hicks said scientists differed on whether the sea is rising or the land is subsiding but that the practical effect was the same since the water was covering the land to a greater extent than before.

He said many scientists believed the change was a combination of both the sea rising and the land sinking as a result of the melting of glaciers and the removal from the ground of an increasingly large amount of water and petroleum.

The possibility of a "catastrophe," if the sea-level rising trend continues, was raised by Dr. Rhodes W. Fairbridge, professor of geology at Columbia University.

"If I were a bank manager," he said in an interview, "I would be very nervous indeed about making a 30-year loan in my mortgage department for construction on low-lying land along a coast. I would prefer a hill."

HE SAID the change in sea level in relation to the land might be caused by a bending in the earth's crust. He also said the National Science Foundation had refused further funds for sea level study.

Robert H. Mead of the U.S. Geological Survey, Woods Hole, Mass., said in an interview that a study of the sea-level change since 1963, when Hicks's study began, would indeed show "a very steep rate of increase, but not the true long-term trend."

"The mean annual rise in sea level along the Atlantic coast from 1931 to 1969," he said, "is about 0.25 to 0.35 centimeters per year, or about one foot per century."

HE SAID that while the sea level along the North Atlantic coast "rose rather rapidly from the year 15,000 B.C. to about 5,000 years ago, the rate of sea-level rise has been rather slow for the last 3,000 years or so — about 1 millimeter per year. One meter per thousand years, or about four inches per century."

Prof. William L. Donn, senior research associate, Lamont-Doherty Geological Observatory, Columbia University, said the sea level had risen as the temperature of the climate increased, and caused some flooding along the New Jersey coast.

He said although the rise caused some concern for places like Fire Island, the Rockaway and even the Battery here and to subways, particularly with hurricane and other storm-tide problems, there was no danger yet.

New DDT substitute more efficient, safe, makers claim

NEW YORK (AP) — A successor to U.S. government-banned DDT has been put on the market by young New Jersey manufacturers. They claim it is more efficient than DDT and "kills bugs, but doesn't kill people."

Dr. Alan Becker, president of the Ecological Manufacturing Corp. in North Bergen, has named the product Emtex. He said in an interview that it will be nationally available within six months. At present, it must be bought through professional exterminators.

"It's obvious that insecticides are needed," he said. "We set out to find the best chemical substance available that wouldn't kill a human." However, "we don't expect to make it for more than 10 years. By then the ultimate pesticide will have been found — and it will be organic."

Becker, a dark-haired man in his early 30s, said uct developed through an academic discussion group thrashing out the problem of pesticides.

The developers investigated four or five products, and discovered methoxychlor, which had been patented in Switzerland in 1926, bought by E.I. duPont de Nemours, Co. but never offered for sale.

"The patent had run out and we got hold of it and improved it drastically," he said. "We have a new manufacturing process and the product is 96 per cent pure."

Becker said that because of its purity the product could be used not only for such traditional things as spraying cotton and getting rid of flies, but directly in such places as restaurant kitchens.

Moreover, he said Emtex can be pigmented into paints and used on walls, ceilings and floors to provide a permanently bug-free room.

Last fall, 20 volunteer inmates at a prison in Pennsylvania, under direction of the Pennsylvania Medical School, ingested Emtex. When blood and urine specimens were taken after 24 hours, the subjects had thrown off 98 per cent of the Emtex.

The six-week test was conducted with the approval of the Food and Drug Administration.

"It can be used as an effective, nonpolluting replacement for DDT," said Becker. "It is the safest to warm-blooded animals. It has little or no tendency to be stored in body fat. It kills flies faster than DDT and can be used on sensitive plants, such as tomatoes."

AS FOR dairy products, the Ecological Manufacturing Corp. shows a release from the U.S. Department of Agriculture saying "Methoxychlor, one of the new chlorinated hydrocarbon insecticides, can be used satisfactorily in the same way as DDT on dairy cattle for controlling major insect pests such as hornflies, stable flies and lice. Little or none of this insecticide appears in milk of dairy cattle when it is applied to the animals in amounts necessary to control the insects.

"The Food and Drug Administration has stated that methoxychlor, used in place of DDT for this purpose, is unobjectionable from the health standpoint," USDA said.

Award choice protested

MOUNT VERNON, N.Y. (UPI) — A member of the National Motor Vehicle Safety Advisory Council resigned Saturday in protest against the group's choice of General Motors President Edward N. Cole to receive its first automotive safety award.

"The naming of Cole, known in the automotive industry as the 'father of the Corvair,' one of the most dangerous cars produced in recent years, makes a mockery of the council's efforts to stimulate the development of safer cars," Walker Sandbach, executive director of Consumers Union, said in a telegram to council chairman Judson B. Branch.

The award is to be presented to Cole Monday at the first International Congress on Automotive Safety in San Francisco.

Ringo game opening set in August; legal fight seen

But it has sound reasoning behind it.

To continue occupying the chair, a player has to take a chance he will have to buy his cards.

"I never thought of it that way," disclaimed Shira.

"I have," interjected the disarming Samuelson. "Otherwise a player could sit there all day and never buy a card."

Once the cards are handed out, Ping Pong balls with numbers on them are selected by some mechanical device, possibly a blower like those used in the keno games in Nevada.

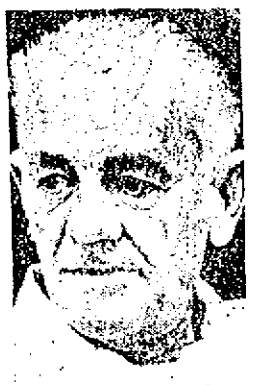

The numbers are called off until there is a winner, that is until someone fills a line on his ringo card.

The payoff will range from $5 to $100 a game according to Samuelson.

All of this bears a strong resemblence to the Light-o-line game that is now conducted on the Pike less than a hundred feet from the entrance to the Lido. Light-o-line involves the use of a pinball machine with a bingo-like display. The pinball aspect has qualified it, in the courts, as a game of skill. Payoffs to winners are in the same $5 to $100 range, according to Shira.

Indeed, in more ways than one, the existence of the Light-o-line game has a lot to do with the coming of Ringo.

A visit to Light-o-line's gaming room one morning last week, at an hour that most of the establishments on the pike were closed or empty, found some 30 players at their machines. Half a house full. That, said Samuelson, is the reason he thinks Ringo will do well in Long Beach.

Also, it was the on-going fact of Light-o-line which enabled four Long Beach councilmen to justify their votes approving an operating license for Ringo. At its next meeting, the council tried to rescind its action, but the State Court of Appeals ruled such second thoughts null and void.

Prosecutor James Starr maintains that Ringo is gambling because the tossing of the rings does not determine who wins — the skill portion of the game does.

This is an issue the courts likely will be left to decide, if Starr follows through on his intention to prosecute.

Shira has not yet obtained his city license to operate, though he expects no difficulty in doing so, over and above the $8,850 he'll have to put up to license 150 seats.

Both Shira and Samuelson maintained they are moving rapidly toward an opening day sometime between Aug. 10 and 15. The remodeling work that's going on at the Lido would indicate they mean what they say, although they once predicted the game would be under way by mid-March.

One thing is sure. Shira personally is not much of a gambling man, at least against losing odds. On the hour, in the middle of the interview, he jumped up to run downstairs and plug a nickle in his parking meter. "Now there is something you should write a story about — the need for two hour parking meters in Long Beach," he said as he exited.

Pair arrested in double slayings

A young Bellflower woman arrested Wednesday by Long Beach police on charges of drug intoxication broke down under questioning Friday and led police to the scene of a double slaying in Norwalk, officers reported Saturday.

Linda Marie Smith, 18, 10110 Hegel Place, and her companion, George Walter Farr, 36, 13748 Carpintero Ave., were charged Saturday with the murders of Robert William Thomas, 30, and Donna Arla Fitzgerald, 20.

Farr, arrested along with Miss Smith, is being held on suspicion of burglary.

According to Long Beach police, Miss Smith broke down under questioning Friday and led police to the bodies of Thomas and Miss Fitzgerald shortly before 5 p.m., at 14534 Behrens Ave

THE WOMAN, shot in the head, was found sitting on a couch. Thomas was found lying at her feet, shot in the chest. Police estimated that they had been slain sometime Wednesday.

The residence, a two-bedroom stucco house, was located on the west side of the San Gabriel Freeway.

No weapon was found Friday but investigators said that the house had been ransacked.

Neighbors had reported hearing shooting Wednesday, but an investigation at that time revealed nothing.

According to neighbors, Thomas had moved into the house with a woman and a small child about the first of the year. They said he stayed around the house during the day and appeared to be unemployed.

Detroit man, set afire in theft, dies

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — A 44-year-old Detroit man, who was pulled from his car, robbed and then set afire by his assailants, has died in St. Joseph Hospital from burns incurred in that June 29 incident.

Police said the man, John Sadowski, told police four men took $50 from him at an intersection on the northeast side of Detroit, then poured gasoline over him and ignited it.

In a similar incident Wednesday, another man, Kenneth Leopoldo, 21, of Warren, told police he was waylaid on Detroit's east side by two men who doused him with gasoline and ignited it with a match. Leopoldo was not robbed, police said.

Leopoldo remained hospitalized in St. Joseph Mercy Hospital with burns over 60 per cent of his body. Doctors described his condition as critical.

Detroit police department officers said they have no suspects in either case.

Navy eyes Britain for base site

By BUCK LANIER
Military Editor

The Navy is going to take a long, cool look at its situation in Iceland and consider some alternative site in the United Kingdom if the Icelandic government decides to evict it.

Involved are 3,700 men under Rear Adm. John Reiling at Keflavik's big air station—a key base for patroling the North Atlantic.

A Defense Department official with close ties in the State Department discussed this with the L/P-T Saturday.

"The question of 'where' begs the next question 'where else'? If Britain's offering is restricted, then a choice elsewhere is virtually nothing," the official, who requested anonymity, said.

A look at the map shows relatively nearby Greenland where the U.S. has an Air Force base as an obvious alternative. The Danes are, however, quite sensitive about foreign arms on its chilly island colony.

"AN airlift base — already serving as the resupply point for Eilson and Elmendorf AFBs in Alaska — and a chain of North Atlantic Treaty Organization(NATO) radar stations might be permissible. Opposition would be tough and virtually impossible to get approval of the P3 Orion patrol planes with their depth charges, torpedoes and guided missiles to operate from there.

"Moving to Norway would mean controversial legislation there and would mark a fundamental policy change," the official said.

Norway has NATO bases but that is under full approval. Placing a U.S. base there would promote a huge controversy.

"Another alternative is for us to throw up our hands in despair at these allies and just give up. This, too, is unthinkable. Keflavik was termed several years ago by NATO itself as 'the most crucial air base in the world,'" the spokesman said.

Now NATO, trying not to offend anyone, says the base is "useful but not vital.

To that, the official said, "A colossal understatement."

Iceland's control of the GIUK Gap(Greenland, Iceland, United Kingdom) is total. If the U.S. Navy had wanted to station an aircraft carrier to watch over th North Atlantic, it might drop anchor at this place—65 degrees north and 18 west.

"THE GIUK Gap sits right smack in the path of the powerful Russian Northern Fleet as it sails out into the Atlantic with 50 of its 150 submarines nuclear powered. These submarines, many armed with 300-mile range Cruise missiles, are the reason for being for the P3 Orions existence.

"Earlier this year the Soviets sailed up the GIUK Gap to play at what looked suspiciously like a mock attack on Iceland and Norway.

"This sure as hell reinforced our intention to stay around," the official declared.

The big dilemma though is where in Britain can the U.S. transfer its Keflavik base if it has to?

"The obvious answer, militarily, is Ballykelly, vacant now and linked historically with the old Shackletons and their maritime patrols.

"The wisdom of stationing yet another element in Northern Ireland can be questioned hard—we might have to spend more time watching out for the IRA than the Russians," the spokesman said.

He added that Lossiemouth due to be vacated in

SABOTAGE OF CARRIER SUSPECTED

The Navy said Saturday its intelligence agents are looking into the possibility of sabotage aboard the Alameda-based attack carrier Ranger now at North Island Naval Air Station in San Diego.

None of the ship's 3000-man crew was reported in custody.

A spokesman said "one of the four main propulsion engines is being repaired after one of its reduction gears was damaged by a foreign object" which he identified as a nine-inch threaded bolt.

Capt. Henry Glendeman, the skipper, declined to elaborate on the spokesman's statement except to say the Ranger's operational capacity was undiminished by the gear damage.

The Ranger recently came out of a shipyard after a year of remodeling that included $1.5 million spent on improvements to living quarters for the crew. The ship was in San Diego on a weekend visit to be used as the flagship Monday for a change of command in which Vice Adm. James Calvert relieves Vice Adm. Nels C. Johnson as commander of the 1st Fleet.

about six or seven months by the Royal Navy — would be fine except the RAF is moving in to take the Navy's place.

ANOTHER choice would be the old V-bomber base at Gaydon in Warwickshire, but the U.S. Air Force is also looking covetously at it also.

"We don't need an inter-service fight about a base in England!" the official added.

This is not the first crisis during the American tenancy at Keflavik. The last half of 1956 was taken up with resolving a myriad of problems, many of which involved U.S. forces' conduct in relation to the pretty, red-cheeked Icelandic girls. It was settled that December and the U.S. allowed was to stay.

"Iceland, like Malta, is in an interesting position, enjoying the advantage of being valuable to both sides. Continued NATO membership is vital, therefore because even if it does not tolerate the Americans, it is less likely to tolerate the Russians.

"A crisis with Iceland always remains an excellent chance," the official added.

The Defense Treaty with Iceland has been in effect since 1951 and allows for six months withdrawal notice to be given by either side and a further 12 months for the withdrawal.

Jet fighter flies serum to cobra victim

SPOKANE, Wash. (UPI) — Richard L. Cummings, 48, Post Falls, Idaho, was in guarded condition Saturday after being bitten on the hand by a cobra at a snake show.

Cummings was rushed to Deaconess Hospital in Spokane for treatment Friday night.

The Washington State Patrol located serum at the Woodland Park Zoo in Seattle and rushed it to McChord Air Force Base near Tacoma.

There, an F106 jet fighter of the 318th Fighter-Interceptor Squadron flew it to Spokane in 15 minutes and it was rushed to the hospital.

Cummings worked at a sideshow where the snake was on display.

CALLS AGNEW NEGATIVE

Eagleton pledges D.C. home rule

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic Vice presidential candidate Thomas F. Eagleton promised Saturday George S. McGovern are sent to the White House the District of Columbia will have self government within four years.

Eagleton's pledge on the "home rule" controversy was one of his first commitments for the Democratic team on his own although McGovern, the South Dakota senator, has also said he favors self government for the nation's capital.

"If you elect the McGovern ticket," Eagleton told a cheering airport crowd, "I promise that the District of Columbia will have home rule within that term of office.

The Missouri senator said he didn't know what he could promise Maryland but added with a smile, "If I can help by staying out, I'll do that."

EAGLETON was greeted by a crowd of about 200 supporters, mostly young and all enthusiastic. Some carried signs with friendly references to the fact that he is a political unknown.

"Tom Who in 72," read one sign. "D.C. citizens know who Eagleton is," said another.

The senator was returning home after his first four days of campaigning as the Democrats' vice presidential candidate and said he finds it tiring.

During a stopover in St. Louis, Eagleton said he expects the presidential campaign to be a clean one, but blasted Vice President Spiro Agnew as negative and divisive.

"He's the man with the caustic language. He's the man with the bombastic approach. He's the man who attempts to divide the country. He's the man who talks in a negative way about the youth of the country . . . " Eagleton said.

"He's the man that divides, and the Agnew theory is that as long as this nation is divided, it's his theory that the Republicans can prevail."

EAGLETON declined to predict if Agnew would be President Nixon's running mate again. Asked about speculation that Democrat John B. Connally might be Nixon's choice, Eagleton said, "We'd lost one nominal Democrat. That's what John Connally has been in recent years, a technical nominal Democrat, and I think, frankly, his philosophy is such that he'd be more comfortable with the ranks of the Republican party.

"I'm not trying to read him out of the party. If he wishes to stay with us that's fine. If he finds he's more comfortable with the Republicans I wish him well, but not too well in this election."

Eagleton flew to Washington from Kansas City, where he voiced belief that the "new politics" that brought McGovern the Democratic presidential nomination can carry him on to the White House.

In an interview Saturday, the vice presidential nominee said: "Can the same method of operation that was successful in the primaries work in the general election? I think it can.

"This McGovern organization is perhaps the best grass roots organization ever, even exceeding the fine one that John Kennedy had in 1960," he said.

The 42-year-old senator was in Kansas City to address the National Audio-Visual Association.

He is scheduled to appear on nationwide television today, CBS's "Face the Nation."

McGovern opposed by Thieu

SAIGON (UPI) — Political allies of President Nguyen Van Thieu and some of his most outspoken critics said Saturday they vehemently oppose Democratic presidential candidate George McGovern.

But members of South Vietnam's vocal war protest movement say they hope McGovern will be elected.

"If Mr. McGovern is elected it would be a catastrophe not only for Vietnam but for all the nations like Vietnam in Southeast Asia," said former Foreign Minister Tran Van Do.

Do, 69, an adviser to Thieu and delegate to he 1954 Geneva Conference, noted that McGovern promised to go to Hanoi if necessary to help end the war, to stop the U.S. bombing of North Vietnam and to withdraw all American troops from Vietnam "within 90 days of my inauguration."

"I think he certainly will not be elected — that's all we can hope," said Do.

But Father Chan Tin, Roman Catholic publisher of the antigovernment magazine "Confrontation", told UPI "the points he (McGovern) made in his acceptance speech are good ones."

McGovern may be right--- Politics will never be same

By GIL BAILEY

MIAMI BEACH — It began in violence-filled Chicago in 1968 and it ended early Friday with George McGovern as the Democratic candidate for president of the United States.

For four days here in plush and humid Miami Beach the divided Democratic National Convention struggled with history and the future reform and reaction, the old politics and the new, in fact the basic divisions of American life.

"American politics will never be the same," said Sen. McGovern in accepting the nomination for which he had fought so hard.

Perhaps it was an overstatement, but this was the convention at which George Wallace, the outlaw of the party, was given a standing ovation as he fulfilled his dream of speaking to the national party.

IT ALSO WAS the convention at which two women from Illinois, housewives, spoke before the convention against the party bosses and won seats on the convention floor.

It was a swirling, confusing convention, one full of compromises, and sometimes deals, which merged the old politics into the new.

It was a convention of endless roll calls and dozens of nominations for vice president. This convention was born late and grew up late. Dawn's early light was its bedtime but it did finish.

It was not a convention of great speeches, except possibly for the only speech of Sen. Ted Kennedy, the best speaker of the Kennedy brothers, who spoke once again in the Kennedy cadence, calling forth again the Kennedy dream. He could have been the candidate of this convention, but there were many could-have beens here.

It was the convention which saw the passing of the old guard, including Sen. Hubert Humphrey from the presidential picture, the labor bosses losing their veto power over the Democratic presidential candidate, and Richard Daley of Chicago, banished from the national convention like a man wtih bad breath.

THE JUDGES of this convention and party were at home far away, watching on television and reading in the papers about the fights and divisions and freaks among the Democrats. Their opinion will not be known until November and then they will decide whether this McGovern reform movement, more radical than any movement since 1932, represents the will of the American people.

As important as what happened at the Democratic National Convention was what didn't happen.

Disaster was predicted, but there was no disaster.

The delegates, 90 percent or more new to a convention, stayed longer and paid far more attention than past professional delegates to the convention.

Demo convention: Divided in unity

The credentials fight was solved — not to everyone's liking — and the candidate was nominated — not to everyone's liking.

YET WHEN the Democrats left Miami Beach, there had been no major walkouts, no major defections except for the grumblings of George Meany and I. W. Abel, the labor leaders.

George Wallace of Alabama may not appear on the platform with Sen. McGovern but so far he has announced no plans for a divisive third party.

A second predicted disaster did not occur.

The Democratic Party did not become "the party of sex, pot and queers," as predicted by one angry delegate.

Platform planks on abortion, gay liberation and the $6,500 for a family of four welfare plank were defeated by the well drilled young McGovern delegates, leaving their hero with a far less controversial platform than was predicted.

Yet McGovern in his acceptance speech, and in the platform, called for a historic turn inward for America, one as massive as the turn outward on Dec. 7, 1941, when Japan bombed Pearl Harbor.

ON THE home front his call was for massive jobs, tax reform, and massive cuts in defense spending.

The platform and the candidate are not as radical as they might be but they and the delegates to this convention, are far more "radical" than any in the past.

The change began in Chicago as police fought demonstrators and the convention defeated an anti-war Vietnam plank.

Lost in the violence of the moment was the convention's approval of party reform.

In the two years following McGovern headed the platform reform movement which brought these delegates to Miami Beach. He resigned two years ago to run for president and Rep. Donald Fraser of Minnesota took up the task.

The party bosses and many prospective candidates took little heed of those reforms but McGovern, the father of reform, counted on that reform in his candidacy.

THE REFORM was simple. Every Democrat was guaranteed "full, timely and meaningful" participation in the naming of the party's nominee.

No longer could three men, as happened in 1968 name the California delegation to the convention, nor as Mayor Daley of Chicago tried, could the machine slate candidates.

In addition there was no longer a unit rule and some Alabama delegates voted for Rep. Shirley Chisholm, black and a woman, instead of Wallace.

The primaries began and Sen. Edmund Muskie faded fast. McGovern did not and Humphrey began to rise again.

Something else was happening. The other side of the party, the non-liberal side, the "average citizen side," the Wallace Democrats began to win primaries too, in Florida, Michigan and Maryland.

A bullet, as it had in 1968, interrupted the campaign, crippling Gov. Wallace, strangely enough drawing off the bitterness towards Wallace from the liberal wing of the party.

SO WALLACE came in a wheel chair to the convention, to applause and cheers and the music of his state song. He gave the same message he had given across the country and there were some boos mixed with the cheers.

Then, the men around the wheelchair struggled to carry the governor off the podium, one not designed for wheelchairs.

The convention voted down the Wallace platform propisals one by one but the Wallace delegates and the governor had had their national hearing.

There was dissent to the actions of the convention but delegates expressed remarkably little bitterness.

In fact it was Alabama which voted unanimously for Sen. Thomas Eagleton for the vice presidential candidate, noting with grace that if Gov. Wallace had been nominated he would have wished to name his own vice president.

THERE WAS division aplenty throughout the convention but there was but one moment of high tension.

It came early Tuesday morning, when the California challenge came up for a vote. The vote was an attempt to split up the California delegates among the candidates, according to their percentage of the California primary vote.

McGovern won and the nomination was no longer in doubt.

The fight had had its ironies. McGovern had earlier in the reform commission opposed the winner-take-all primary which was so important to him in California. Humphrey had said he would not be a spoilsport and contest the election.

Both men were able to rise above past principles in this fight.

Other compromises with principle were made in the style of old politics as actress Shirley MacLaine, a supporter of legalized abortion, fought against the abortion plank in the interest of the McGovern candidacy.

McGOVERN dropped support of a women's challenge to delegates from South Carolina in order to gain a tactical advantage.

A reform charter for the Democratic Party was compromised for at least two years in the interests of pacifying some congressional and party leaders.

Reform was not dead, nor was the new politics, but both were muted.

And in the back of the minds of many of the opposition delegates was the thought that they too could win by using the same tactics used by the young McGovern forces, win in 1974 and 1976.

Yet there was clear thrust in the convention, the platform and the candidates:

—End the war in Vietnam.

—Reform taxes.

—Provide jobs.

The solutions proposed may be too radical for the American people.

The thin skin covering the Democratic coalition may have been split asunder.

The American people may have been turned off by the free swinging delegates and their constant controversies.

The Democratic Party may be ruined, as some believe.

Yet McGovern in his acceptance speech raised an issue which also will be before the American people between now and November.

"We have had our fury and our frustrations in these past months and at this convention. Well, I frankly welcome the contrast with the smug, dull and empty event which will take place here in Miami next month," he said, referring to the Republicans who are up next.

PRIDE OF LION COUNTRY

Frasier buried to dirge of bagpipes

By LOU GODFREY
Staff Writer

Frasier is finally at rest, in the hills where he lived and loved.

The ancient leonine lover was buried Saturday in a red sandstone grave on a small knoll overlooking Orange County's Lion Country Safari, his well-publicized playground for the past 16 months.

Scottish bagpipes wailed a mournful dirge as kilt-clad Scots of the Clan Fraser tossed symbolic clumps of earth against the large, unadorned wood coffin.

In a clipped British accent, Bill Dredge, a Safari vice president, said a few solemn words about Frasier being something special and "now a legend."

Frasier would have laughed at the whole ludicrous scene.

He was that kind of a king.

After all, he had lived the kind of life in recent months that made laughter come easily.

In early 1971, he was a moth-eaten Mexican circus lion. He could barely stand, his tongue drooped out of his mouth, he had rheumatism, arthritis and eye trouble.

By the miracle of a vitamin-spiked diet, Lion Country Safari brought him around.

He grabbed worldwide headlines with his antics and frantic pace.

He kept the girls happy, and they took care of him in a manner fit for a king.

WHEN he died last Thursday of old age and a kidney malfunction he was probably the world's most popular animal.

He took his popularity gracefully, but he would have regretted the solemn — and confused — funeral held in his backyard.

But most of all, he would have laughed.

If he could have watched the simple procession from his peaceful hillside, here is what he would have seen.

Television crews, newspaper reporters and other assorted camera-carrying publicists and interested spectators gathered shortly before 10 a.m. near the Safari headquarters.

News media representatives were taken across a small lagoon and up a steep hill to the grave site, where four young girls—Safari employes— stood guard at Frasier's coffin.

Three Scots trooped up the hill next, one of them playing a lament on his bagpipe. They were followed by the 12-member Clan Fraser.

Next came Safari employes, 20 or 30 of them, including four young men in bush jackets who acted as pallbearers.

Everyone seemed to be staring at everyone else, looking for a sign or signal that could be translated into an appropiate emotion.

Lion funerals being rather unprecedented, no one knew whether to cry, rejoice, look remorseful—or try to act normal.

The pipers played the dirge, and the clumps of dirt were dropped on the coffin.

Nany Frazier, 15, a slender, graceful young Scot, danced the Scot dance near the end of Frasier's grave.

A few quick interviews were granted, and then it was over.

Across the lagoon, the peblic stared over the water ot the strange rites. Mercifully they had been barred from the graveside.

But there was one curious sign that few persons seemed to notice.

Promptly at 10 a.m., as the funeral service started, the sun broke low clouds hanging overhead. The quiet flamingos in the lagoon let out burst of sad cries, then a brief silence settled over the hills.

Maybe that was when Frasier laughed, and left his pride forever.

9 firemen suspended for looting

NORRISTOWN, Pa. (AP) — Nine volunteer firemen from this suburban Philadelphia town have been suspended for looting merchandise while pumping water from a toy store during recent flooding.

The firemen, charged with conduct unbecoming to the fire department, "got light-fingered and picked up baseball gloves, toy cars and flashlight batteries," said Harry DeWees, assistant Norristown fire chief in charge of the Hancock company. The men, who receive no salary, were attached to that company.

DeWees said the men had been pumping water out of the toy store June 24 when the incident took place.

The store owner said he won't bring criminal charges against the firemen.

A $10 fine that each man paid to the fire department will be turned over to the store in restitution, DeWees said.

The merchandise was returned to the store owner, he added.

TOKYO (UPI) — If you're a thief, you'd best avert your eyes if you encounter Miss Yukiko Okudaira.

Osaka police have honored Miss Okudaira, a 20-year-old private security guard, for catching 250 pickpockets and shoplifters in the past year in the city's Suzuya dry goods store where she is assigned. "I can easily tell a shoplifter or a pickpocket from customers by looking into their eyes," she said.

OBSCENE

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP) — The National Labor Relations Board here has ruled that Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., did not violate labor laws by ordering employes to change T-shirts which had the statement "Ma Bell is a Cheap Mother" written on them.

The shirts were worn by 23 Bell employes during contract negotiations in June 1971, and 19 workers walked off the job briefly when ordered to change the shirts.

The NLRB ruled the shirts carried an obscene connotation and that the company was within its rights ordering the employes to change the shirts or leave the premises.

The telephone employes' union had appealed the company's decision.

LEAP

DENVER (UPI) — Sport parachutist Tony Hamaguchi bailed out and went up — not down — 4,300 feet when he was caught in an updraft. He was carried aloft for about 15 minutes in a hailstorm as lightning flashed about him. Hamaguchi, 25, finally managed to spin his chute and descend safely — but he was not in the mood to laugh when friends hailed him as "a bird! A Comet! Superchutist-"

It wasn't a jump," an observer said, "it was a flight."

RAUCOUS

HUNTINGTON WOODS, Mich. (AP) — "Pop Goes the Weasel" may not be raucous rock music, but it's played at the Detroit Zoo and nearby residents call it "honky tonk, repetitive and loud."

Several dozen residents whose Huntington Woods homes border the north fence of the zoo filed a complaint in municipal court about the music they say "contaminates" the area.

"We play 'Pop Goes the Weasel,' and others like that," said a zoo employe. "The amplifiers stand right next to the aoudads (wild sheep) and the music doesn't bother them, why should it bother the residents?" A trial date has been set to determine if amplified music is jarring or a nuisance.

DISASTER

SHOBY, England (UPI) — Gales that wrecked a country fair at Shoby brought disaster to Professor Totmlin's Flea Circus last week. Seven performing fleas vanished when a tent collapsed, including star juggling flea Fu Chow.

"He balances a piece of wood almost twice his weight on his legs and could prove very difficult to replace," said the professor.

STUMPED

BLOOMFIELD, N.J. (AP) — It was billed as a debate between the four candidates for the Democratic nomination to the U.S. Senate. But only one candidate appeared. What's more, the auditorium at Bloomfield High School, which has a capacity of 500, contained Andrew Minton, 48, of Bloomfield, his son, Charles, 11, and 498 empty seats.

Minton, who said he wanted to evalute the candidates, chatted with Senate hopeful Daniel Gaby for a few minutes. Then everybody went home.

HIGH WINDS TOPPLE GIANT FERRIS WHEEL

A huge ferris wheel at a carnival in Chicago suburb of Morton Grove smashed parked cars when it was toppled by high winds that lashed the area Saturday. Two men were injured in the accident. Carnival crowds had been warned to leave the grounds just minutes after a tornado funnel was sighted a few miles west.

Ceiling put on export of hides

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration put a ceiling on exports of U.S. cattle hides Saturday in a move to curb mounting price pressures on shoes and other leather goods.

Secretary of Commerce Peter G. Peterson, citing foreign and domestic demand which has pushed hide prices to a record high, announced at a news conference that:

Effective midnight, shipments abroad of U.S. cattle hides would be limited to last year's already-high export level of 16 million hides.

To carry out the program, export tickets will be issued to U.S. cattle hide producers according to their percentages of total hide production.

Consumer help asked in U.S. food cleanup drive

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Health Education and Welfare Department announced Saturday it will try to enlist consumer help to crack down on widespread unsanitary conditions found in food processing plants.

The department advised Congress it agreed completely with the findings of a General Accounting Office investigator's report that brought the situation to light.

"This report has already been and will continue to be useful to the FDA (Food and Drug Administration) HEW, Congress, the food industries and consumers," the HEW statement said. GAO is a congressional watchdog agency.

HEW said it concurred with all nine recommendations made by the investigators, including a more effective government use of consumer complaints. An automated data system for recording complaints is being implemented on a nationwide basis to provide FDA field managers "with the information needed to follow up on complaints referred to states or other regulatory bodies for corrective action," HEW said.

A spokesman said the system, already at work in the Baltimore area, will be expanded to other cities.

The department's response to the sweeping criticism of conditions in food processing industries was sent by HEW Secretary Elliot Richardson to Sen. John McClellan, D-Ark., chairman of the Senate Government Operations Committee.

The GAO report of last April said that sanitary conditions in the food industry are deteriorating and that FDA lacks the money and manpower to cope with the situation. Investigators reported finding in some plants rodent excreta and urine, cockroach and other insect infestations in or around raw materials, finished products and processing equipment; improper use of insecticides near food processing areas; use of unsanitary equipment and other similar conditions.

Food industry representatives such as the National Canners Association objected that the sampling of 97 plants was too small to draw absolute conclusions and that the report did not specify the criteria for unsanitary conditions. Among the products made or processed at the plants were candy, fish, flour, cheese, ice cream, fruits, vegetables, popcorn, jams and jellies, macaroni, spices and other items.

TRAUMATIC CHOCOLATE EXPERIENCE

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A woman who says she ate a contaminated chocolate bar claims the experience left her with "a lasting aversion to chocolate" and she is suing for $50,000 damages.

Dorothy Baldridge of North Highlands asked the Sacramento Superior Court to award her damages from the Nestle Co. and Capri Markets Inc. of North Highlands. She says she ate a candy bar made by Nestle and sold by Capri which was "unwholesome, dangerous, poisonous, noxious and infested with worms, slugs, bacteria, germs, filth larvae, ova and egg sacs."

Mrs. Baldridge said eating the candy bar caused her "intense nausea, gastric disturbance, extreme mental shock and a lasting aversion to chocolate."

Stock answer

I have stock certificates dated 1931, and I'd like to know how I can find out if the company still is in business? A. F., L. B.

You can write to the secretary of state's office in the capital city of the state where the company was located, and the secretary's staff can tell you if the corporation still is licensed in the state. Some states require a fee for this service. A spokesman for Bateman, Eichler, Hill, Richards, Inc. said that many New York Stock Exchange brokers offer the same locating service free of charge. The spokesman said that most companies are required to send annual financial reports to their shareholders and if you haven't heard anything from a company in several years, it's a good indication that it is out of business. The spokesman added that your problem is a widespread one because no one ever throws away old stock certificates. "They're passed on from generation to generation and no one ever liquidates the stocks or discards the certificates," the broker said.

Driver's option?

When someone is injured in an accident, who determines which hospital the victim is taken to? A friend of mine was injured in Paramount and she was taken to a hospital in Compton even though there is a new hospital in Paramount. Are there any regulations to prevent an ambulance driver from making a deal to bring all patients to a certain hospital? A. S., Long Beach.

Yes. Long Beach and all of Los Angeles County are divided into hospital zones and ambulance drivers are required to take accident victims to the designated hospital for each zone. Only hospitals with continuously-staffed emergency wards approved by health authorities as Emergency Aid Program hospitals are used. Unlike the county, Long Beach allows ambulance cases to select their own hospital, if they have a preference.

New citizen

I have filed citizenship applications for myself and my family. After numerous mix-ups, during which time my daughter turned 18 and became ineligible, we were finally called in December, 1971 to take the test and pay the fees. We were told that we would be called within a month to take the oath of allegieance and receive the certificates. More than six months have passed and we have neither been called nor received the refund of fees paid for my daughter. Can ACTION LINE help? R. L., Lawndale.

ACTION LINE contacted Donald Williams, director of the Department of Immigration in Los Angeles. He explained that his department had trouble in locating your visa files. But they have been turned up and you will be notified by mail to appear July 21 for the oath of allegienace. The mass ceremonies are held monthly, usually at the Dorothy Chandler Pavilion or the Mark Taper Forum because of the large number of applicants, Williams said. The naturalization certificates are mailed out following the ceremonies. Williams suggested you send a written request for a refund for your daughter's fees to: Citizens Branch, Immigration and Naturalization Services, 300 N. Los Angeles St., Los Angeles 90012. Upon receipt of your naturalization certificates, you then may file on her behalf for citizenship or she may file herself when she becomes 18.

Deeded

I have been paying since 1967 on a piece of property near Lake Havasu in Arizona. I sent the final payment Feb. 14 and still haven't received my warranty deed. A few months ago, the company that sold me the property, Mutual Acceptance Corp., declared bankruptcy and my deed was taken over by Cleveland Investment Co., P. O. Box 9637, Phoenix, Ariz. 85020. I cannot get an answer concerning my deed from the company's president, Robert E. Cleveland. Can ACTION LINE help? G. R. S., Long Beach.

By now you have your deed. ACTION LINE contacted Cleveland Investment Co. President Robert Cleveland in Phoenix who said the deed "just came in today, all ready to be mailed to him this afternoon." Cleveland said that he did tell you once that because of the bankruptcy filed by the former holders of your deed, there might be a delay in your receiving it. He said it and some other deeds "got tied up in the proceedings."

will win re-election. When asked whether Hanoi believes this, the secretary said he did not know but "certainly other nations close to them have expressed that thought."

At the ocean-front Nixon compound Friday, former Treasury Secretary John Connally emerged from a meeting with Nixon and accused Democratic presidential nominee George McGovern of sabotaging the President's peace efforts.

Asked whether he agreed with Connally's statement, Rogers said McGovern's pledge to end the bombing of North Vietnam immediately and withdraw all American troops and support within 90 days "would give our adversary exactly what he wants without any negotiation."

Kissinger, Nixon's assistant for national security affairs, who has held more than a dozen private sessions with North Vietnamese negotiators in the past three years, sat in on Nixon's meeting with Rogers.

The foreign affairs adviser has been silent on whether he would be making another trip to Paris for secret talks, and so have other White House officials.

But sources have made it clear that the Nixon administration believes progress in the negotiations can best be made through secret talks—not through the semipublic Paris taks which resumed last Thursday after a two-month suspension.

Nixon, who has been working and relaxing at the Western White House for two weeks, attended funeral services on Saturday for his aunt, who helped launch him on a career of public service, then returned to the San Clemente compound to meet with Rogers. A spokesman said that Nixon probably would return to Washington Tuesday.

ber in Greece and are still awaiting trial on bombing charges.

The Greeks belonged to an organization which planned to set up "an illegal conspiratorial group on the lines of the extremists in Turkey or the Tupamaros in Latin America," police said. Both of those organizatins have frequently used kidnapings as a tool to achieve political aims.

The announcement said the alleged plotters would go on trial before military courts.

KKK vows all-out fight on McGovern

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — The Ku Klux Klan in Tennessee will fight tooth, nail and cross for the defeat of Democratic presidential nominee Sen. George McGovern, Klan leaders said in Memphis Saturday night.

The Tennessee grand dragon of the United Klans of America, Ben Bridgewater of Brownsville, made it clear that the KKK would prefer that Alabama Gov. George Wallace make another third-party bid this year, as he did in 1968.

But Bridgewater and the other Klan officials said that possibility is uncertain.

Massive B52 strikes smash N. Viet battalion

SAIGON Sunday (AP) — U.S. B52 Stratofortress bombs shattered bunkers and inflicted heavy casualties on North Vietnamese around the provincial capital of Quang Tri, the U.S. Command said Saturday.

It estimated the bombers killed about 300 enemy in two massive raids.

A U.S. Command communique said South Vietnamese paratroopers searching one B52 strike area about eight miles south of Quang Tri "found 60 destroyed enemy bunkers containing approximately 250 enemy dead and their equipment."

Three antiaircraft artillery pieces and two trucks were destroyed in the same area, the command said. If accurate, the number killed would indicate that a North Vietnamese batallion was knocked out by the strike.

THE communique said government marines found six graves containing 48 enemy bodies about two miles northeast of Quang Tri in an area hit by B52 strikes on Tuesday.

The B52s flew more than 100 strikes across South Vietnam from noon Friday to noon Saturday, dropping 1,500 tons of bombs in the Quang Tri area and about 1,600 tons on suspected enemy concentrations in seven other South Vietnamese provinces.

B52s made 75 more strikes against troop concentration, staging areas and supply caches in North and South Vietnam from noon Saturday to dawn today. About 20 of the strikes were inside North Vietnam, aimed at material destined for the Quang Tri battle front, the U.S. command said.

Hanoi claimed a B52 was shot down Thursday north of the demilitarized zone. The U.S. Command denied the claim. No B52s have been reported lost to enemy fire, although at least one has been damaged.

ON THE northern front, military sources said a South Vietnamese paratrooper battalion had moved to within 700 yards east of the Citadel in the heart of Quang Tri. This was the closest government troops had come to the fallen provincial capital.

The sources reported the operation by 20,000 South Vietnamese in Quang Tri Province was to clear the enemy from around the city rather than to push into it.

The U.S. 7th Fleet announced that fighter-bombers from the carrier America, recently returned to the war zone, had joined the battle for Quang Tri City.

A government spokesman reported two new engagements Saturday outside Quang Tri and said 11 enemy were killed. He characterized South Vietnamese losses as light.

Thirty miles to the south, there was fighting west of Hue, and the old imperial capital was hit by eight enemy artillery shells that killed one person and wounded three.

TOKYO (UPI) — Radio Hanoi said Saturday night that 200 South Vietnamese soldiers held as prisoners by Communist forces in South Vietnam's central Kontum Province were killed in B52 bombing raids July 5-6. The broadcast gave no further details.

Driver naps as car kills three in Hollywood

A mother and daughter and a man were killed and three others were injured Saturday when a teenage driver fell asleep at the wheel and his car veered into a crowded bus stop in Hollywood.

Mrs. Soledad Martinez, her 15-year-old daughter, Sally, and Jimmy Luckie, 34, were dragged to their death when the speeding car plunged through shop windows then smashed into a brick wall.

Police said Luckie had shoved a companion, Billy Fagen, out of the path of the vehicle. Fagan was treated and released at a hospital across the street.

Mrs. Martinez' second daughter, Annatasia, 12, was hospitalized in critical condition along with a woman, Monica Barrios.

Felony manslaughter charges were lodged againt Robert E. Locke, 18, Los Angeles, who admitted to police he dozed at the wheel after staying awake all night. He suffered cuts and bruises and possible broken ribs.

Labor leaders set for bloody McGovern fight

WASHINGTON (AP) — Labor patriarch George Meany girded Saturday for a bruising internal battle over whether the 13.6 million member AFL-CIO will endorse Democratic presidential nominee George McGovern, or give President Nixon the political advantage of a virtually neutral labor movement.

"It's going to be a real bloody mess," predicted one AFL-CIO headquarters source of next Wednesday's meeting of the labor federation's 35-man ruling executive council to decide the issue.

The 77-year-old Meany and the once-vaunted political strategists of the AFL-CIO's Committee on Political Education (COPE) left the Democratic National Convention in bitter disarray after badly losing their effort to block McGovern's nomination.

"I never saw such a confused, unrealistic group in my life," said one labor official who disagreed with COPE's efforts to push Sens. Hubert H. Humphrey, Edmund Muskie or Henry Jackson to the nomination long after it was apparent that McGovern had it locked up.

ONE AFL-CIO LEADER, President Jerry Wurf of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Workers, switched from Muskie to McGovern just before the Democratic convention, and later sharply assailed COPE director Al Barkan's die hard efforts to stop McGovern.

"Barkan played Humphrey's game until Humphrey himself wouldn't play it any more, and he destroyed Muskie as a viable candidate," Wurf said.

"Barkan reached out for Wallace people and played games with them," he said.

Meany and the AFL-CIO had said before the convention they would never help Alabama Gov. George Wallace's bid for the nomination, labeling him "antilabor" and a "racist."

Wurf has few visible allies on the AFL-CIO executive council long ruled by Meany, but one insider said the council would split down the middle in a direct vote on whether to endorse McGovern.

"If the vote is simply on a decision not to make any endorsement this time," Meany probably would win against a handful of opponents on the council, leaving it up to the AFL-CIO's 119 individual labor unions whether to make their own presidential endorsements.

IT WOULD BE THE FIRST time in the history of the AFL-CIO that it did not endorse a Democratic presidential candidate.

Despite the AFL-CIO's attempt to block his nomination, including a harshly worded "white paper" attacking his record, McGovern continued his peace overtures to Meany.

Asked if he had seen Meany—who brushed aside two McGovern requests for a meeting—McGovern said "No, but I will."

McGovern said he thinks he could settle his differences with the powerful "Mr. Labor."

"I think Mr. Meany and I have one great common purpose, and that is to defeat Richard Nixon," McGovern said.

Meany has constantly attacked Nixon on virtually every issue except the Vietnam war.

But a few knowledgeable labor officials see much room for Meany to bury the hatchet he used to try to chop down McGovern's nomination.

AT STAKE FOR McGOVERN is whether the political machinery of the nationwide COPE operation will be used in his behalf. It is worth an estimated $10 million in cash and the value of the volunteer services of thousands of union members in a presidential election.

"We'll probably run a 'Save the Congress' campaign," but sit out the presidential contest, a Meany aide said.

"COPE is not the privately owned enterprise that belongs to either Meany or Barkan. A lot of unions contribute to it," Wurf fumed in an interview.

"I'm an officer of COPE, an officer of the AFL-CIO and I find the proprietary manner in which Barkan says what COPE will do or not do distressing," said Wurf, who has been increasingly moving into positions against Meany on a number of issues.

Some saw Wednesday's battle a test of Meany's control over the labor federation.

Wurf hinted he may try to bypass Meany and Barkan and set up a separate labor group to campaign for McGovern if the AFL-CIO votes to remain neutral.

Nader's Raiders launch incisive probe of Congress

By DANIEL RAPOPORT

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ralph Nader is asking members of Congress to give him up to 10 or 12 hours of their time plus their frankest thoughts so he can tell their constituents the truth about them. Not surprisingly, he's encountering some resistance.

Nader said more than two dozen House members have balked at cooperating with his organization's mammouth effort to size up Congress as an institution and describe in unprecedented detail all of its members.

"Congress Project" as it is called, represents the most ambitious, expensive, difficult and controversial study of an American institution yet undertaken by Nader.

NEARLY 1,000 graduate students, professors, lawyers, housewives, members of the League of Women Voters and others are busy in Washington and in all 435 congressional districts around the country compiling data on representatives and senators. Their year-long labors will culminate in October with the publication of "profiles" on each lawmaker and with 12 topic reports issued over the next six months.

Nader estimates the entire volume of reports will exceed 12,000 pages and will cost $150,000 to $175,000, most of it going for the $400-$500 one-shot expense payments to the 180 to 200 volunteers working on the project in Washington this summer.

Much of what Nader's Raiders turn up will be the stuff on which college political science professors thrive — case studies on the effectiveness or ineffectiveness of Congress.

BUT ALSO in the report, and what project director Robert Fellmeth considers the most valuable results, will be solid, documented information on what a member of Congress has and has not done for his constituents — information that for the most part has never before been made public, or which has been obscured by campaign rhetoric.

"We're most interested in seeing some of these damned campaigns turned around and made relevant," Fellmeth said in a recent interview. "We've had enough of this 10-second spot nonsense where this guy says vote for me, another says I have courage, another says three people have endorsed me."

Likely to stir the most controversy will be the profiles on the individual members. Nader says they will not be subjective reports on lawmakers but will provide a detailed and readable account of how that member performed during his time in Congress — how he voted, what he did in committee and what he neglected to do — and how that service affected his district.

NADER SAID most congressmen are cooperating fully, some are enthusiastic over the project and he believes many of the non-cooperators will come along when they realize the final report will provide Congress with valuable information about itself.

The non-cooperators, on the basis of names provided by Nader and his staff, are almost all conservatives, of both parties. Some liberals, according to one aide, are "a little nervous" about furnishing detailed information about themselves for publication shortly before election time, but none apparently has flatly refused to cooperate.

That is not the case with some of the conservatives. Rep. Samuel Devine, R-Ohio, leader of an informal group known as "the regular Republicans," has been criticizing Project Congress ever since Nader's staffers began appearing on Capitol Hill. Rep. Joel Broyhill, a Republican from northern Virginia, sent his unanswered questionnaire back to Nader with a complaint that the 633 questions required more time to answer than he could afford to take away from his constituents.

NAVY TACTICS NET VIET MIGS

Top gun school at Miramar pays off

By DAVID LEWIS

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — It's the U.S. Navy 21, the North Vietnamese 1, and Navy Cmdr. Roger Box is rightly proud of the score.

Box is the man who's indirectly responsible for 21 dogfight victories this year which cost the Navy one F4 Phantom fighter while the North Vietnamese lost 21 MIG fighters.

The lost MIGs are what Box calls "the price of underestimating the skill and tenacity of Navy fighter pilots."

The combat-seasoned 37-year-old flier is head of a fighter weapons school at Miramar Naval Air Station that trains Navy fighter crews for Vietnam combat duty. In the Navy it's known simply as "top gun" school.

Before top gun crews started entering Navy squadrons two years ago, the Navy was losing one fighter for each two MIGs downed in the Vietnam air war. That's still the ratio for the Air Force, Box said, but the Navy now averages 20-to-1.

Success, Box said, is based on the fact Navy fighter pilots don't portray the classic image of a fighter pilot.

"The kind of pilot that shows up swashbuckling at a bar with a flowing white scarf and downs one whisky after another while describing his latest dogfight is out," Box said.

Helping Box are 11 instructors, including the first two air aces of the Vietnam war, Lts. Randy Cunningham and William Driscoll. The pair have downed six MIGs since January, three of them in a single engagement.

Box bristles at comments that today's Navy pilots are "button pushers who happened to be in the right place at the right time."

The top gun program went into action when the Navy realized its air encounters in Vietnam were low altitude, visual battles more oriented to eyeball tactics than heavy reliance upon radar and other electronic systems.

Despite development of supersonic jets, guided missiles and rockets, Box says fighter tactics haven't changed much since World War I.

Watt's going on with 110-story N.Y. structure?

NEW YORK (AP) — At the foot of Manhattan Island, the world's two tallest buildings blaze with lights night and day, and the Port Authority, which owns the twin towered 110-story structure can't turn them out.

Blame it on the computers, they say.

All electricity for the buildings is controlled by computers and there are no light switches. The computers aren't working.

As a result, the Consolidated Edison Company is devoting 24.5 megawatts daily to the complex and said the World Trade Center would take 80 megawatts — one per cent of New York's daily load — when completed.

SECRECY IN S.F.

Chinatown war hard to handle

By JOHN M. LEIGHTY

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A new hard-to-crack variety of warfare is taking place in the narrow streets of San Francisco's gaily decorated Chinatown.

Police trying to solve a wave of 10 gangland murders and numerous aggravated assaults are finding it just about impossible to break the traditional Chinese code of silence.

"We have no trouble getting information," said homicide Lt. Charles Ellis. "Our problem is getting evidence — having people stand up in court."

Like the famed tong wars of the 1920s, the new violence is between factions competing for power.

However, the present struggle isn't between established "family" associations, but exists among the Hwa Ching, or immigrant youth, who are seeking prestige in an alien setting.

"The real power struggle is for prestige," said inspector John McKenna, long acquainted with problems in the densely populated Chinatown, where the overall crime rate is lowest in the city.

The tongs, made famous because of hatchet murders and intrigue, were organizations and families formed together for mutual protection. They were also bearers of Chinese tradition going back centuries — tradition that makes the honor of the group more important than the rights of the individual.

McKENNA SAID the Chinese "mores, cultures and tradition" are the roots of much of the philosophy held by gang members.

"There may be some struggle for monetary gain, but the prestige of power is very, very important," the inspector said. "The basic thought is that there's prestige, power and control. If you get control, you get the gains that go along with it."

He called the activities of the gang "fluid" and said the killings could result from a multitude of things, even petty jealousies.

With the relaxation of immigration laws in the 1960s, Chinese youth from Hong Kong have poured into the United States at the rate of about 4,000 to 8,000 a year, bringing with them many of the habits they had learned in order to survive.

The Wah Ching gang was formed to help youths overcome cultural and language problems in their new environment. But, in 1968, the group splintered and in-fighting began.

Since March 1970, 10 murders have occurred, several in front of witnesses. Youths were shot down in the streets and two were bound and dropped into the bay with weights. The youngest victim was 14.

THE FIRST NINE victims were linked by police to gang struggles, but the tenth, Barry Fong-Torres, 29, was a dedicated social worker among the Chinese youth.

"He was concerned about things like corruption in some trade unions, about bad housing," said one Chinatown source. "He was no gangster and he was no informer. He was a dedicated young man and he will be missed."

Chinatown businessmen have also been intimidated by gangsterism. Robberies and strong-arm tactics to extort money are increasing.

Police Chief Donald Scott met recently with all his department heads and an observer from the federal government to discuss the Chinatown situation. He explained that one reason for the conference was to "get the word out" that police need community help to deal with "hoodlum types with no respect for human life."

Ambulance, first aid given free to victims

By [illegible] O. CLIFFORD

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Motorists involved in accidents in San Francisco receive fast ambulance service and efficient first aid treatment — and no bill.

San Francisco has always felt emergency medical aid was as much the taxpayer's right as fire and police protection. It was a pioneer in the concept and is still one of the few cities in the United States to provide free service.

Most of the cities that have tax-supported emergency medical service still charge some fee, according to David Reise of the California Department of Public Health.

THE SAN Francisco service has been the subject of several studies by both federal and state agencies that look upon it as a model for the rest of the nation.

One of the latest studies was done by Dr. Irma West of the state Department of Public Health who surveyed every ambulance service in California.

San Francisco's was the largest service that didn't charge, she said, and had the highest "level of training for its drivers and stewards."

One can't help feeling the high — almost military — esprit de corps among the 26 drivers and stewards who man the city's ambulances.

"ALL OF our men have to be qualified before they come to us," said Bill Yoes, 40, the acting superintendent.

"Most served as medics in the military in World War II or Korea and now we are getting Vietnam vets."

In addition to the ambulance service, Yoes is in charge of five emergency hospitals equipped to handle everything short of surgery. One is located at the county hospital, and the more severe cases are rushed there to be near more complete facilities.

All of the installations operate on a 24-hour basis and have a doctor and nurse, treatment rooms and ward areas.

"We treat them on the spot at our facility or, if needed, get them to their private doctor," Yoes said.

The tax-supported service was started in 1876 and is backed by San Francisco's medical community.

CATHOLICS FLEE TO DUBLIN

IRA firing mortars, rockets

BELFAST (UPI) — Growing numbers of Roman Catholics fled southward across the broder in a mass exodus to the Irish Republic Saturday to escape a mounting wave of violence in Northern Ireland. The death toll in the last two days rose to 11 when a British army explosives expert was blown to bits while trying to defuse a bomb.

The Irish Republican Army was reported using mortars as well as rockets to battle the British army. Heavily-armored Saracen tanks were being shipped to Northern Ireland to counter the threat of the IRA rockets, British army sources said.

Since the collapse of the cease-fire six days ago, 31 persons have died—20 civilians, 19 soldiers and one member of the reserve Ulster Defense Regiment. It was one of the bloodiest weeks in Ulster's current troubles.

The overall death toll in the three years of carnage reached 439. Thousands more have been wounded or injured in shootings and bombings acorss the province.

In Belfast, the British army said the IRA now was using mortars against security forces. Troops found an unexploded home-made mortar shell near an army observation post in the Catholic Ballymurphy area Saturday and said it had been fired at them Friday night.

IRA gunners were reported to have fired bazooka-type rockets at British troops during heavy fighting Thursday night and Friday morning.

The British army sources said the Saracen tanks had four-inch armored plate and would provide better protection than the thinly-plated armored personnel carriers (APC) now being used.

An army spokesman said a patrol at Silverridge found the booby-trapped bomb on a road about one mile from the border with the Irish Republic. While an army explosives expert was attempting to dismantle it the bomb exploded, killing him instantly.

He was the sixth army bomb expert killed in Northern Ireland.

Soldiers in Londonderry said they killed one gunman and injured another following an attack on the Masonic Point army post.

In Belfast, troops claimed one gunman hit in the Lenadoon area, the district seized by soldiers Thursday-Friday in a night-long battle with snipers.

Trainloads of Catholic refugees, many of them women and children, left Belfast for Dublin during the day. Catholic relief officials said 5,000 Northern Ireland Catholics fled the province in the past seven days and another 1,500 were leaving in three special trains Saturday.

Uruguay bans beef sales for 4 months

MONTEVIDEO (UPI) — A four-month ban on the sale of beef in Uruguay began Saturday and authorities warned they would crack down hard on any black market operators.

The average Uruguayan appeared to find a little satisfaction in the government's justification for the unprecedented ban — a build-up in foreign sales and an increase in Uruguay's currency reserves.

One housewife commented, "The only good thing about it as far as my family is concerned is that we won't have to worry about rising beef prices until Nov. 15."

Sadat acts as peacemaker in resolving Libyan rift

BEIRUT (UPI) — Egyptian President Anwar Sadat resolved a serious split between Prime Minister Moammar Khadafy and other Libyan government leaders during a secret trip to Tripoli on Thursday, the Beirut newspaper An Nahar said Saturday.

An Nahar said the rift developed between Khadafy and other members of the ruling Revolution Command Council over the composition of a new government.

Khadafy wanted a cabinet mainly of civilians and technocrats while other RCC officers wanted a stronger military representation, An Nahar said in a Tripoli dispatch.

It said Sadat flew to the Libyan capital Thursday and resolved the dispute in four hours of talks with both sides. The newspaper said the formation of a new government mostly of civilians — as sought by Khadafy — was expected shortly.

Earlier last week, Morocco Radio reported that Khadafy had been deposed by Maj. Abdel Salam Jalloud, his No. 2 man, in a bloodless coup. On Monday, Jalloud was reported to have been nominated by the RCC to replace Khadafy as premier to form a new government although Khadafy would remain Libya's strongman as head of the military Junta.

The reports of a coup in Libya were denied by the semiofficial Egyptian newspaper Al Ahram in Cairo Saturday. It made no mention of Sadat's reported trip to Libya, which with Egypt and Syria are linked in the Federation of Arab Republics.

RESIDENTS FLEE HOMES AT NIGHT

Italian city lives in fear of the dreaded terremento

ANCONA, Italy (UPI) — Ancona has the shakes—and so do the city's more than 110,000 residents of whom about 80 per cent flee their homes each nightfall to sleep in peace.

What gives Ancona the shakes, shimmies and shivers is "teri"—the diminutive nickname for the Italian word terremento, for earthquake.

Teri is an old girl and she won't go away. She is thought to have been around since the times of the ancient Greeks who first settled this Adriatic city. The fishermen of the Middle Ages knew her, too.

But she has been getting rougher in recent times. In 1930 a major terremento flattened a quarter of the city. Then things quieted for a number of years. These were years following World War II, when Ancona bloomed. It became the Adriatic's second largest shipyard. Most of the ferries to Yugoslavia and Greece sailed from here. A chemical plant with more than 1,000 employes sprang up. The Ancona area's wide, white beaches began attracting thousands of tourists.

But Teri was only sleeping, apparently. Since Jan 25, Ancona has been having the quivers. More than 1,000 quakes have shaken the city, slowly wearing down the morale of the residents and crumbling the masonry of their houses.

The 1930 quake lasted two days, but this time terremento won't go away. "We've been living in fear for six months now," says mayor's aide, Marcello Bedeschi. "It's like she's punching our body, says Dr. Bruno Fioretti, City Council economist.

So each night, fearful their homes may collapse down on them, as many as four-fifths of the city's people leave the city to sleep in the countryside, in tent cities, and railway carriages.

Business has fallen off: the whole tempo of the city has slowed.

"Getting the people back into the city to work is only half the problem," says Mayor Alfredo Trifogli. "The other half is getting people to come back to buy."

Ancona's 1,714 small businesses grossed roughly $517,000 a day before he earthquakes started up again. Fioretti estimates the daily average now at $103,000 — and that's optimistic."

Scientists say there are 32 epicenters in an arc ranging from 1.75 miles to six miles at sea, from which the tremors emanate. But they are not quite sure what sort of subterranean movement is the cause.

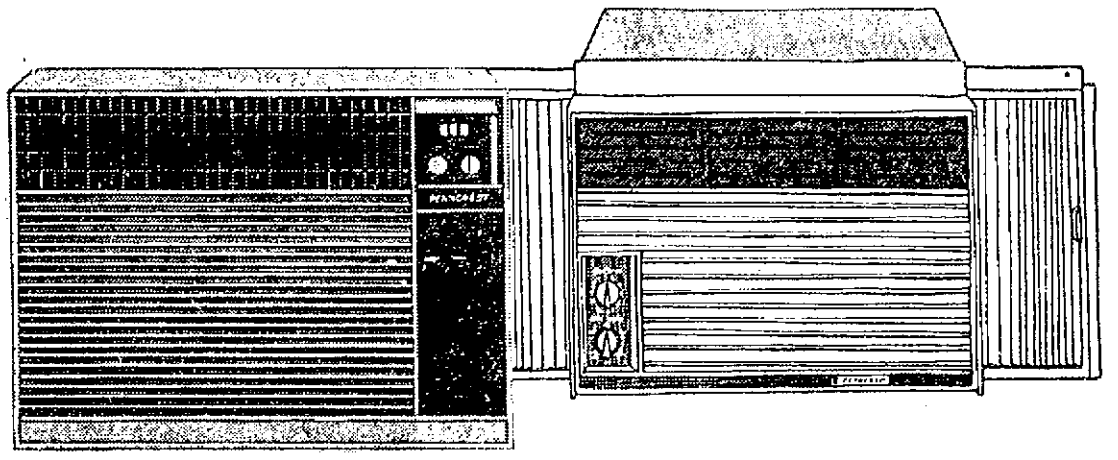

"I don't believe the scientists anyway," says Mayor Trifogli.

The last really severe tremor shook Ancona June 14, timed at precisely 8:59 p.m. a number of houses were wrecked, others damaged. Most residents were either just finishing dinner or watching the night's big soccer game on television.

"I remember screaming when a painting flew off the wall and came at me," recalls 16-year-old Sabrina di Bernardino of that night. "I fainted." Her family fled their shaking, wall-cracking home for fields outside the city. The Di Bernardinos are among more than 400 families who ever since have spent their nights in a tent city outside Ancona.

Another tent city camper, Luigia Cimarosta, said that during the June quake "my whole house was coming apart. I thought we'd all be crushed." Her son, Ernesto, got her out.

LLAMA PROTECTS HIS MATE

When Dr. E. H. Rentschler of Redwood City offered a carrot to pet llama in corral at his home Saturday for benefit of photographer, he didn't expect to get kicked to the ground by the ungrateful animal. The llama was just protecting his mate, the doctor theorized, indicating that all was forgiven. But authorities have ordered him to get rid of the animals within four months.

ANALYST REVEALS TECHNIQUES

U.S. electronics keep tab on entire world

By BENJAMIN WELLES
New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — The United States is reported to have refined its electronic intelligence techniques to the point where it can break Soviet codes, listen to and understand Soviet communications and coding systems and keep track of virtually every Soviet jet plane or missile-carrying submarine around the world.

"We're able to break every code they've got," a former analyst in the National Security Agency, one of the most secret of the government's many intelligence groups, is quoted as saying in the August issue of Ramparts magazine which is published by Noah's Ark, Inc., of Berkeley.

THE FORMER analyst, whose name was not given in the article, was an Air Force staff sergeant who was discharged from military service in 1969 after three years of overseas duty as a communications analyst for the agency in Turkey, West Germany and Indochina. He uses the pseudonym of Winslow Peck in the article.

Peck, who is 25 years old, recently was interviewed by a correspondent of the New York Times in California.

Extensive independent checking in Washington with sources in and out of the government who were familiar with intelligence matters has resulted in the corroboration of many of his revelations. But experts strongly denied that the U.S. had broken the sophisticated codes of the Soviet Union or of other foreign powers.

EXCLUSIVE
N.Y. Times Service

The National Security Agency headquarters is at Fort Meade, near Baltimore. It has about 90,000 employes — most of them military personnel — and spends slightly less than $1 billion a year. Unlike the Central Intelligence Agency, the NSA's primary purpose is the collection of information — most of it through advanced technology — but it rarely, if ever, tries to evaluate the importance of the information or analyze it.

THE RAMPARTS article says the U.S. has encircled the Communist world with at least 2,000 electronic listening posts on land or on naval vessels or aircraft.

U.S. electronically equipped aircraft, according to the article, constantly are penetrating the air space of the Soviet Union, China and other Communist countries to provoke and record their radar and signal techniques to develop countermeasures against them.

This claim has been challenged here by independent government intelligence experts, who said that there have been no authorized, as distinct from inadvertent, violations of Soviet or Chinese airspace by the U.S. since the U-2 flights of the early 1960's. The experts said that satellite photography has replaced aerial overflights, conceding, however, that U.S. electronic intelligence planes often fly along Communist borders to provoke reaction and collect signals.

IN THE California interview, which was recorded on tape, Peck described his early life in Joplin, Mo., his enlistment in the Air Force in 1966 when he was 20 years old, his subsequent recruitment by the security agency, his specialized training, his promotions and his three years of duty overseas. He was discharged in California in November, 1969, and says he turned down a $10,000-a-year job offer by the Central Intelligence Agency. He decided instead, he says, to end the Vietnam war.

A highlight of Peck's disclosures include a report that in 1967 during his duty in Turkey the agency monitored a live Soviet television contact between Premier Aleksei N. Kosygin, who was in tears bidding an emotional farewell to the astronaut Vladimir M. Komarov.

KOMAROV was then in orbit in the spacecraft Soyuz I, which still was two hours from re-entry into the earth's atmosphere. According to Peck's account the astronaut had just been informed by Soviet ground control that the braking parachutes designed to bring his spacecraft safely to earth were malfunctioning and that there was no hope of saving him.

Soyuz I crashed on Soviet territory on April 25, 1967, and Komarov was killed. He was posthumously granted a second Order of Hero of the Soviet Union and is buried in the Kremlin walls.

Peck also said that during the 1967 Arab-Israeli war, the U.S. electronic intelligence ship, the Liberty, was ordered near the Israeli coast to intercept details of Israeli military intentions.

The ship was attacked on June 8, 1967, by Israeli jet aircraft and torpedo boats — an incident that cost 34 U.S. dead and 75 wounded and which President Lyndon B. Johnson later described in his book, "The Vantage Point," as a "heart-breaking episode." Before the attack, he said, the Liberty learned that Gen. Moshe Dayan, the Israeli defense minister, intended to order his forces on to Damascus and Cairo.

PECK STATED that Johnson then brought intense pressure on Israel to halt further troop movement and warned Kosygin on the "hot line" against what appeared to be an imminent Soviet airborne operation from bases in Bulgaria against Israel.

Intelligence sources here said they were unable to recall these details, but a veteran of 30 years service in inteligence said of Peck:

"He's obviously familiar with the NSA its organization, operations and many of its techniques. But no sergeant in his early twenties would know how intelligence is handled at the White House level, what NSA material is used or discarded by the President or more than just the fringes about CIA operations."

During his year of duty in Vietnam, from November, 1968, to October, 1969, Peck said, he participated in airborne electronic sweeps in Thailand in support of CIA operations.

The CIA he said was using unmarked attack bombers flown by CIA "spookies" and based at Udorn to punish Meo tribesmen who had clashed with Thai government troops over control of their traditional areas.

THE U. S. depended on a friendly Thai government for important air bases and other facilities useful for the Vietnam war, Peck noted, and thus was prepared to assign the CIA surreptitiously to help the Thai government suppress internal disorders.

Neither the NSA nor the CIA would comment Saturday. Senior government intelligence officials who were shown transcripts of the Peck interview discounted parts of it but corroborated others.

David Kahn, author of "The Codebreakers," published by MacMillan in 1967 and a leading authority on cryptoanalysis, said in a telephone interview that the Ramparts article "represents much new information that rings true to me and seems correct." However, he challenged some points, specifically Peck's assertion that the agency's experts are apt to "break every Soviet code with remarkable success."

TOP-GRADE Soviet foreign ministry code systems "have been unbreakable since the 1930s," Kahn said. He added that it was "highly unlikely that they have switched to breakable codes."

Peck's contention that "information gathered by NSA is complete" implies a false importance, Kahn said. The NSA does, he said, "solve" many nations' diplomatic codes, but these are countries of the third rank and provide only "indirect clues to Communist intentions."

Kahn noted that "what we are doing in this field the Russians are doing and, contrary to the Ramparts statement, they are very good."

He pointed out finally that the "thrust of the article, that NSA threatens peace, is incorrect."

"I believe that in the existing world of two armed camps, Kahn said, "NSA can provide more light, more truth — and this can lead to better evaluation of situations and so to more realistic responses. NSA is not like the CIA which can foment revolutions and can indeed threaten peace."

THE RAMPARTS article contains a lengthy question-and-answer passage that Peck conceded, in his interview with the Times, was hurriedly prepared at a time when he was "extremely rattled."

His willingness to divulge details of hitherto suspected but obscure details of electronic eavesdropping around the globe resulted, he said, from opposition to the Vietnam war and from a hope that others doing similar clandestine government work would "come forward and say what they know."

He concedes that his disclosures about the agency may involve him in legal tangles.

"I know the FBI knows who I am," he said recently. "I'd like to avoid publicity but I'm willing to go through trial and, if I have to, I'll go to jail. I don't like the idea of going to jail. It scares me. But I no longer feel the oath that I made when I was relesed from duty to never say anything about what I did is binding on me."

TEACHERS IN PRAGUE 'COMRADES'

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) — When Czechoslovak children return to school in the fall they again must address their teachers as "comrades."

This edict by the Ministry of Education on Saturday ended a controversy that has taken up a lot of space in the press.

Pupils were allowed to quit using that form of address during the 1968-69 era of relaxation under Alexander Dubcek, the Communist leader ousted by the Soviet led invasion. The form never had been fully restored. Now it again will be obligatory.

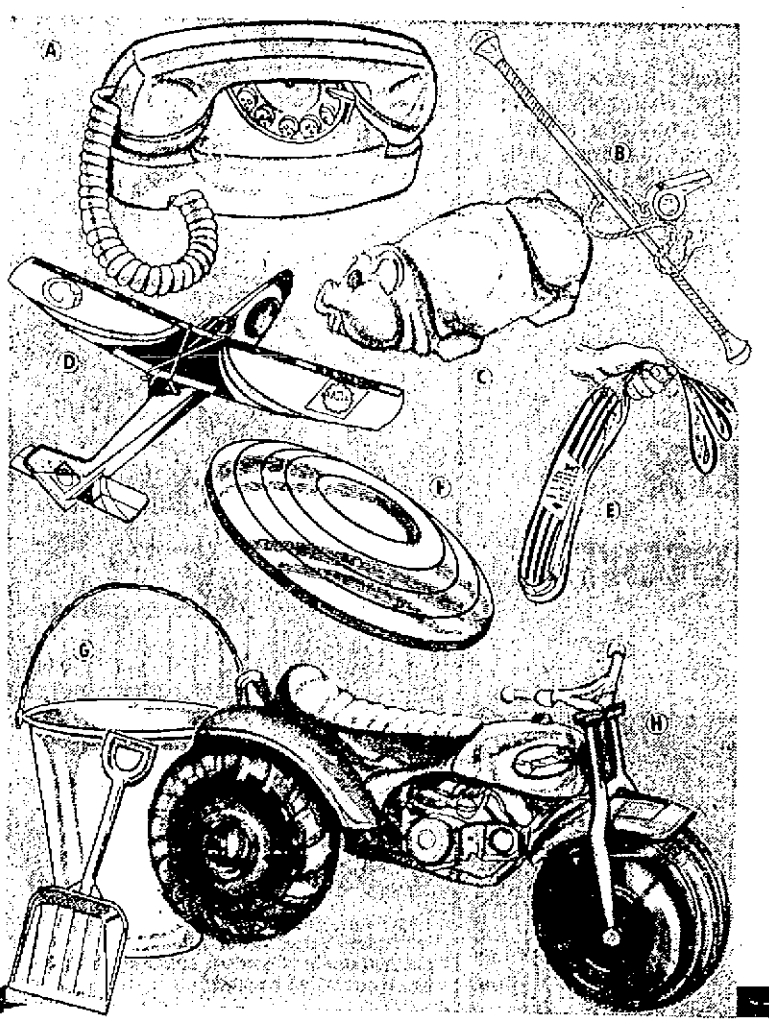

The ministry also declared that pupils must be suitably and cleanly dressed, without excesses in hairdos or clothing.

End of the line for rail cars

MOJAVE (AP) — The Purdy Co. might be called the Humane Society of the railroad business.

This railroad salvage company in the dusty Mojave desert is the last roundup for many aged railroad cars. For a few, it is the start of a new life.

THE Purdy Co. takes in about 150 worn-out cars a month. It strips them and prepares them for the smelter's cauldron. But some are saved.

Requests to buy the old cars flood in from a variety of sources. Passenger and dining cars are used for restaurants, box cars become tool sheds, and cabooses are transformed into mountain cabins.

One builder turned a box car into a bridge. There are seemingly as many different ways to use the cars as there are people who will come out to the Mojave Desert to get them.

AND the prices are fairly reasonable. A decent caboose goes for about $1,000. A box car can be bought for a mere $850. Dining and passenger cars, the deluxe items at the Purdy Co., run about 3,000 each.

But still, homes cannot be found for all of the cars. And those that can't be relocated wind up in smelting cauldrons at steel mills across the nation.

Japanese have yen for Hawaii

By ROBERT C. MILLER

HONOLULU (UPI) — Hawaii, former haven for war-weary Americans from Vietnam, has become the R and R center for tired Tokyo businessmen, and the "Niagara Falls" for Japanese honeymooners.

The estimated 180,000 Japanese tourists who visited Hawaii last year have saved the island's second-biggest industry, tourism, spread the Japanese language to elevators, hamburger stands and restrooms, and pumped millions of yen into the state's economy.

AS one Hawaiian businessman said: "We should erect two monuments in the islands; one to Captain Cook who discovered them, and the second to the Japanese who rediscovered them last year."

Cheap travel, relaxed restrictions, tax benefits and the booming Japanese economy are responsible for the discovery of Hawaii both as a vacation spot and an investment hedge against any future revaluation of the yen.

The massive Japanese spending in Hawaii began a year ago when the Tokyo government relaxed its restrictions on overseas investments.

HAWAII had everything needed to attract Japanese in the first place: scenery, relatives, climate, friends, proximity.

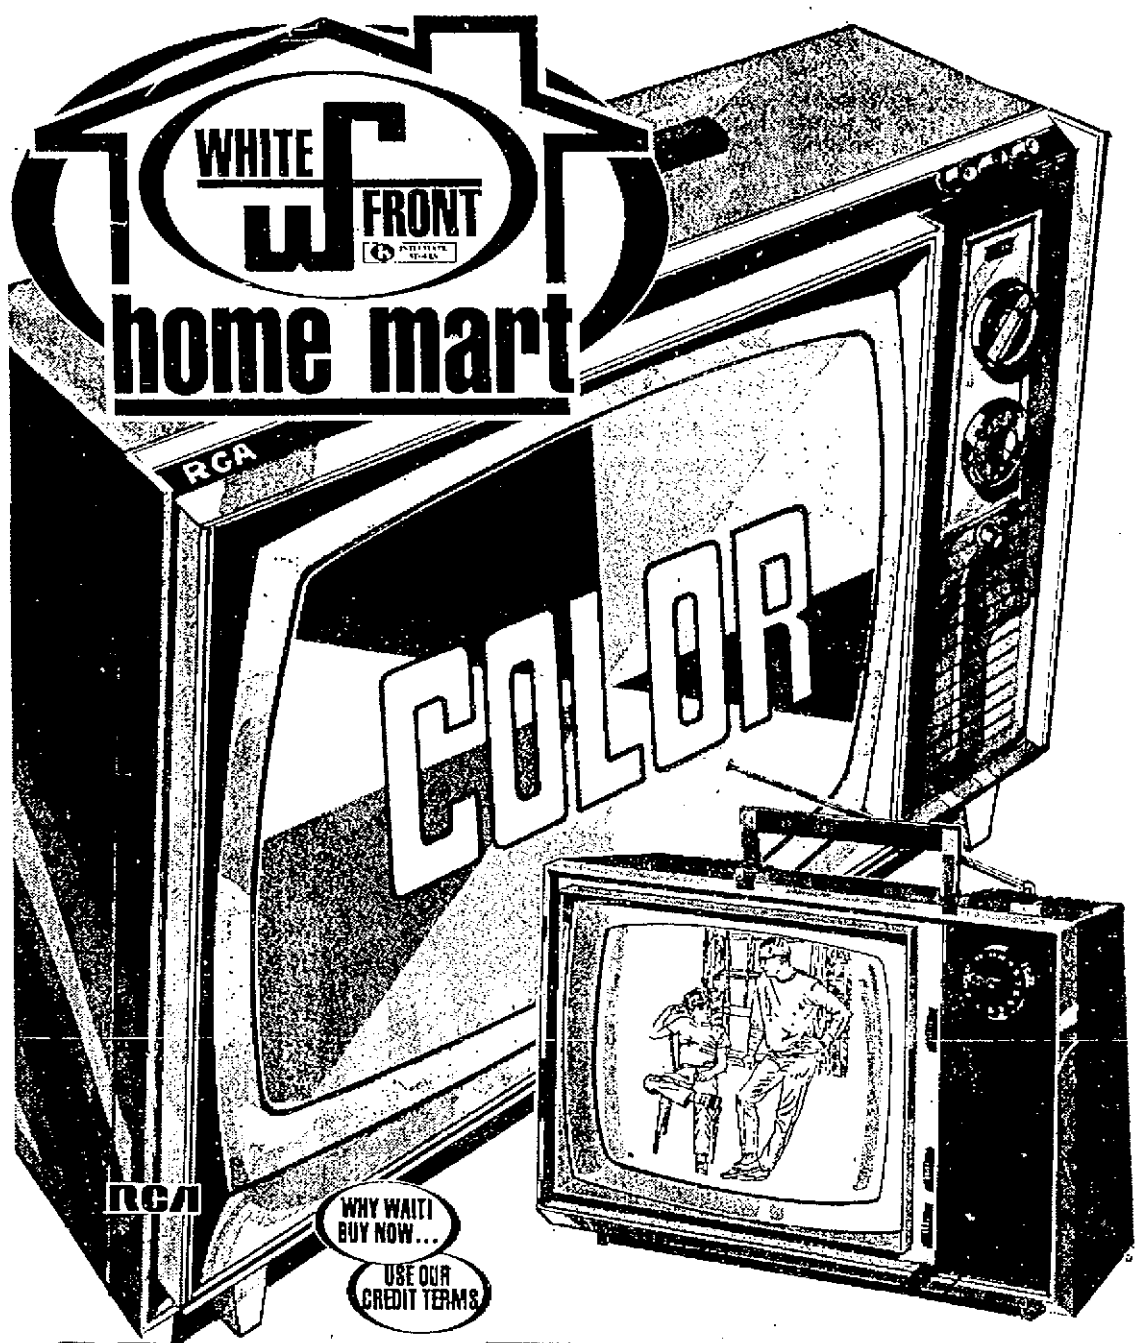

The package tours opened the floodgates of Japanese visitors. For less than $500 a Tokyo tourist can jet to Hawaii, visit some of the other islands, spend nearly a week, go home with a sunburned nose, a flattened wallet and enought snapshots to green his friends with envy.

Some of the vacationing Japanese relaxed with one eye open to the commercial possibilities in Hawaii, and when overseas investment restrictions were relaxed, they moved into the local real estate market and began writing seven-figure checks.

A midcourse correction for the spaceship Earth

Editor's note: America's moon-landing program ends this year. But a new era of space exploration is beginning — one that will see space work for earth's societies. In astronaut parlance, it could be called a midcourse correction for Spaceship Earth.

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The highly successful Apollo moon-landing program ends this year and America will enter a new era of space exploration, turning attention back to earth with orbiting projects destined to open a cornucopia of benefits to mankind.

Apollo 17 sets sail Dec. 6 with a sophisticated set of new instruments and a geologist aboard to wrestle a few more secrets from the inscrutable moon.

After that it may be decades before man again sets foot on the barren lunar surface. The emphasis, in both the United States and Soviet Union, will be on making space work for society on earth — concentrating on better communications, education, weather prediction and control, navigation and air traffic control, monitoring earth's resources and developing new medical and manufacturing processes.

Photographs taken by Apollo astronauts from deep in space helped trigger this trend to look more inward toward the earth than outward toward the stars.

This dramatic picture showed our globe as a tiny, lonely traveler, its ecological system a fragile thing when weighed against the vastness of space.

THE shift might be termed, in astronaut parlance, a mid-course correction for spaceship earth.

Within five months after this final Apollo crew comes home, the United States' first space station, Skylab, will be lofted into orbit. Three different three-man crews will spend a total of five months aboard in 1972, setting guidelines for large, permanent stations of the 1980s.

In gestation is the space shuttle, a rocket plane that will operate like an airliner, making countless trips into orbit and opening the portals of space to men and women of many nations and walks of life — from tourist to scientist.

Between Skylab and the shuttle there will be perhaps the most significant flight of all — a joint orbital mission in 1975 by American astronauts and Russian cosmonauts. The impact of this symbolic meeting of Apollo and Soyuz crews can only be speculated on, but it could herald greater cooperation in many fields between the two powers.

In the future, international crews could embark on long missions to Mars, Jupiter or other farflung outposts in the universe.

While man explores new horizons, scientists and geologists will be busy for years studying the treasure chests of rocks and wealth of scientific data gathered by Apollo as they seek to unravel the mystery of the origin of the moon, earth and our solar system.

This information collected by five moon-landing crews already has told some wondrous things. It no longer is this same old moon smiling down on us as it did before Apollo. It is a body that has proved full of surprises.

This vision of a cold, dead planet has given way to an amazing variety of geological activity — numerous small moonquakes, heat estimated at more than 800 degrees near the center, ancient volcanoes, a trace of magnetism and the possibility that water vapor is escaping through cracks in the crust.

THERE is general agreement among scientists on these points after evaluating Apollo data:

—Mechanisms for evolving life halted on the moon long before even the basic building blocks of life were formed. Hence, there is no life there.

—Geologic evolution stopped early on the moon, some three billion years ago. As a result, the moon is frozen at a point of primitive development. A big question is why it suddenly turned off its heat machine and essentially stopped evolving after only a billion years or so.

—There are essentially only three types of rocks on earth.

There is evidence that volcanoes wracked the moon early in its history, sculpturing valleys, rilles, plains and mountains and indicating it once had a hot, molten interior like the earth's.

—The moon is made up of onion-like layers, with a crust about 38 miles thick and a mantle and a core below that, making it more earth-like than many experts believed possible.

Before Apollo, there were three major theories about the origin of the moon: that it was born at the same time as our solar system in the convulsive coming together of space debris and a giant gas cloud; that it once was part of the earth and for some reason broke away, and that it was a wanderer from outer space that got caught in earth's gravity field.

Some scientists have not ruled out any of the theories, but most now feel sure that the moon, earth and other planets in the solar system were created in the massive gas cloud 4.6 billion years ago.

APOLLO 17 hopefully will fill in missing chapters in the moon's history. New instruments to be carried may answer such questions as:

—Is the moon slowly fashioning an atmosphere and interacting with the solar winds to create building blocks of future life?

Can gravitational waves, pounding across the oceans of space from an early epoch of the universe, tell us when time began?

—Under the bedrock of the frozen lunar interior are there layers of ice or permafrost that man can tap to make air and water for permanent bases on the moon?

On the crew will be the first astronaut-geologist, Dr. Harrison Schmitt, who will be able to make on-the-spot evaluations of certain rocks and geological features that might escape the untrained eye. Flying with him will be Navy Capt. Eugene Cernan, mission commander, and Navy Cmdr. Ronald Evans.

The landing site is a place called Taurus-Littrow in the northeast quadrant of the moon. It is a region of light-colored mountains and dark valleys that may be filled with volcanic ash.

THE immediate landing site is believed to be younger than any previous Apollo site, formed perhaps three billion years ago. But within driving distance of the moon car are formations which might date back 4.6 billion years to the birth of the moon.

Because the moon has no atmosphere, or wind or water or living thing, the first billion years of its history has not been eroded away as it has on earth. So if some of the rocks are 4.6 billion years old, scientists may learn something about the early history of our planet and others. The oldest rocks found on earth are 3.5 billion years old.

Perhaps one of Apollo's greatest contributions was the awareness it gave man of the limitations of his own planet. To see earth as a complete closed ecological system floating in the blackness of space was an emotional shock to many.

They realized just how fragile earth is, protected from the searing radiation of the sun only by a 400-mile thick atmosphere. The picture of a marblelike earth relayed by Apollo 8 helped foster a surge in popular interest for a cleaner environment, for better management of natural resources and the preservation of the ecological balance.

The question was raised: Shouldn't we take a substantial portion of the space dollar and devote it to earth-related problems such as pollution and providing for a growing population.

After Apollo 17, Skylab will waste little time pioneering in that direction.

Skylab is a two-story laboratory, with the volume of a medium-size house, which is to be launched unmanned by a Saturn 5 rocket next April 30. The following day, a three-man crew is to be launched in a modified Apollo capsule by a smaller Saturn 1B rocket.

The astronauts will dock with the Skylab 270 miles above the earth and enter it through an airlock. They are to remain aboard 28 days.

A month after they return to earth, a second three-man team will rocket up to the same laboratory, this time for 56 days. After they come home, a third crew will go up, also for 56 days.

THE Skylab astronauts will conduct more than 50 different types of experiments aimed at developing techniques for surveying earth's resources from space, determining man's ability to live and work in orbit for long periods, extending solar astronomy beyond earth's dense atmosphere, and experimenting with space manufacturing.

There will be a medical doctor on the first crew, and the second and third groups each will have a solar physicist to operate a giant telescope.

The spacemen will evaluate several sensors designed to locate such things as mineral and oil deposits, arable land, sources of air and water pollution, fishing areas, diseased crops and water resources.

They hope to determine which sensors are best suited and which are best operated by man, leading to future missions intended to locate undiscovered resources and to help develop a global management system to meet a growing worldwide demand for these resources.

The Soviet Union reported cosmonauts conducted similar resources survey experiments on the Salyut space station last year and that it also expects to concentrate its manned space effort in earth orbit for the foreseeable future.

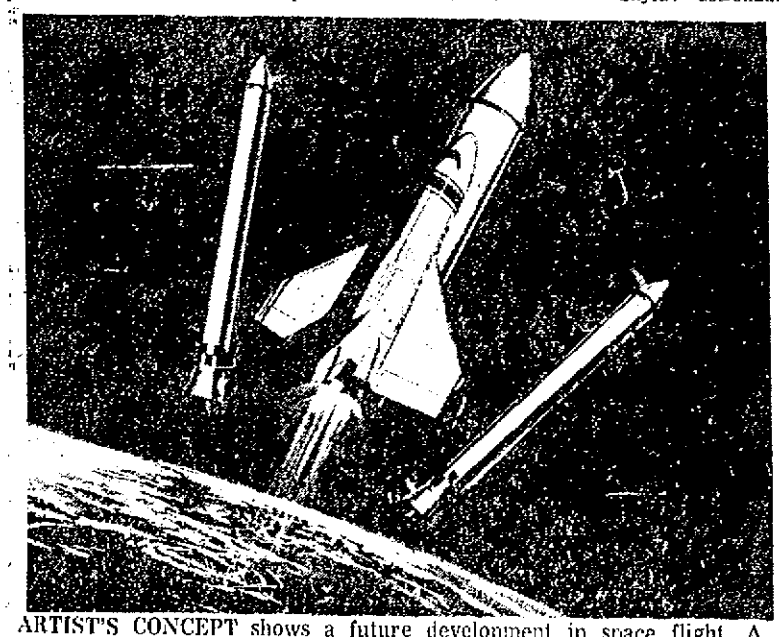

The day when these two space rivals join forces in orbit to help solve problems on earth may not be far off. The first giant step is to be taken in 1975 when spaceships of the two nations are to link up high above the globe.

The agreement for the flight, and several other cooperative space ventures, was signed by President Nixon and Premier Alexei Kosygin during the Moscow summit meeting in May.

A preliminary plan calls for two or three Americans to be launched into a 170-mile-high orbit. A day or two later, two cosmonauts will be launched in a Soyuz ship.

After a day of rendezvous maneuvers, the two vehicles would execute the historic hookup. For two days, Americans and Russians will transfer between the two ships, using a con-

ARTIST'S CONCEPT shows a future development in space flight. A typical space shuttle has reached a height of 125,000 feet above earth, and its two rocket motors are released to parachute back to earth to be reused. The shuttle is also reusable. It will fly in orbit like a spaceship and land back on earth like an airplane. Its initial function will be to carry unmanned satellites into orbit.

U.S. space program puts emphasis on Mother Earth necting airlock because of different cabin atmospheres. They'll conduct joint experiments, possibly in earth resources.

THE two ships will disengage and for several days conduct separate, perhaps coordinated, experiments.

If it works as expected, all future American and Soviet manned ships will have this system, enabling a craft from either country to fly to the rescue of a space vehicle in case of trouble.

But officials of both nations also see the flight as a means of improving the political climate on earth and as a symbolic awareness of problems on the planet that can perhaps best be solved by cooperation, eliminating costly duplication.

It is hoped the 1975 mission will lead to an international space laboratory in which several nations would participate.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration at one time foresaw a 12-man U.S. station in orbit by 1976 gradually enlarging it to 50-to-100 men by launching additional modules.

But this has been delayed indefinitely by NASA budget cuts and the realization that assembling a space station with the present Saturn 5 rocket would be extremely expensive.

With the Saturn 5 it costs more than $1,000 for each pound placed in earth orbit. Because repeated launchings would be required to service a station and to transfer personnel to and from earth, billions of dollars would be needed to support an orbiting lab over a period of years.

So NASA decided to develop the space shuttle a reuseable vehicle that could make 100 or more trips into space before wearing out. The space agency recently won strong congressional backing for this entirely new concept in space transportation.

The shuttle will take off like a rocket, fly in orbit like a spaceship and land back on earth like an airplane. Its two solid fuel rocket boosters also will be reuseable after parachuting to earth.

Because it can be used over and over, the shuttle will reduce launch costs sharply, perhaps to less than $75 for each pound orbited. NASA estimates each shuttle launch would cost about $10 million, compared with $445 million for an Apollo moon mission.

THE shuttle will be the size of a DC9 airliner and can be flown by two pilots. It can carry up to 35,000 pounds of payload and 12 passengers, who will not have to be well-trained astronauts. Anyone in reasonably good health can make the trip.

This shuttle's first function when it becomes operational late in this decade will be to carry unmanned satellites into desired orbits, eliminating the need for conventional throwaway space rockets. Because man will be aboard to make a final check before ejecting a pay load, the satellites will be cheaper to build. And if a payload stops operating, a shuttle crew could fly over to fix it, or return it to earth for repair.

The satellites would be used for communications, navigation, air and sea traffic control, scientific observations and military reconnaissance.

There will be growing emphasis on using satellites to aid education in underdeveloped areas of the globe. An American satellite next year will broadcast educational programs directly to television sets in 5,000 villages in remote areas of India, teaching not only children, but also instructing farmers on crop planting and women on such things as cooking and birth control.

Brazil is planning a direct-broadcast satellite educational TV system that would reach 100,000 schools. The impact of this capability on emerging nations is profound.

The U.S. has invited foreign nations to participate in the shuttle, providing experiments and scientific and engineering personnel. A group of European nations is considering building separate manned orbiting experiment modules.

NASA's latest traffic model forecasts 721 shuttle launchings between 1979 and 1990, an average of about one a week. NASA missions to be launched from Cape Kennedy total 461; Defense Department missions, most of be launched from Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif., are 231, and launchings for governmental or commercial agencies 128.

ON some of these missions, the shuttle would serve as an interim space station, flying 30-day or more journeys. NASA 's permanent space station plans are not firm depending on what develops on an international basis.

But it its hoped a large station of some sort can be orbited by the mid-1980s.

Meteorologists aboard this lab could develop accurate weather forecasting on a worldwide basis, possibly two weeks in advance. This would have an impact estimated at billions of dollars, especially in agriculturally related fields.

With camers and remote sensing devices, crewmen could locate fish in the ocean, differentiate between sick and healthy crops and trees, spot forest fires, find hidden oil and mineral deposits and new growing land, detect pollution sources, measure soil fertility, predict erosion and monitor water resources.

Specialists could conduct long-term research in astronomy, life sciences, space physics, technology and applications.

Astronomers presently are wrestling with some of the most puzzling problems in man's investigation of the universe. Huge radio galaxies, quesars, pulsars and numerous x-ray sources are emitting energies at almost unbelievable rates, suggesting new, powerful modes of energy production.

Just as our knowledge of nuclear energy stemmed from investigations into how the sun produces its radiant energy, perhaps orbiting astronomers can find new sources of energy for use on earth. Our atmosphere blocks out certain radiation wavelengths, making it very difficult to study these powerful radio sources from earth.

ONE wing of an oribiting station might serve as an experimental hospital. The unique weightless and vacuum conditions could aid in the treatment of those suffering from partial paralysis, burns, heart and blood vessel diseases and other ailments enhanced by atmospheric pressure and gravity on earth.

And the space environment might prove an ideal place to manufacture specialized items such as superstrong materials, perfectly round ball bearings, precision optical lenses and pure vaccines.

NASA and several industrial research organizations are spending more than $1 million a year to study the feasibility of space manufacturing and there will be extensive tests on Skylab. Some experts predict a $50 billion market by the end of the century. The shuttle then could become a delivery truck for carrying up raw materials and returning manufactured items to earth.

Looking to the future, a station could become the jumping off place for international expeditions to establish large bases on the moon or to fly to the planets with nuclear rockets.

And NASA says the exciting explorations ahead will not cost the taxpayer an arm and a leg. Throughout the shuttle development program during the next six years, the agency's annual budget is expected to stay steady at about $3.4 billion annually down from Apollo's peak year of $5.9 billion in 1966. That's about one third of one percent of the nation's gross national product, while Russia spends more than two per cent on its space program.

NASA officials note the $3.4 billion figure compares with a Defense Department budget of $73 billion and government social-welfare spending of more than $77 billion this year.

If several nations join to develop a space station, the cost will be shared. And someone other than governments, such as fisheries and farm organizations which use the information, might help pay the bill.

Presently, NASA is spending $16 a year for each person in the U.S. Some space officials feel that, even without the benefits expected, the exploration along might be worth $16 to know that great voyages of discovery are taking place in our time, indeed before our very eyes.

Diploma mills on the rise

By LINDA CARLTON
New York Times Service

NEW YORK — For a variety of reasons, ranging from a "credentials mad" society to a new recognition of untraditional approaches, unaccredited colleges are "springing up all over the place," according to an official of the organization concerned with the accreditation of colleges and universities in this country.

"It seems to me that in the last four or five years there's been a noticeable upsurge in this kind of development," said Norman Burns, the executive director of the Federation of Regional Accrediting Commissions of Higher Education.

Although the most effective remedy is believed to be stronger legislation by individual states, another possible remedy arises in the recent action of the Federal Trade Commission in issuing a "cease and desist" order to one such college in Ohio, according to Jerry Miller, associate director of the National Commission on Accrediting. The commission is an advisory group.

AN extreme example of both academic misrepresentation and remedial action came to light last week in federal court in Brooklyn. Two Orthodox Jewish rabbis pleaded guilty of using the mails to defraud would-be students in a mythical "Marlowe University." The students paid $400 to $500 for degrees they never received.

A New York Times investigation has disclosed that some faculty members and advisers of one of the city's largest group-therapy training schools have degrees from non-accredited institutions. Among them is Philathea College, in London, Ont. The awarding of degrees by Philathea was disclosed by the Times Saturday.

In the United States, which has about 1,600 accredited institutions of higher education, the task of accreditation — described by Burns as simply a way of assuring "a kind of threshold, some minimum level of accomtion of the six regional tion of the six regional boards that make up the federation.

Accreditation is voluntary unless individual states make it a prerequisite for chartering a college or university either through a regional commission on the state's own education department.

THE states are more and more aware of this problem and are taking steps to deal with it," Burns said. But there has been "quite an upsurge" in these schools in recent ed.

"What is happening, I'm afraid, is that these institutions are being created under the guise of being 'innovative' — this is the key word today — and they provide a nice haven for people who may be a bit less than careful," he asserted.

"It's easier to sell these degrees because of legitimate efforts to break out of traditional bonds, and recognition of the validity of different approaches."

Miller expressed fears that "what they're really going to hurt is the movement toward nontraditional study." He said that the Federal Trade Commission, taking action in this field for the first time recently, issued a cease and desist order against an Ohio "college" that he said the commission described as "little more than a diploma mill."

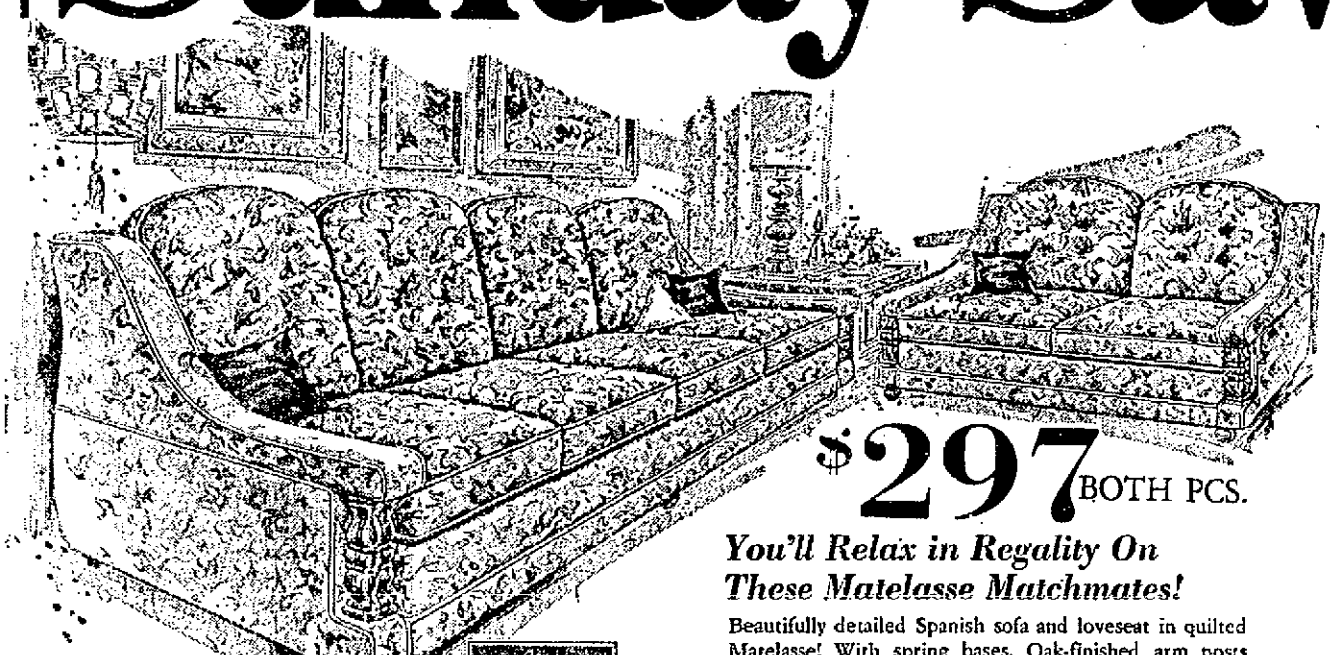

Miller said he knew of schools in which, for fees ranging from $25 to $500, "you can obtain all sorts of degrees from a Ph.D. to a Doctor of Divinity."

WELFARE RECIPIENTS LOSE BONUS

SS hike a mixed blessing

By CHARLES SUTTON
Staff Writer

More than 100,000 persons in the greater Long Beach area will share a $2.6-million bonanza when the latest Social Security hike goes into effect this September.

The 20 per cent increase, the largest in the history of the program, is expected to improve the lot of 28 million beneficiaries throughout the country — many of them living pinched lives on small, fixed incomes.

For about 8,000 of them in this area, however, the silver lining will be tinged with a familiar, if bitter, shade of gray. As welfare recipients under the state's Old Age Security program, they'll see their new bonus wiped out by a corresponding reduction in their OAS checks.

Perhaps a thousand other recipients in other categories of public assistance — families with dependent children, the blind, the disabled — will suffer a like fate. A number of them, in fact — about 4 per cent of those on OAS alone — will be forced off welfare entirely.

If the move is likely to embitter thousands of welfare clients in California, it is certain to please the Reagan administration, which has always taken a tough-minded attitude toward welfare.

According to Jack Cooper, a spokesman for the State Department of Social Welfare, the Social Security increase will reduce the state's welfare budget by $63 million for the remaining nine months of the fiscal year. Since the federal government foots the largest part of the state's welfare bill, Sacramento's actual saving will run in the neighborhood of $27 million for the nine months, while the counties will save about $4 million. (California's annual welfare budget runs around $2.7 billion.)

Of the state's 2 million-odd welfare recipients, about 15 per cent of them — or 335,000 — will have their relief budgets cut or eliminated as a result of the Social Security hike, said Cooper.

Cooper added that the state is obliged to make the cuts because of federal law.

Traditionally, a welfare grant is designed to bring a person's income up to what the state regards as a minimum level of need. When a recipient's outside income goes up, therefore, his grant is reduced accordingly. And since Social Security is regarded as income, any increase in benefits must be subtracted from the client's welfare grant — a move that invariably distresses OAS recipients, who feel that their standard of living is meager enough without having to be penalized for it.

In the last three years, they've seen three successive Social Security hikes wiped out by reductions in their old-age assistance grants. For those not on welfare, the three increases — 15 per cent in 1970, 10 per cent in 1971 and 20 per cent this year — will boost their Social Security checks by something like 50 per cent of their 1969 allotments.

The latest hike was signed into law by President Nixon earlier this month, after Congress made it impossible for him to veto without also killing an increase in the nation's debt ceiling. Nixon favored a boost closer to 10 per cent for economy reasons.

Senior-citizens' organizations have generally hailed the increase, and Rudolph Danstedt, an official of the National Council of Senior Citizens, said it will probably lift two million of five million older people out of poverty.

"It's a very important step," said Danstedt, "and the reaction we've been getting from old people is enthusiastic. They can hardly wait for the raise, although some are apprehen-

3 EXAMPLES SHOW HOW AID RECIPIENTS LOSE INCREASE

Welfare cases are seldom, if ever, identical. However, for illustrative purposes, here are three hypothetical cases offered by the Long Beach office of the Department of Public Social Services, that show how the 20 per cent Social Security increase will affect the grants of those on Old Age Security (OAS).

The first case concerns an elderly woman living by herself in a $75-a-month apartment. The woman receives $80 a month in widow's benefits under the Social Security Act. To supplement her pension, however, she gets $114 a month from the state in old-age assistance, thereby giving her a total of $194—the maximum to which she is entitled.

In September, when the Social Security increase becomes effective, her widow's benefits will increase from $80 to $96. But because her total income cannot exceed $194 under state regulations, her OAS grant must be reduced to $98.

The second case concerns a man and his wife who pay $110 a month in rent. Their combined Social Security check is $170.

The man also receives $63 a month in OAS benefits, while his wife receives $120. Their combined income from the two sources, then, is $353. Because the 20 per cent Social Security increase will boost their federal allotment to $204, their OAS payments will have to be reduced to $41 and $108, respectively.

Their total income, therefore, will be $353 — neither more nor less than they were getting before the Social Security increase took effect.

In the third case, a client receives $87.50 in Social Security benefits and $112.66 in a veteran's pension. They total $200.16 a month. But because the man is allowed a $7.50 exemption on his outside income (a factor applied in all cases), his income is figured at $193.

Since his income of $193 doesn't meet his computed need of $206, he's given $13 a month in old-age assistance to make up the difference.

When the Social Security increase becomes effective, however, his federal allotment will go from $87.50 to $105. He will still get his veteran's pension of $112.66. But his income will total $217, which, even if the $7.50 exemption is applied, will put him above his computed need of $206.

His OAS check will therefore be discontinued, and he will go off state aid entirely — although he may remain eligible for Medi-Cal benefits.

Scores of kids turn out for Huck Finn day

Scores of kids. Hundreds of them, in fact, swarming over game booths, obstacle courses, food vendors and each other.

Kids running, playing, eating, fishing, winning and losing, doing what they know best—mindless, harmless fun on a hot Saturday afternoon.

They were the estimated 3,000 participants in the second annual Huck Finn Day celebration in El Dorado Park and they certainly seemed to be having a good time.

Sponsored by the Long Beach Area Council of the Boy Scouts of America, the day-long event was attended by the young scouts and their families and friends, but that didn't stop other park visitors from joining in the spontaneous fun.

THE GOOD times were contagious.

There were the usual carnival games of skill—ring toss, tip the bottle, ball throw — all free. There was the Huck Finn fishing contest in the park's lagoon, stocked especially for the contest with buckets of small, wriggling fish. There was food for kids of all ages — ice cream cones, hot dogs, watermelon, soda pop.

And there were the kids, suitably dressed for the occasion in raggedy, patched hand-me-downs and floppy straw hats.

Entertainment for the Huck Finn event was provided by the "Sound of Youth" ensemble that drew a standing ovation for its upbeat style of singing and shouting.

THE ONLY thing visibly absent from Saturday's frolic was a lack of the accidents that usually occur when that many youngsters get together for that much fun. Except for one boy falling from his bicycle,

Not even stomach aches.

Mark finds a new life

By DENISE KUSEL
Staff Writer

"I guess if this had to happen to anyone in our family, I'm glad it happened to me because I can handle it," 18-year-old Mark Portner confided to his mother.

And he seems to be handling it very well.

It's been a little over a year since Mark broke his neck in a freak swimming accident. The blond, blue-eyed former St. Anthony's High School cheerleader was dozing on the beach the afternoon of July 5, 1971. His friends woke him when it was time to go and Mark went into the water to wash off the sand.

When he dived in, he misjudged the depth of the water in Los Alamitos Bay where he was swimming, his head struck bottom and the jolt snapped his neck.

"I never lost consciousness," Mark said, "but I never felt any physical pain either."

Mark seems like the type of guy who wouldn't complain about pain anyway.

He's courageous, friendly and feels good about life.

"Being confined to a wheelchair isn't all that bad," he said.

Mark is a quadriplegic, which means he does not have the use of either his arms or legs.

After the accident Mark underwent surgery at the Camp Pendleton Naval Hospital aimed at fusing the fifth and sixth vertebrae in his neck. The surgery included taking out a broken disc and replacing it with a piece of hip bone. Mark was paralyzed from the neck down and underwent three operations in two months.

He then spent a little over five months at Rancho Los Amigos in Downey. Rancho is a 1,000-bed county rehabilitation center treating everything from stroke and neurological disorders, to drug overdoses and spinal cord injuries. The hospital also offers a complete program of occupational and physical therapy.

"A typical day at Rancho? Well, it's a very long day," Mark said.

LBCC shows relevance of vocational education in technological society

By JOHN SHEEHAN
Staff Writer

Time was when vocational education was thought to be for the inept and the ne'er do well. A lot of parents and many students figured that vocational education was fine, but for someone else's kid.

No longer. Vocational preparation is today considered the most dynamic aspect of education, and America is taking a second look at career-oriented education.

For Long Beach City College, vocational preparation is an old story. A pacesetter among the growing ranks of the nation's community colleges, LBCC's primary role is education of the whole community. Vocational education — preparing the community's citizens for meaningful work — is one of the college's fundamental goals.

The curious rationale of Cold War one-upmanship convinced America that the country needed more scientists, more teachers, more professionals. The nation ignored the fact that many young people were neither interested nor suited to the white collar world of middle management.

Those educators and businessmen who spoke of vocational education as equally necessary were shouted down. Now, however, their voices are being heard in an economy where graduate degrees are a dime a dozen and too many job seekers are clearly overeducated.

Where Long Beach City College's chief function is responding to the community's needs, its vocational education program responds most directly and with the greatest impact to that need.

The program teaches usable skills, skills that the student can take to an employer immediately.

Vocational education at Long Beach City College is big business — and big budget. Forty per cent of

MY TOWN AND YOURS

THIS IS ABOUT admirals and three sister sirens, a building that moved and one that didn't.

Let's start with the sisters—Norma, Natalie and Constance Talmadge. They and the movies grew up together.

As a leggy high school freshman in Brooklyn she landed a job paying $25 a week at the Vitagraph Studio.

Even then she showed the spark that would shine in 200 silent films.

D. W. Griffith saw it. When he hired her for Hollywood in 1914 the Talmadge family went along . . .

NORMA STARRED in some of the top feature flickers — Secrets, Within the Law, Graustark, Kiki, Camille and The Passion Flower. She made only two talkies before she retired in 1932.

Passion Flower's mark

She carried her Passion Flower role over into her private affairs. In 1916 she married Joseph Schenck, the future boss of 20th Century-Fox, and divorced him in 1934 after a flaming public romance with George Jessel.

Norma made it legal with George two weeks later and that marriage lasted five years. Her last male was Dr. Carvel James. They lived quietly in Las Vegas until her death at age 60 in 1957.

The mourners at the private ceremony in Beverly Hills included Jessel, Gilbert Roland, Marion Davies, Mae Murray and dress stylist Orry Kelly.

The $3 million reckoned for her estate did not include real estate in California and Florida.

There'll be more about that. But meanwhile we can't leave Constance and Natalie Talmadge back there on the train bound for Hollywood and fame.

Natalie's day in the sun combined a brief film career with marriage to Buster Keaton. After a stormy divorce trial she won custody of their two children. In 1969 Natalie died at 70 in Santa Monica.

Constance had the touch for comedy, best known for the screen version of "Duley". If you want to know what Duley was like watch any Lucille Ball rerun.

But Constance did not take her wedding vows lightly. Her marriage to Michael Giblin, a stock broker, in 1939 ended only with his passing in 1964.

NOW IT'S TIME for a flashback. The scene retreats to the Long Beach of the late 20s, when Lionel V. Mayell pioneered in the field of own-your-own apartments. He built the Villa Riviera, based on the grand prize plan of the architect, Richard D. King, in an international contest.

Until the 50s, the Villa was the tallest private building in Southern California.

To clear the way for it the frame St. Anthony's apartment house at 802 E. Ocean was sawed in half for moving. You can see it today at 530 Alamitos Ave.

Joe Schenck was dazzled by more than the beauty of Norma Talmadge. She had a sharp mind for real estate. He recognized that when he gave her as a birthday present the highrise Talmadge Apartments at 3278 Wilshire Blvd.

Three years after their divorce, Norma and Joe bought in 1937 the Villa Riviera for $1.5 millions. She lived for a time in the penthouse.

Once occupied almost entirely by officers of the Pacific Fleet, the stately Villa in World War II was known as the Home of the Admirals.

Don't picture it as sedate.

An officer's wife recalls:

"There could be a party next door and you wouldn't hear a thing. What a place!"

Norma Talmadge would have understood.

McGovern's war plans

Sen. George McGovern's most notable effort to calm fears about his views came in his sudden shift on the prisoner of war question.

McGovern insists that no shift but merely a clarification was involved in his statement that American troops would remain in Thailand until all prisoners of war were back. Young McGovern followers did not perceive that statement as merely a clarification, however, and neither will most other people

McGovern explained that it doesn't contradict his earlier pledge to get all American troops out of Indochina for two reasons. First, the enemy can confidently be expected to return all the prisoners of war once U.S. troops are out of Vietnam. Second, Thailand is not part of Indochina.

The first reason could not be offered with perfect confidence by McGovern or anybody else, even if the North Vietnamese had made such a promise. The North Vietnamese have not. They have said no more than that the return of prisoners could be discussed once U.S. troops and planes were gone. If the North Vietnamese would be satisfied to have the troops and planes in Thailand, they have not said so.

If the first reason is weak, the second is incredible. In stating it, McGovern makes it clear that when he made his earlier promise he was telling the truth and absolutely nothing but the truth—but not quite what the ordinary person would regard as the whole truth. Thailand may not be part of Indochina in the senator's geography book, but it is in others. And it is, in any event, wonderfully convenient to Vietnam.

That is the point of stationing troops there. And the only rational further point of stationing troops there is to use them if necessary to get back American prisoners of war.

Since the North Vietnamese cannot be expected to travel to Thailand to contest the issue, there is no reasonable conclusion but that McGovern is prepared to resume the war in Vietnam if necessary.

Most Americans won't see anything wrong with that kind of show of force. But that is not the question. Americans became resentful of bombing that was disguised as "protective reaction raids." They were disturbed that President Johnson, after saying he had no plans to send American boys to do a job that Asian boys should do, stepped up American involvement in the war. They aren't likely to be pleased by the similar statement of a McGovern adviser that there are no plans to use the troops in Thailand to force the release of prisoners.

There have been similar assurances in the war before, and plans have been made suddenly after the assurances were given.

It was the exigencies of this war and not a flaw in character that created Lyndon Johnson's credibility gap. There are signs that McGovern would be subject to the same problem.

Everyone hopes that will not be the case if McGovern is elected. But the greatest hope that it would not be, judging from the senator's most recent statements, lies in the prospects for success of the peace talks now being resumed in Paris.

With a view to the future

The decision to locate the state university and college headquarters in Long Beach is welcome news for California taxpayers, for the university and college system and for Long Beach.

It provides the taxpayers at no cost with a magnificent tidelands site.

It provides the universities and colleges with a headquarters location in the state's population center. The location is convenient to Long Beach State University, the largest university in the system, and to other campuses as well. Nor is convenience the only virtue of the site. Just west of Queen's Way Bridge, the location is an extraordinarily attractive one that commands a view of the Queen Mary and the Long Beach Harbor.

The decision means that Long Beach will have a $5 million building that should be a proud addition to our city. In addition Long Beach will get a new payroll of more than $3 million a year.

Many persons worked hard to obtain the right decision before the matter was resolved by the state university trustees on Wednesday.

City officials made important contributions, of course. So did our legislative delegation, ably led in this matter by Sen. Joseph Kennick.

Long Beach can be expected to be a congenial home for the state university headquarters. Its staff members will make important contributions to our community. We can all look forward to welcoming them.

McGovern— no chance, as usual

MIAMI BEACH—Sen. George S. McGovern has won the Democratic presidential nomination, but he faces a rocky road in the months ahead. Beating President Richard M. Nixon wil be a man-sized job, calling for even greater political skill than underdog McGovern demonstrated in capturing his party's nomination.

The odds facing McGovern are formidable. The party he heads is bitterly divided. His opponents, both within the Democratic party and among Republicans, are characterizing him as a "can't win" candidate. The normal constituency of the Democratic party is going every which way. Big Labor has turned towards him a shoulder filled with ice cubes. Many Democratic businessmen view him with apprehension and consternation. Such political bosses as exist today in the Democratic party speak of him in language which cannot be quoted in a family newspaper. A good many Jews, normally important contributors to the Democratic party, look askance at his attitude toward Israel. A lot of Democrats regard him as "too radical," while some of his erstwhile intellectual supporters consider him "too pragmatic."

Walter T. Ridder

RIDDER NEWSPAPERS

Somehow McGovern must stitch together the rent fabric of the Democratic party. The problem is not insoluble. A similarly divided party left in varying degrees of high dudgeon the Democratic convention of 1948; yet its nominee, Harry S Truman, won in November. Truman had the infinite advantage of being an incumbent president —an advantage McGovern does not enjoy —but nonetheless he triumphed over what seemed at the time insuperable obstacles.

The role of apparent long shot is nothing new to McGovern. As a Democrat in South Dakota, he was automatically in the minority and all his election victories were won the hard way. When a year and a half ago he started his presidential campaign, the conventional political wisdom wrote him off as having no chance. No chance or not, he managed to put together an organization which won him the Democratic nomination on the first ballot.

Despite stories about the "new politics," McGovern won the nomination by application of "old politics." Using new faces. He simply made sure that his young adherents showed up in sufficient numbers at precinct and district caucuses and outvoted the others. There was no particular magic in the formula—just organization and hard work.

Winning the nomination and winning the general election are two different things, however. For his presidential try, McGovern cannot depend solely upon his own people. He must enlist the support of other persons and other organizations, and it is in this area that he faces his greatest challenge.

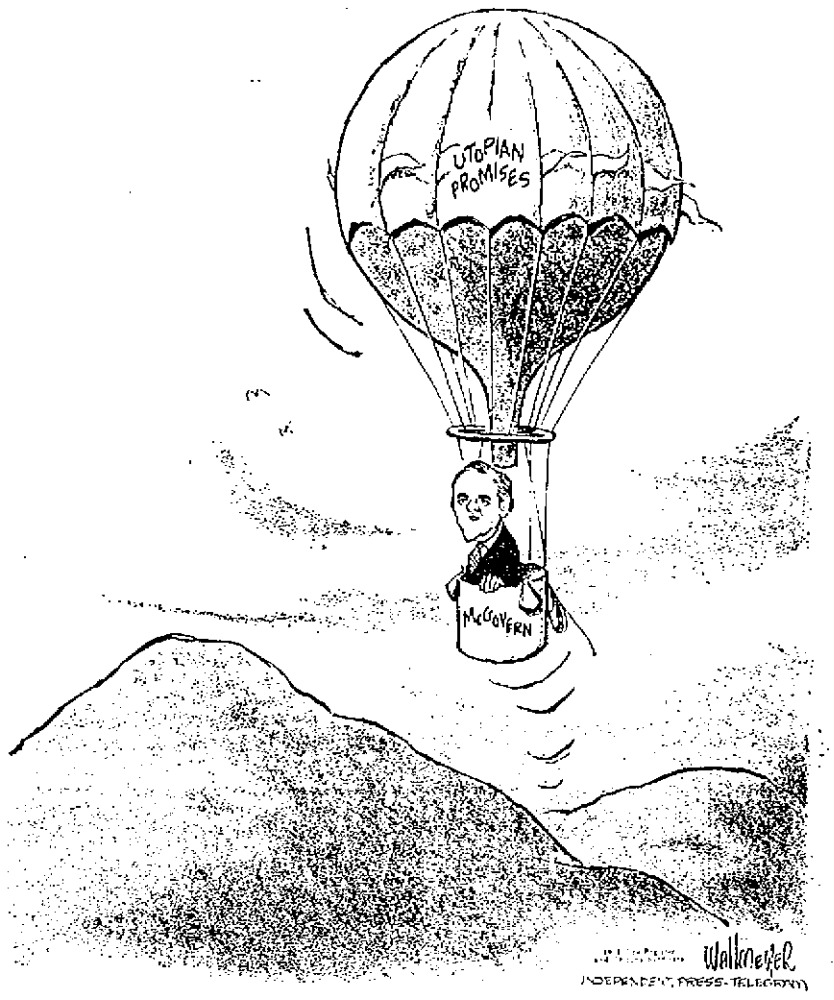

The Democratic convention ran smoothly and well. Emotions ran deep, but they never erupted above the surface. What McGovern needs to do is to convince the skeptical and the embittered in his own party that all is not lost and that with cooperation the party can win in the November test.

That is a tall order. It is unlikely, for instance, that Mayor Richard J. Daley of Chicago will forgive what he must consider as his convention humiliation.

Going for McGovern is the instinctive dislike of many Democrats for Nixon. He has a large cadre of devoted and hard-working young people, many of whom can be counted upon to labor mightily for their political Mohammed. He might have going for him the asserted discontent within the United States, a discontent which, it is said, has produced votes for both the so-called populist candidates, McGovern and Gov. George Wallace of Alabama.

The odds are indeed against McGovern. But in this crazy political year, anything can happen.

"THERE IS A NEW WIND RISING OVER THE LAND..."

Letters to the editor

For whose welfare?

EDITOR:

This is a small but disturbing thing.

Bob Houser reported about a delegate to the Democratic convention who was on welfare and gave her relief check to pay a portion of her convention expenses.

There must be many taxpayers in California who do not approve of welfare checks being used in this manner.

Long Beach G.S.M.

Ways to stop crime

EDITOR:

I have written many times on the subject of crime, and I still maintain a lot can be done.

Stop and visit a family with trouble, or call and see how they are getting along.

The police can help more with this problem today—not forever, I hope. Just until we can restore common sense among people again.

Life is really just a short span and really fun—when we are at peace with ourselves and hearts are happy.

Even people without money can have fun. You are free to walk into any church, police station or doctor's office and ask for help with your problem. The thing is to be smart enough to know this.

Don't let morbid people get you down—because that is what they want to do: get someone in trouble.

Lynwood MRS. MARIE THOMPSON

Don't praise Nixon

EDITOR:

I would like to direct my remarks to senior citizens. I will join you in the next year or two.

Do not pat President Nixon on the back because you will get a 20 per cent raise in Social Security, one which you should have had long ago. The only reason you will get it is that attached to the bill were a number of things the President wanted. He knew that if he didn't sign it, after its overwhelming support in both houses, he would not have gotten those things he wanted.

Secondly, if he brings our prisoners of war home and our other American troops home just before the November election or shortly after, don't thank him for that, either. He could have done that long before and could have ended this senseless war.

I am a registered Republican, and I have voted for a Democratic president only once in my life—and I have never missed voting at an election. That was for Franklin Roosevelt for his first term of office. This November I'm voting for George McGovern.

He won't be able to do all that he promises, either, but we need a change and at least he'll try. I'm beginning to understand why California didn't want Mr. Nixon as a governor.

Long Beach MRS. R.A.L.

Third party needed

Millions of moderate Democrats are sickened by the events at Miami and by the activists of the far left who have seized control of our party. These millions include some 52 per cent of the California voters who were left without representation at the convention and all of the voters of Illinois, whose representatives were thrown out and replaced by a junta that was hand-picked by 14 Chicago power brokers.

As Democrats, many of these dispossessed millions would not care to vote Republican. Instead, there should be a third group, a real Democratic party. Senator Jackson should be urged to form a progressive but moderate party to oppose George McGovern.

All Democrats who are unable to stomach a nominee who has promised to go on his knees to our enemies in Hanoi are urged to write to Jackson, George Meany, Mayor Daley and other moderate leaders and ask them to form a third party dedicated to saving the honor of the Democratic party.

Inglewood GEORGE H. SMITH

College board needed

EDITOR:

It is high time Long Beach City College joins the mainstream of higher education and realizes a separate board of trustees.

The college has a fully qualified, thoroughly competent administrative staff who are dedicated to the continued growth of education for the college-level students as well as those students from outlying areas who attend for special fields of study not available in their own districts.

I have worked with and around many of the administrative staff and know from a personal viewpoint I share with many coworkers that the aim of the administrators is to bring about an ever-improving program.

An impossible dream ends for an old campaigner

Miami Beach was Hubert Humphrey's Last Hurrah.

His defeat at the Democratic convention was the end of his presidential dream. He has had his eye on the White House since He came to the Senate in 1949.

"I'm going to be President someday," he told friends with startling candor, and they smiled tolerantly at the brash young freshman senator.

He came within 1 per cent of reaching his goal in 1968. For weeks afterward, he tormented himself with thoughts of all the little mistakes that had cost him the presidency.

But in 1972 the Happy Warrior was back on the campaign trail. The crucial test came in the California primary, which he lost to George McGovern by a narrow margin.

Next day, Humphrey caught a plane to Houston for a breakfast with Democratic governors. On the plane he talked with his lieutenants about pulling out of the race.

In Houston, all the governors except Wisconsin's Patrick Lucey urged him to stay in. Still undecided, Humphrey tried to reach AFL-CIO President George Meany. The 77-year-old labor lord was sailing home from Europe aboard the Queen Elizabeth II.

In a shore-to-ship telephone conversation, Humphrey explained his indecision and Meany urged him to keep fighting. The AFL-CIO chief promised to throw the full weight of his labor organization behind Humphrey.

The end of Humphrey's dream came on the opening night of the convention when

by

he lost the decisive California credentials fight by 11 votes.

Once again, it was close. But the old campaigner was left with nothing but the taste of defeat in his mouth. Next morning he got up apparently as chipper as ever. He had a jovial greeting for his staff.

"The trouble with you fellows," he beamed, "is that you're pessimists. You're not realistic — as I am. I've had a good night's sleep. And my mind is now clear. All we've got to do is switch a few votes."

Then, with only a slight trace of bitterness, he went down the list of McGovern supporters who owed him political allegiance. He mentioned the Rev. Jesse Jackson, the District of Columbia's Rep. Walter Fauntroy, auto workers' boss Leonard Woodcock and others.

After each name, he kept repeating: "We should be able to win him over. That shouldn't be hard."

But they were all solid McGovern men and the bitterness in Humphrey's voice became harder.

Finally, he shrugged it off, laughed cheerfully and began preparing his withdrawal statement.

TWO GRAYING KNIGHTS from the golden Camelot days of the Kennedy administration put their friendship on the line to reconcile the bitterly warring rivals, George McGovern and Henry Jackson.

The two veteran Kennedy aides, ex-press secretary Pierre Salinger and his former top associate, Andrew Hatcher, bumped into each other in front of the sweating California delegation on the convention floor.

It was an emotional meeting. They had been good friends since 1948, when they battled shoulder to shoulder as young campaign workers for Harry Truman.

During ensuing years, they worked for the same liberal causes and candidates—and, by their choice, they were sworn in together as White House aides on the same day.

Indeed, after more than three years of working, drinking and laughing together, they quit Lyndon Johnson together, also on the same day in March 1964. Hatcher went on to run Salinger's successful primary campaign for the Senate in 1964.

But now, in 1972, they had taken separate paths.

Salinger, along with so many former Kennedy troopers, had gone with McGovern. Hatcher, from personal friendships and ties with the West, had thrown in his lot with Scoop Jackson.

Salinger and Hatcher, nevertheless, fell easily into banter about old friends from their California days.

After a moment, the outspoken Salinger leaned toward Hatcher and whispered: "Is your man going to join us for a victory photograph?"

Hatcher grabbed at the waving olive branch. "I think he will," he said, "and I'd like to help arrange it.

"That's fine, Andy. Now what terms are you thinking about?"

Hatcher waffled for Salinger to suggest what step McGovern would take to heal the breach. Salinger mused a moment, then said: "What about Scoop being a major member of our defense advisory committee? That way he'd be sure to have his views represented with George."

"Looks good to me," grinned Hatcher, pressing his hand. "I'll test it with Scoop."

THE DEMOCRATIC party brought all its fears of bugging down with it from Washington, where housebreakers were caught red-handed in Democratic headquarters with eavesdropping gear.

Harrassed Southern Bell officials were called in a half dozen times by prominent Democrats who thought rival Republicans were bugging them.

One of the complaints came directly from the National Committee itself. The telephone company sleuths found a few routine clicks and buzzes, but no bugs or taps on any of the telephones.

"Doesn't it seem rather strange that you're for McGovern and I'm for Nixon?"

Groundwork for reading

Deep in the jungles of the Amazon there are Stone Age tribes such as the Kingu, Caraja and Kalapalo — among the most primitive people known. They do not use metal. They have no writing or numbering system. They do not even have floors in their large, primitive huts.

To Carl Delacato and Glenn Doman, this absence of floors was of great theoretical importance. Babies, in order to achieve full neurological development, must learn to crawl before they learn to walk. If, because of snakes or insects or other dangers, children are not permitted to crawl, they will grow up underdeveloped. Delacato and Doman decided to go and investigate these tribes for themselves.

Samuel I. Hayakawa

Dr. Delacato tells what happened in "A New Start for the Child with Reading Problems" (David McKay, Inc., $5.95). "We searched everywhere for babies on the ground, but could find none. At each village we offered to pay mothers to place their up-to-18-month-old babies on the ground, but they refused."

But the observations made by Delacato and Doman richly confirmed their theories. "We tested many children of all ages for general neurological fitness and we found that, as a group, they were seriously lacking in nervous system development. We found that they had difficulty in using their two eyes together; their creeping was extremely awkward, and very few of the group had developed sidedness (a dominant hand, eye or foot).

"THEY DID NOT pass our tests for the development of the nervous system; in fact most of them performed as poorly on our tests as did . . . American children with reading problems."

In short, the human brain and nervous system develop through use. "These children could see well, because they shot birds out of trees, and fish under water with their bows and arrows, but they did not perceive as we do. Testing their ability to recognize symbols, we would place a fish on the ground and next to it we would draw a picture of a fish. They could see no relationship between the two....

"It would be impossible to teach them to read, we knew, until they had developed the brain capacity to deal with symbols, which, of course, is written language. We theorized that the constant carrying of children had deprived them of the opportunity to crawl and creep, stunting the development of the nervous system."

A BABY HAS TO learn to see. As he learns to crawl and coordinate his hand with the opposite knee, he also has his head up from the floor and learns to use both eyes together no longer taking in the world one eye at a time. He learns to fuse into one image the separate images coming into each eye. He also takes no sounds from both ears and learns to fuse them together.

By the time a baby is two, he develops sidedness—one hand, one foot, one eye becomes dominant. Curiously, man alone of all creatures has this sidedness— and man alone has language and speech. The two facts are not unconnected:

"If the left half of the brain becomes dominant, the child becomes right handed . . . The dominant half of the brain becomes the language center. Here is where reading, writing, talking, and the learning of language are controlled. Here is where reading and the decoding of speech take place, as well as the storage of language. If one of the halves does not become dominant, then the brain is not completely developed and a problem with reading usually results."

THE METHOD OF treatment based on the foregoing theories has come to be known as the Doman-Delacato "patterning method" and it consists of putting the child through the stages of development he has missed or not completed. This method involves having other children creep and crawl as if they were babies, learning all sorts of games and activities that bring into coordinated interplay feeling, sight, sound and motor activity. The principal center at which the method is taught and used is the Institutes for the Achievement of Human Potential in Philadelphia, of which Glenn Doman is director and where he and Dr. Delacato have worked together for almost 20 years.

The Doman-Delacato method has been under attack from both medical and educational sources.

But the book is rich with suggestions for parents for home therapy, as well as fascinating case histories of individual children. One thing I have found most welcome in both Delacato's writings and Doman's is their willingness to explain things simply, clearly, and without scientific or education jargon to muddy the exposition. In short, it's good reading.

Cerebral music loses a rich champion

By DONAL HENAHAN

IF IBM should announce tomorrow that it had nothing, really, against computers but that in the future it would concentrate on producing hand-lettered volumes of modern poetry, eyebrows would raise. But hardly more than they are certain to lift in contemporary music circles over some recent decisions by Paul Fromm, founder and president of the Fromm Music Foundation.

Fromm, the Chicago wine importer whose foundation celebrated its 20th anniversary in April, is certainly one of the half dozen most influential private patrons of music in the world. And at age 65 he has chosen to put his foundation on a drastically new course, steering it away from what he calls "hard-core serialism" and composers who concern themselves obsessively with theory and technology. Fromm has, in fact, withdrawn support from his famously cerebral Perspectives of New Music, the composers' journal that Princeton University published for the foundation for the last 10 years. He also is moving the foundation's base of operations out of the Princeton sphere, to Harvard. In new-music circles, this is like moving the papacy from Rome to Avignon.

IN 20 YEARS, the Bavarian-born merchant has decanted untold quantities of money into the pockets of composers and performers. At the moment, the list of Fromm-commissioned works runs to 96, and there is no end in view. For Fromm is not a fly-by-night patron. He is a loving connoisseur of new music and stands in awe of genuine creative talent. Although only an amateur himself, he is steeped in music (his brother Herbert is a composer), and his fascination with composers goes back to his days in Germany where youngsters such as Bartok, Schoenberg and Stravinsky were trying to get a foot in the door. Like many another of his generation, he was bowled over by his first hearing of "The Rite of Spring." That was in Frankfurt in 1927, and "it made a 20th-century man of me," he says. Since coming to this country as a refugee from the Nazis in 1938, he has continued his love affair with new music.

So, in view of the foundation's 20th anniversary and the approach (next month) of another of the Tanglewood festivals of new music that the foundation has sponsored in conjunction with the Berkshire Music Center for 10 years, a talk with Fromm seemed indicated.

AND FROMM WAS in a mood to talk quite freely about his new directions. "I decided on the Harvard association last September when I reached the age of 65. I had come to feel the foundation could no longer be dependent on one individual, that the time had come to end the era in which the foundation was simply an extension of myself." Under the new arrangement, a committee of three will run the Fromm program: A. Tillman Merrit, the former chairman of Harvard's music department; Gunther Schuller, the composer and president of the New England Conservatory; and Fromm himself.

The shift to Harvard represents an apparent switch in Fromm's esthetic outlook, since it means moving out of the direct influence of the hypertheoretical group that coalesced around the Princeton Seminars into a more traditional milieu. "Actually, I've always been a traditionalist," Fromm says, "and I haven't changed my attitudes as much in the last 25 years as most composers have."

Fromm has no intention of disparaging theorists and system builders. "I would not care to belittle that kind of exercise of the intellect. But it does tend to ignore the element of musical imagination. As (Edgard) Varese said, if every note has to be explained or can be explained, it's no longer music. At Princeton you have some profound minds but what they develop is a mode of discourse among specialists. Their overriding concern is with materials, not any longer with communicative art." Fromm no longer believes, as he once firmly did, that the university is the best place for composers. "After 20 years I have come to realize that the function of the university is to impart knowledge —but what cannot be taught is an artist's consciousness of the unknown. What the Princeton group does, you really CAN teach—the stringing of notes together." And that, Fromm insists, is a limited part of what we should ask of a composer.

LOOKING BACK at his 20 years as the Maecenas of the academic avant-garde, Fromm contends that "we as listeners were confused by the multiplicity of styles—electronic, chance, serialism, and so on. But we have come to the point now where a number of composers are appearing who are again concerned with making music for people who want to listen to music."

Fromm, though he insists he is a traditionalist, is anything but a reactionary in outlook or temperament. When the Boston Symphony presents its Fromm Foundation anniversary concert on Aug. 4, for instance, the program will include the latest Fromm commission, Charles Wuorinen's concerto for amplified violin and orchestra, with Paul Sukofsky as soloist. The solo instrument, designed by a Boston Symphony violinist, may or may not work out, but in theory it doesn't bother Fromm a bit. "People used to think it was immoral to use an amplified guitar, but no instrument is intrinsically bad or good. A Stradivari can't compose or play music—for that you need a composer and a performer." Fromm does believe, though, that creating a split between electronic instruments and traditional ones, including the voice, can result in very little good music. He is, you might say, a hard-core humanist in this respect.

Fromm does not shrink from admitting that the foundation has fallen short of some of its goals. "There is one big issue on which we have failed, and that is how to integrate the music written after 1910 with the standard repertory. I think Pierre Boulez approaches the problem in a much more creative way than we have done—by juxtaposing music of past and present and by profiling certain composers. Last season at the New York Philharmonic, Liszt and Berg, next season Haydn and Stravinsky."

UNDER ITS NEW Harvard tent, the foundation will continue most of its familiar projects—special concerts honoring respected but neglected composers, commissions, programs by the Fromm Players at Tanglewood, seminars, the annual Tanglewood Festival of Contemporary Music, and so on. And, in place of Perspectives of New Music, which was published twice a year, an annual journal that will, in Fromm's words, "stress creative and esthetic aspects of composing rather than the technological." The new magazine will be "concerned with music as an art, not a science, and to keep it from being dominated by any one faction each issue will have a different editor."

Those composers who contend that no audience can possibly be expected to understand their music because it is too mathematically or technologically advanced will be viewed with suspicion. Fromm's fear is that without an active audience "music as a communicative art will atrophy. It will be in danger of becoming a self-indulgent exercise for composers who seek to replace musical creativity with the kinds of scientific investigations that are better left to acoustical engineers, physicists and mathematicians.

L.A.C. Says By L.A. COLLINS SR.

Tax reform but no tax reduction

The nonpartisan tax reform bill sponsored by Governor Reagan and Democratic Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti may not be passed this year. It would provide property tax reductions for 95 per cent of property owners. But it would add these savings to state taxes to be increased for all the people in the state. Total taxes would be increased rather than decreased.

It may not be passed this year because the legislature is planning to end this year's session by the end of July. It will take a two-thirds vote in both the Assembly and Senate to enact the change. It is probable the compromise bill will be passed by the Assembly, but there are doubts the Senate will do so.

THE BILL PROVIDES for the state to collect and spend $1.12 billion to provide tax relief for homeowners and renters in next years budget, and to provide additional funds for public schools. The money would come from a 20 per cent increase in state sales, personal income, bank, corporation, and motor vehicle taxes.

The property tax relief would be about $450 million for home owners in the current fiscal year. This would be based on exempting the first $1,750 of assessed valuation, an increase of $1,000. This would mean a property tax saving of about $120 a year on a $20,000 home assessed at $5,000. Higher valued homes would receive about the same tax savings.

Renters would receive about a third as much in rebates from the state on their income taxes. If they do not pay income taxes they would get a cash payment. These are factors that will be widely supported by the property owner and renters. But they should consider the fact that they will be paying to the state in other taxes as much or more than will be saved under the lower property tax reduction.

THE SALES TAXES are actually hidden taxes since they are added to the price paid for purchases in stores. But the families in lower income brackets pay out a larger portion of their incomes for such purchases than do the higher income groups. The home owners will be paying higher taxes for state vehicle sales and other taxes which may equal the savings on property taxes. As an example, people on welfare would be given $24 a year increase to cover such taxes. They do not pay income taxes.

It is hoped that federal tax sharing will be passed by Congress to return some of the money we pay to it, to be used for relief in the state, cities and counties and schools. This is doubtful since the federal government is now paying out more money than it receives, the deficit being added to the national debt.

The property tax is the one tax that has to be paid regardless of your income and at certain dates. It is a real burden for the retired people on fixed and smaller incomes. It has the largest number of people who feel the direct impact of a tax. There should be some limitation on the amount that must be paid. But it is unrealistic to disregard the fact that it is largely only a switching of the total taxes you must pay.

ONE REASON the legislature may pass the reform bill before the end of the session is that such action might cause failure of the Watson initiative to limit property taxes to $7 for each $100 of assessed valuation. It will be on the November ballot. It also calls for many increases in other taxes similar to that of the legislation now under consideration.

Neither plan gives any real total tax relief.

Paramount school financing clouded

By MIKE JELF
Staff Writer

The Paramount Unified School District has problems. Like most districts in southeast Los Angeles County, it's locked into a financial straight jacket woven of rising costs and a loss of state money caused by declining enrollment.

To make matters worse, the district's tax rate is one of the lowest in the county, and the people in charge of the district see hope of raising it.

AKIRA KITANO
New President

Winning a tax override election is "almost impossible," says the board's new president, Akira Kitano.

He notes that attempts to increase the tax rate failed in 1968 and 1970.

Kitano, a board member for three years, is a nursery owner, and a genial man of unfailing optimism.

We really hit bottom (of financial problems) about 1968 or 1969, but we've come around now," he says. "I'm really optimistic."

He gives credit for an improved educational program to the two-year old administration of Superintendent Palmer Campen, which has run the schools "very economically. Our staff is putting in about 150 per cent."

Kitano hopes to see a major reform of California school financing in two or three years, and thinks the district can hold out that long without cutting back its program.

The board's other newly-elected officer, Vice President Ethel Hillyard, echoes Kitano's praise of Campen's administration.

"I think we have a very capable administration. Dr. Campen has done very well at getting this district back on its feet. I think the district is on the way up."

However, not everyone is happy with Dr. Campen's two year record as superintendent. Part of his economy drive involved closing three elementary schools.

Two persons on Paramount's five member board were elected a year ago on a "let's reopen the schools" platform. Joe Hammond, a manufacturing plant lead man, and Sandra Paisley, a former schoolteacher, are often a minority voting against administration proposals.

Mrs. Hillyard, Kitano, and dentist David Romberg usually support the administration.

Mrs. Paisley, a teacher in the Los Angeles District for 13 years, retired this year to become executive director of the Classroom Teachers' Association, the local arm of the California Teachers' Association.

Her performance on the school board has been marked by an inclination to ask hard questions about administration practices. Sometimes she'll investigate obscure items on the board agenda which other board members overlook ("Often the administration only lets board members know what they want them to know, she says).

Mrs. Paisley says the board members and admintstration should admit it when a new idea has failed, and not perpetuate the failure.

Specifically, she thinks the closed schools should be reopened. "More problems were created by the closing of schools in Paramount than were solved," she says. "Very little was really cut there."

She would also like "to see a little more stability . . . We've had a great many shifts in organizational patterns of the schools."

However, she does like the district's use of federal grants to ease its financial burden, as with its federally funded vocational education program.

Federal funds, in fact, are an area where Mrs. Paisley, Mrs. Hillyard, and Kitano have a meeting of the minds.

Mrs. Hillyard credits federal money, along with good administration, with helping the district make a comeback from its financial low point.

Kitano would "like to see more federal programs." While some may object to federal aid, he says, the money will be spent somewhere, and it might as well be spent in Paramount.

The Paramount district wasn't always in the position of depending on federal grants. When it formed in 1953, it adopted one of the higher tax rates in the county.

Today, its basic school tax rate ranks 34th among the county's 42 unified districts.

The rate has remained basically unchanged all that time. However, costs have continued to rise and other districts have increased their tax rates.

Paramount's tax rate this year, including "permissive overrides" the board can levy for specified purposes, such as educating mentally handicapped children, was $4.004 per $100 assessed valuation.

The coming year's rate will probably be about the same.

The result is not only pressure from inflation, but less money from the state. California distributes money to school districts by a complex formula designed to help equalize the amount of money each district gets.

However, the state system allots less money to districts with rising assessed valuation, like Paramount, on the assumption these districts can raise money locally.

"Compared to many districts," Dr. Campen says, "we come out with water in our canoe.'

If that weren't bad enough, Paramount has a declining enrollment, which results in the loss of more state money.

While there are fewer students to teach, the district has just as many schools, teachers, and facilities to support.

More than a thousand students went to school in the Paramount district in 1969. This year the district had 9,300 pupils. Mrs Hillyard says the enrollment will be down 200 to 300 the coming year.

Dr. Campen predicts "we can operate another year" without going into the red, but after that the picture is uncertain unless the state school financing is reformed.

He concedes a statewide, uniform system of school finance would mean some loss of local control over schools, but "those that are poor don't have any control anyway."

ETHEL HILLYARD

As it is now, he says, administrators can control only 12 to 15 per cent of the Paramount budget, because of the large share that goes to salaries and state-required programs.

To give a picture of where Paramount lies in relation to other districts, he cites county figures which show its administrative cost 33rd among the county's 42 unified districts. In amount spent per child, the district ranks 32nd, at $734.

The only hope Paramount school leaders see for the future is a complete overhaul of state school financing.

Much of this hope rides on Serrano V. Priest, a case decided by the California Supreme Court which is now on appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court.

This was a class action law suit brought by the Western Center on Law and Poverty against State Treasurer Ivy Baker Priest.

The California court ruled the present system unconstitutional because it discriminates against children in low-wealth districts. Under the present system, their parents pay a higher tax rate to get an inferior education.

In the meantime, as Mrs. Paisley says, in a notable moment of agreement with Dr. Campen, "we're just holding our heads above water."

Space technology returns to earth

Last week, the general aviation division of North American Rockwell Corp unveiled a new single-engine version of their Aero Commander line of aircraft in Long Beach.

Simultaneously, they pulled the concealing shrouds from the Apollo 14 command capsule in the hangar of Sky Mart, Inc., 2825 E. Spring St, the local Aero Commander dealer. The idea was to illustrate the relationship of the one North American Rockwell product to the other.

The connection was explained by Long Beach engineer Mike Vucelic, a former aircraft designer and 10-year veteran of the Apollo program at North American Rockwell's Space Division in Downey.

"You may remember we had a problem with one of the Saturn V rocket stages on Apollo 6," he recalled. "It was fixed by Space Division aerodynamicists. Theri names were Bud Benner, R. I. Nicholas, Joe Stevenson and Harry Sweet."

Vucelic pointed to the airplane standing behind him, still in its plastic shroud.

"Like all new aircraft, this Aero Commander Model 112 developed a problem in the design stage," he said. "It was solved by aerodynamicists borrowed from the Space Division. Their names were Benner, Nicholas, Stevenson and Sweet."

Other parallels in the space-aviation relationship cited by the director of Apollo program experiements included rigid honeycomb flooring, "first time in light aircraft," automatic check valves for fuel loading and a lightning arrester system for the fuel tanks on the Model 112 Aero Commander.

"As you know, we had lightning strikes on several Apollo missions.

National Surf Life Saving Association holds first convention in Long Beach

The men who save lives of swimmers in the oceans of the world assembled at Huntington Beach Saturday for the first annual convention of the newly-organized National Surf Life Saving Association.

Delegates met for dinner at the Sheraton Inn at call of Phil Stubbs of San Clemente, president of the U.S. branch of the association, who explained that the initial World Lifesaving Council will seek to advance lifesaving techniques and arrange for international educational exchange programs.

He said that the association is convinced that better lifeguard protection and service to the people can result.

A tour of the Huntington Beach marine safety operations is scheduled for this morning. Delegates will have a free afternoon to go swimming at the city's world-famous strand if they like.

Business sessions begin Monday for three days, featuring workshops on various lifesaving procedures and on aspects of para-medical first aid, such as cardiopulmonary resuscitation.

Workshops on resuscitation and closed-chest heart massage will be taught by Professor Gordon A. Harrison of Sydney, Austalia, and Dr. Verne L. Brechner of UCLA.

The symposiums and meetings will be conducted by Kevin E. Weldon of Australia, president of the world-wide association.

LBCC course designed to give saleable skills the college's faculty is involved in the operation and more than half the 20,000 students are in technical, trade and industrial programs. Another third is involved in business and health-oriented occupational preparation.

"Our program has specific goals," says Cal Farmer, head of the college's career planning and placement office. "Vocational education is concerned with giving our students saleable skills so that they can become productive right now."

But that's not all that vocational education provides, says Farmer.

"Vocational education gives motivation," he says. "It gives the student dignity, a feeling of self-worth. If a guy or a gal is working, there's no one and nothing that can take away that feeling of self-esteem.

"And that's what it's all about, isn't it?"

What it's all about at Long Beach City College is jobs — jobs in the aerospace industry, in electronics, food management, auto repair, every trade and technical field imaginable. The courses last anywhere from three weeks for instruction in how to be a capable waitress to more than two years for airframe mechanics.

And none of the instruction is wasted, says Farmer. There are immediate openings for almost every vocational graduate.

"Long Beach is a big market for employment," says Farmer, "and it's going to get bigger. The picture for the next decade is first of all in retail trade, then services, then either manufacturing or civil service.

On the subject of occupational training and placement for blacks and Chicanos Farmer is equally candid. The future never looked better.

"What resistance there was," he snaps, "and we got some a few years ago, has virtually disappeared. Minority students who have a skill to offer an employer are being snatched up just as quickly as whites. Even quicker, sometimes. It's all a matter of being prepared."

A recent Department of Labor study predicted that eight out of 10 jobs in the next decade will not require a college degree. They will, however, require some level of preparation.

For Merle Schwartz's electronic students at the Business and Technology Campus on Pacific Coast Highway, this prediction has come true today.

Schwartz, head of the department, says that the job outlook for his graduates is indeed bright.

"They've had no problem finding work," says Schwartz. "And what's just as important, they're going to work in this area. If any of them have relocated, it wasn't because the jobs weren't here, in this region, right now."

Schwartz' department is, like every other occupational field at LBCC, industry-oriented, responding to the needs of the job marketplace. He feels that it has to be this way, that LBCC's success has been because it could predict, and thus prepare, students for the jobs of tomorrow.

"Fifteen years ago," he cites, "90 per cent of our electronics students were concentrating on television. That's where the jobs were.

"Then everyone began turning to aerospace, but with the market there tight and even diminishing, a lot of our students are turning back to television."

Schwartz feels no vocational student is overtrained or has too many qualifications once he goes looking for a job.

"The more training," he says, "the better for both the student and the employer. Industry will pay plenty for the man who's on the ball. We try to give our students as complete and thorough an education in their chosen field as possible."

Testimony to the quality of LBCC's vocational preparation is Schwartz' anecdote about the 1957 graduate, now a plant manager, who last year came back to Long Beach City College to hire six new electronics graduates. "And he says he'll be back for more," grins Schwartz.

One feature of LBCC's vocational program, and one reason for its popularity, is its open-ended approach to education. Students may enroll in a specific course of instruction that teaches a subject in all its aspects. Or they may enroll in a program such as the Adult Learning Center which allows a student to study what he wants at his own pace.

The center is broken down into three areas, teaching math, reading, spelling and grammar at one level, industrial techniques at a second level and English as a second language at the third.

There seems to be something for everyone in LBCC's vocational program.

That's why the students enroll. For some, it's either vocational education — or nothing at all.

For Dick Olson, it's a question of relevance.

"I'm not here for a degree," says the 30-year-old Navy veteran. "I'm here to learn something. A liberal arts education prepares you for nothing.

"This is the age of specialization."

Olson has little doubt from the vocational program that once he graduates that he'll be able to find a worthwhile job at good pay. He already has electronics training; now he wants to learn how to work with sheet metal.

"I have no qualms about graduating and being able to find a job. When I'm ready, I'll be able to make $4 to $6 an hour making everything from refrigeration ducts to construction material.

"For me," he continues, "vocational education means being prepared to DO something, to be able to go out and work with your hands. It means being able to build things and be proud of it!"

Job satisfaction is indeed one of the reasons so many students are turning to vocational trades and occupations these days.

Farmer summed it up best when he echoed Olson's 'do something' justification. "These students go into the shops and they can see the fruit of their labor.

'For them, that's the payoff—producing. And I guess that's the payoff for all of us."

New Norwalk sheriff station dedication set

Many law enforcement officials will be on hand to dedicate the new $1.4 million sheriff's station in the Norwalk Civic Center Monday at 10:30 a.m.

The one-story structure at 12375 Leffingwell Rd. will serve the cities of Norwalk, Santa Fe Springs, Pico Rivera, La Mirada and nearby unincorporated areas.

Superior Court Judge Vincent Dalsimer will serve as master of ceremonies for the dedication which will include remarks by Supervisor Pete Schabarum, District Attorney Joseph Busch, Norwalk Mayor R. F. Valdez and Sheriff Peter Pitchess.

The 32,567-square-foot structure will house detention, patrol, narcotics investigation, community relations and administrative facilities for 253 personnel under the command of Capt. Fred Gustin.

The station also will be responsible for a 5-square-mile area with a population of 284,000 citizens. It replaces the station at 11801 Firestone Blvd., which had served the area since 1948.

Latest SS increase raises checks 50% over '69 amount sive that their rents will be raised by cynical landlords," he added.

The 20 per cent increase will raise the average monthly benefit for a retired worker from $134 to $162 in the Long Beach area. For a retired couple, the average benefit check will rise from $224 to about $270, while a widowed mother with two children will receive an average Social Security benefit of $365 compared to the $322 she gets now. The most a retired individual will be able to get under the new schedule will be $321.84, compared to the present high of $268.20. The low will be adjusted from $70.40 to $84.48.

For a couple, the new maximums will be $482.76, compared to the current high of $402.30. The minimum will go from $105 to $126.

The boost, which becomes effective in September, will be reflected in the checks that arrive in the mail Oct. 3, according to Sumio Oto, manager of the Long Beach district office of the Social Security Administration. No one need apply for the increase, he said.

In Long Beach, said Oto, 64,990 persons will benefit directly from the increase, while, for the Long Beach district as a whole, the beneficiaries will number 111,134.

The district takes in — in addition to Long Beach, Lakewood, Signal Hill, Bellflower, San Pedro, Wilmington, Hawaiian Gardens, Los Alamitos, Paramount, Seal Beach, Sunset Beach, Surfside and Avalon, an area with a population of 732,000.

Oto estimated that one out of every seven persons in the area will receive a share of the district's $2.6-million monthly increase — an increment that will boost the monthly outflow of Social Security funds in the district to $16 million. For the first time in the history of Social Security, benefits will also be tied to the cost of living. Every time the price index advances 3 per cent or more, the benefits will be adjusted accordingly.

The amendment also adjusts the maximum earnings base for payroll tax purposes.

The maximum-earnings base is the level at which the scale of Social Security taxes reaches its ceiling. The base is now $9,000 — which means, in effect, that a person can earn anything above $9,000 and still pay the maximum Social Security tax. Given the maximum earnings base, for example, a person making $50,000 would pay the same tax as someone earning $9,000. Below $9,000, the tax is computed on a sliding scale.

In 1973, the maximum earnings base will be adjusted to $10,800 "to keep pace with rising wages," said Oto. In 1974, it will rise to $12,000.

Mark grateful to friends

"In my particular case, I'd start out with instruction in handwriting. I had to learn how to write all over again. It was almost like starting from kindergarten.

"In physical therapy I learned to roll over and just move around without walking. I guess you can say I learned all the things I needed to know in order to lead a normal life.

"I'm pretty independent and mobile," he added, "and I attribute that to all the training I had at Rancho."

A good part of Mark's mobility is centered in a 1969 brown Chevy Malibu with special handcontrols.

"It cost about $130 to adapt the car with special controls," Mark said. "It's a big thing having a car. It makes life a lot easier. I can get around on my own and don't have to rely on people to do things for me. It gives me a good feeling."

Mark's mother, Mrs. Mary Kay Portner, explained that it used to take Mark almost a half hour to get in and out of the car with his wheelchair — a feat he now has down to five minutes flat.

"First he pulls himself into the car with his arms and then reaches over and folds his wheelchair. Then he moves his body over to the passenger seat, swings the chair into the backseat of the car and then moves back behind the wheel" she said.

"The gas and brake control is in the form of a leaver that moves up and down by arm pressure as does the steering mechanism which is mounted onto the regular steering wheel."

The Portner house on Carroll Park East is people oriented — with 11 kids in the family it would have to be.

The dining room table was handmade by Eugene Portner, a retired Naval Commander who was once selected as the Independent, Press-Telegram "Father of the Year."

Bicycles and skates and other wheeled toys are on the porch steps.

A 20-foot ramp leads to a new bedroom on the side of the house which the Portners added for Mark with help they received through numerous fund raising drives held by people in the community.

The room is equipped with a specially designed shower unit, lowered closets to aid Mark in reaching things by himself, and a hospital bed with stainless steel bars so Mark can get in and out of bed by himself.

"The room really helped contribute to Mark's happiness and feeling of well-being," Mrs. Portner explained. "We're so fortunate and so very grateful for all the help the sincere concern people have given us."

Mark, who will enter the University of California in the fall, also attributes much of his happiness to his friends.

"For more than four months my friends came to visit me every day in the hospital. And now we go a lot of places together. There's always something happening. You know, there's really nothing I can't do now that I couldn't do before — with the exception of swimming."

That exception will soon become the rule for Mark. He is taking swimming lessons at the California Pool for the Handicapped in North Long Beach.

The pool is operated by Evelyn DuPont, a former swimming star, who became interested in working with the handicapped after she was stricken with polio.

Mrs. DuPont taught herself first how to swim and then re-learned the painful ordeal of walking. Then she opened up her backyard pool to others in order to help them, often "adopting" young children with physical handicaps into her home after her own children were grown. But that's another story of how courage outwitted defeat.

Decline in court case filings blamed on police slowdown

By VINT MADER
Staff Writer

A decrease of 9.58 per cent in Long Beach Municipal Court case filings for the fiscal year ended June 30 "was due primarily to the Long Beach Police Department 'slowdown'" of last July, according to the annual report of Robert N. Hovard, court clerk.

Total court revenues dropped $251,169 from $3,792,235 in the 1970-71 year to $3,541,066, a decrease of 6.6 per cent, Hovard says in the report released this week. However, he attributes some of the revenues drop to "an unusually high amount of uncollected revenue" resulting from times judges have allowed defendants for payment of fines, in conformance with appeal court rulings.

Hovard notes that the drop in total cases is "the first decrease in filings in over 12 years," with the total falling 32,316 to 337,337 from the 1970-71 total of 369,653.

THE police department slowdown came in a dispute over pay issues with the City Council and administration.

All categories of Municipal Court cases showed decreases, except small claim, which rose 650 to 6,952 compared with 6,312 in the year before.

A major drop in felony filings from 2,256 in 1970-71 to 1,358 reflects a state Supreme Court ruling and a new police of the district attorney's office under which many marijuana possession cases were prosecuted as misdemeanors.

Parking citations totaled 226,184, down 23,820 from the year before; traffic violations 86,864, down 8,040 and other misdemeanors 10,979, down 38. Civil cases other than small claims fell 160 to a total of 5,000.

In Small Claims court, some of the increased filings came as a result of a new state law that took effect March 4, increasing from $300 to $500 the jurisdiction of that court where the parties present their own cases without attorneys, the clerk reported.

Hovard noted that the South Cities School for the Prevention of Alcoholism, established by the judges of the Long Beach, Compton and Los Cerritos Municipal Courts, has entered its third year, with a total of 3,417 defendants ordered to attend in the 27 months of operation. A study of the school showed it has been effective in reducing the rate of repeat drinking-releated offences by participants and in producing changed attitudes and behavior, he reported.

LATEST estimates show the Long Beach court district serves a total population of 368,333, comprising 361,000 in Long Beach, 5,536 in Signal Hill and 1,797 in unincorporated county area. In the incorporated cities the court's fines and forfeitures are divided 86 to Long Beach for the city general fund and traffic safety fund and 14 per cent to the county's general fund, 76 per cent to Signal Hill and 24 per cent to the county, under a provision of the state penal code.

Wedding to highlight Anaheim garden show

For the Anaheim Convention Center and for George Colouris, it was a happy-event: a fifth anniversary which brought each back to where they started.

When the sprawling new convention center opened five years ago, Colouris opened his home and garden show as the first event. He is at it again — as the center's exhibitor on its fifth anniversary.

The home and garden show opened Friday night for a run through July 23. There are 400 exhibits, including a three-bedroom modular home which will be auctioned off the last day of the exhibition.

This year, there is a new attraction: a wedding.

Daniel Allen, of the Colouris staff, will be married July 22 to Anna Marie Wolcott at a flower garden. The ceremony at 1 p.m. that day is expected to draw hundreds of spectators. The flower show itself claims 100 varieties of flowers on daily display.

Meeting set to promote bond issue for colleges

Dr. Arnold O. Beckman of Corona del Mar, state chairman of a California Citizens' Committee to promote a $160 million bond issue for the state's community colleges, Friday called a meeting of volunteers for July 19 at Coast College in Costa Mesa.

Dr. Beckman said that the all-day meeting will be to formulate plans for a volunteer force of citizens who will be active in their own communities throughout the state.

He said he expects a turnout of only 25 key personnel who will forward the volunteer citizens' concept of organization within the various areas of the state.

The proposed bond issue would provide facilities for 80,000 additional students expected by the state's 94 community colleges during the next three years.

10 years have gone since Marilyn Monroe's death

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD — The sun filtered down through a shade tree and on this particular day a single shaft of light illuminated a bronze plaque on a crypt:

"Marilyn Monroe—1925-1962."

The last great Hollywood glamor girl has been dead 10 years.

Last because no star-burst beauty has exploded from the screen with the vivid femininity and sex appeal of this tragedy-shadowed girl-woman who created excitement simply by existing.

In a day when actresses walk naked on the screen, Marilyn Monroe might now be an anachronism. Marilyn always gave the illusion of female secrets promised but private.

Hers was the heritage of Theda Bara and Jean Harlow: movie star.

And something more. To those who watched her perform she seemed almost attainable.

With few exceptions the men in Marilyn Monroe's life helped defeat her quest for happiness, motherhood and security.

AS MUCH as anything it was a void of loneliness that caused Marilyn's death from an overdose of sleeping pills Aug. 5, 1962.

At age 36 she was found lying nude, face down on her bed in West Los Angeles clutching a telephone receiver in her hand.

No suicide note was found. No names were mentioned in connection with her most recent romance. But in Hollywood her beau is and was known.

MARILYN MONROE
Last Great Glamor Girl

The funeral arrangements were carried out by Marilyn's second husband, former baseball star Joe DiMaggio.

It was the great ex-Yankee slugger who chose tiny Westwood Village Memorial Cemetery where Marilyn's remains rest in a pink marble crypt. A vase is filled every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday with a half-dozen fresh red roses.

THE ROSES are from DiMaggio and provided by a trust fund he established. Presumably the flowers will be delivered to her grave for as far as the years stretch ahead.

"Hardly a day goes by but that two or three cars come through here just to stop and look at Marilyn's grave," a cemetery worker said.

Elizabeth Taylor, a contemporary of Marilyn's visits the cemetery when she is in Los Angeles. Her father was buried there two years ago.

ASIDE from the simple plaque one might not know that Marilyn Monroe had ever been the most exciting star of the 1950s.

Her old movies are rarely seen on television. Little is written about the woman, the actress, her movies or her private life.

Her third and last husband, Arthur Miller, wrote and produced a thinly disguised story of her life which became a play, "After the Fall."

There have been books written about Marilyn Monroe by authors who knew and enjoyed her confidences, and by others who had never met the sensitive, temperamental, lonely woman who was born Norma Jean Baker.

Her life was hard from birth. Raised without a father and by a mother who became mentally ill, Marilyn was shuttled from foster home to foster home, finally striking out on her own to marry and become an actress.

Her first husband was Los Angeles policeman James Dougherty. DiMaggio, who wept at her funeral, was her second mate. She never remarried after her divorce from Miller.

ONE boyfriend was Frenchman Yves Montand, married to actress Simone Signoret, who ungallantly boasted in an interview three years ago that he had seduced Marilyn when they costarred in "Let's Make Love."

Finally there was the humility that Marilyn died in debt.

No matter now the life she led, or those who marred it, Marilyn Monroe is remembered and cherished by millions of motion picture goers who recall the extra dimension of beauty and tenderness she brought to the screen — and to them.

There remains only the legacy of a piquant will-o'-the-wisp who brightened the lives of millions of strangers and intensified the awareness of true beauty for those of us who came to know her.

Lots of summer music available

By DANIEL CARIAGA
Music Critic

There is lots more summer music around here, Horatio, than you can sum up in the words, "Hollywood Bowl and Greek Theater."

In Long Beach there are Starlight Serenades on Tuesday nights and chamber music at the Museum on Saturday afternoons. In the Pomona valley there is the elegant and stylish Claremont Music Festival. At UCLA and USC, special events draw listeners to those campuses all summer long.

AND IN Santa Monica, the free, fully-professional outdoor concert series called "Symphonies by the Sea" is celebrating its 35th consecutive season.

The celebration began Friday night, when the dance companies of Ricardo Peinado and Oscar Nieto joined forces for a "Fiesta de Danza," an evening of Spanish and Mexican dance entertainment. The outdoor amphitheater at Santa Monica College was packed comfortably, the 16-member troupe made a vivid impression, and everyone should have gone home happy.

For several reasons, this is remarkable. The two dance companies needn't have blended strengths so smoothly, first off. Nor should they have given, by all rights, a first performance that looked as slick as a third or fourth — needless to say, they hadn't worked together before.

What is even more remarkable, the visual coordination and artistic cooperation between separate choreographers necessary to produce such a handsome total, might not have been expected.

YET THERE it was, a bright, light, and altogether pleasing show, beautifully costumed, neatly presented. Not every one of the subordinate dancers was able to meet the technical standards of the two leaders (Peinado's credentials include experience in several contemporary companies; Nieto has danced with Ciro, Lola Montes, and Greco), but good looks, nice projection, and mutual cooperation carried the weaker ones.

HIS SECURITY BLANKET

'Mr. Guitar's' ambition is to be master of instrument

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Chet Atkins, "Mr. Guitar" to most of the world, figures "the one talent I have is the ability to see talent in others."

"But," he mused, "I don't know if that's talent —most anybody can do that." Actually, he said, he's still pursuing a boyhood ambition: "I would love to master the guitar.'

Those strong, gently curving hands have mastered the instrument and Atkins has countless awards and honors to prove it. "But, after 30 years as an artist, his conversation keeps returning to what he really would like — "to be a great guitarist."

"You leave a guitar alone three days and it doesn't know you when you pick it up," he says. "It's just a constant battle getting acquainted with it and staying acquainted."

"I want to be known as a guitar player," the taciturn star says, "because the guitar has brought me everything I've ever had and I don't want to ever neglect it."

"It's my security blanket," he laughed.

Chet Atkins sees Chet Atkins as a "mediocre guitarist . . . and an introspective person."

"A lot of times, I would really like to see myself as other people see me," he said while absent-mindedly toying with a rubber band during an interview shortly after his 58th birthday.

"I wonder if I'm doing the right thing," he ponders aloud.

"I try to see into me and see what my motivations are and what they should be, but it's very tough to do . . . I don't see myself very well."

"I just try to express myself as best I know how in my music and do what I feel instinctively is right."

Sitting in the massive green velvet chair, his slightly stooped, tall, wiry frame makes him the picture of a man at peace.

Atkins, who heads RCA Victor's operations in Nashville, tries not to let his job get to him. And he says the one thing that has changed during the past year — other than his new long hairstyle — is his newly found ability to delegate authority and let someone else do some of the time-consuming things he has been doing.

If things get too tense, he heads out to the golf course or goes home — the one place he relaxes — and secludes himself in a small studio with one of 23 guitars he keeps handy.

What does he consider his greatest achievement? He paused, then said he's proud of a lot of things: His annual festival for young guitarists; his guitar teaching course across the nation, and his 25-year association with RCA. He has been an executive with the company for 16 years.

"I've got a right to be proud of that because I got fired from every job I had before RCA," he said.

Between the ages of 18 and 22, he was "pretty green" and had what he called "personality problems" with other misicians with whom he worked.

"I could get a job anywhere as an artist, but I just couldn't keep it."

Atkins produces records "just for fun." He has produced an untold number of gold records for other artists, but never one for himself.

"I'm sure my albums have probably sold enough to get a gold record," he said, "but I've never checked into it. I just sell enough to keep going, you know."

He says he rarely ever goes back to Luttrell, the little East Tennessee town where he was born, "because it's kind of depressing."

"It's hard to go back home all those memories come back to you . . . I was so poor when I was there . . . hungry and poor in every way . . ." and his was voice trails off.

BLACK FILMS

Gimmick or real life experience?

Editor's Note: Black audiences are flocking to the movies to see films made by blacks for blacks about the "black experience." But is it just a gimmick which will vanish soon, or the real thing to become a basic part of the nation's film culture? Following is the second of two articles on the subject.

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Is Shaft only James Bond in blackface?

Can Sidney Poitier do his own thing in the West, or is he merely a black John Wayne?

Critics have raised the question of whether the "new" black movie is really new or strictly the tried and true film formula played with darker coloring.

"Some of the films do reflect the black experience," said Ivan Dixon, who recently completed his first film as a director, "Trouble Man." "But many of them merely reflect what the white producer mistakes the black experience to be. There is no way that he can understand the wellsprings of black existence.

"Producers have discovered a formula that they think works for them. They figure all they have to do is provide a lot of sex, a lot of blood and — very important — at least one scene of a black beating up whites."

ACTOR Jim Brown agreed: "The companies are now making pictures about what they think the black experience is. Under this kind of thinking, every picture has to be located in Harlem, and every picture has to deal with narcotics and pimps.

Gordon Parks who created a superhero with "Shaft" and its sequel, remarks: "I will never apologize for 'Shaft'. I think the black kid is entitled to a black hero, and I would rather have any kid admire Shaft rather than James Bond. Shaft can be accepted as a guy, a marvelous guy.

"What endeared Shaft to the black audience was that for the first time on screen, they saw a black man winning. No matter how fictional, that's important.

"THE STUDIOS have been remiss in not providing black heroes. Now that they see black audiences accept such films, perhaps they will take another step and present black heroes that are more true to life. We needed a 'Shaft' before any studio would make a film about Frederick Douglass."

The movie image of Sidney Poitier has been criticized as being the white concept of what a black should be like. Actor director Dixon expressed this view:

"SIDNEY was the kind of 'nigger' that white audiences could like. He was a big hit in 'Lilies of the Field' because he proved to be faithful, docile, intelligent, well spoken and whatever other qualities whites admired. The guy has been doing it ever since."

Poitier doesn't defend his screen portrayals.

"What I want to make are films that will delight blacks and interest whites," he has said. "I have no interest in putting 'whitey' down."

Melvin Van Peebles takes a different view. His "Sweet Sweetback" was criticized as antiwhite. He said critics mistook it for an American film but "It isn't: it's an American black film, perhaps the first one ever made."

He added: "Of all the ways we've been exploited by the white man, the most damaging is the way he destroyed our self image. The message of 'Sweetback' is that if you can get it together and stand up to the Man, you can win."

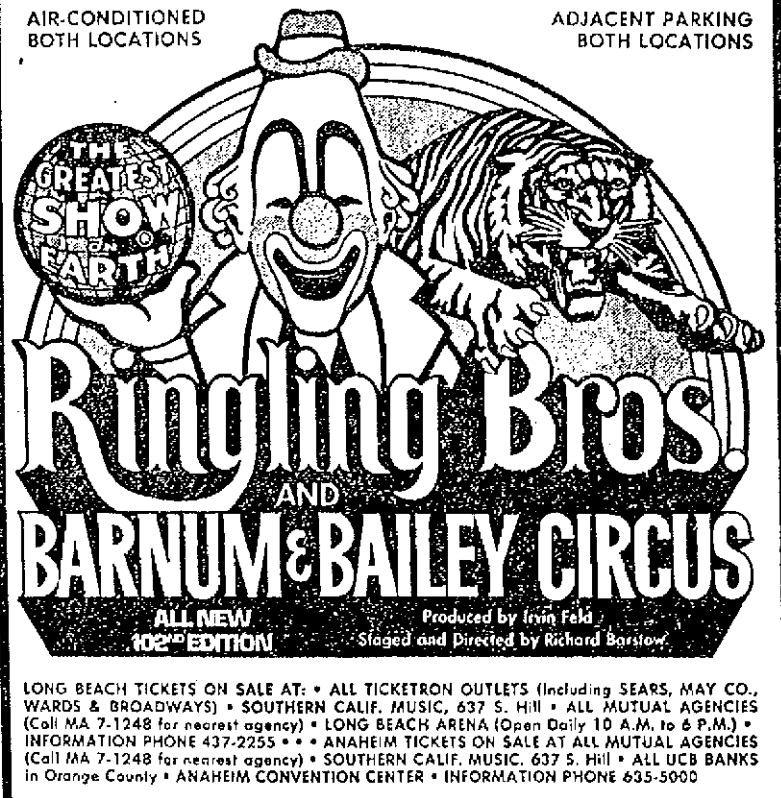

CAN ONLY black directors and writers interpret the black experience?

"No, that's absurd," Dixon says. "Blacks have the advantage, because they have lived it. But any cat who does his homework should have no trouble dealing with the black experience."

EARL WILSON IN NEW YORK

Political–and other–jokes rife in '72

NEW YORK — The gags about President Nixon, Henry Kissinger and the other pols were plenteous in the first half of '72 and this was sure to wind up a good year for jokes. Maybe one of the best. Vice President Agnew gave a sample of the quality of the humor asserting that Teddy Kennedy, going to Miami Beach, "wanted a room with a draft." He declared further, "Millions of Democrats will be going to the convention — and that's only the candidates."

"The Democrats have a good chance this year — but they'll probably spoil it by nominating somebody," George Kaye said, recycling an old one.

"I wonder who's Kissinger now" . . . "If anything happens to Kissinger, Nixon will be President" . . .

THERE WERE a few that DIDN'T refer to Nixon going to China and the Soviet. John Lindsay was a target. "He likes New York as a place to visit but he wouldn't want to live there," for example. Joey Adams admired Lindsay: "I like a mayor that doesn't meddle in the city's affairs."

"The Happy Hooker," Xaviera Hollander, left the U.S. to avoid deportation, and Georgie Jessel said, "You'll be true to me won't you, you flirt?"

"The Godfather" inspired a barrage of gags. Marlon Brando already won the Oscar, Bobby Ramsen said: "He made them an offer they couldn't refuse." (I got to the premiere late and missed 100 killings).

Burt Reynolds' nude center-spread in Cosmopolitan inspired much inprintable comment. One lady wrote "What long arms you have, grampa" . . . Gore Vital's anti-Nixon play quoted the President as always saying "we cannot stand pat on this issue," adding, "and he always says it when poor Pat's standing there."

INGRID BERGMAN said, "All you have to do in America is learn to say 'Try it, you'll like it.' and you're an instant star." She referred to TV commercialist Jack Aaron and Milt Moss whose "I can't believe I ate the W-H-O-L-E thing!" made them overnight sensations.

Sheldon Tannen said Noah asked the cows, horses and chickens, "What happened to my ark?" The termite exlaimed: "I can't believe I ate the w-h-o-l-e thing!"

Don Rickles, dropped by CBS, panicked the Copacabana crowd, singling out Jack Cassidy and saying, "I'd be smiling, too, if my little boy was supporting me."

Groucho Marx came to NY to do a one-man show at Carnegie Hall and remembered when a Hollywood mogul presided over a staff meeting with the words, "All opposed will signify by saying 'I resign.'"

CLIFFORD IRVING'S hoax Howard Hughes autobiography was a big story for many days: "("I hear McGraw-Hill will change its name to Irving Trust.") Baroness Nina Van Pallandt opened a singing engagement on the strength of her publicity about a romance with Clifford Irving. "Good little girls go to heaven," somebody observed, "and bad little girls go to the St. Regis Maisonette for $5,000 a week."

When all Washington became frightened about the contents of its wastebaskets revealing secrets that would be headlined as in the I.T.T. case, Liz Carpenter said, "Washington is going through a memopause."

Charlie Chaplin returned to NY and Hollywood and produced no jokes but some tears — his. He was constantly on the verge of crying and told me that his wife Oona warned him, "If you snivel one more time . . . !"

ELVIS PRESLEY jammed Madison Sq. Garden for four performances and gave a lively press conference at the Hilton. His father, asked when he first noticed that Elvis had unusual talent, replied, "When he was about 23." Elvis said, "I tried to tell him before, but he wouldn't listen."

YOUR HOROSCOPE by JEANE DIXON

Forecast for Monday

Your birthday today: Personal stability is your ideal this year. If you already have it, life is serene and joyful—if you haven't yet acquired it, this is the year to find it. Today's natives often follow mystical lives which escape general notice.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Disagreement needn't lead to unhappiness — tell it like it is and take your share of responsibility. Your work deserves full attention.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Let people keep their distance — stand off if they won't. Precautions routinely taken today save endless difficulties later on.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): There's no point in starting a conflict. Listen before complaining, wait for people to find fresh situations for themselves.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Hold your previous plans despite tempting offers for quick gain. Where differences develop it seems there's no ground rules.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Getting almost anything done depends on your efforts and resources. Start early. Results begin to show soon — keep at it!

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Time to resume work is not time to forget play. Assign priorities, get something done in all important projects. Relax early.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Go directly to the point without dragging in unrelated questions. Activities dependent on your will yield better and quicker results.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Make this a quiet day, at as easy a pace as people and conditions permit. The evening brings a lively mood — let go and enjoy yourself!

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): The harder you work on the most demanding tasks, the quicker you get this week's enterprise off the ground toward success.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Be actively involved in promoting your own interests that are already going. There's plenty to do without getting into new situations.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Begin with clearly defined chores, stay within your budget for time, energy and money. Expect no outside help.

Pisces Feb. 19-March 20): Coping with people of real or imagined authority is delicate. Patience and tact cover a flawed surface — agreement comes later.

24-UNIT CONDOMINIUM COMPLEX . . . by Maugum, Broadway at Atlantic.

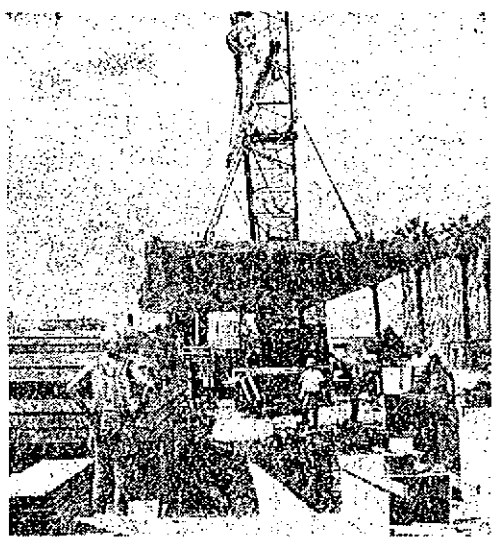

Downtown Long Beach building activity at peak

Only an eagle, circling high over downtown Long Beach, could see at a single glance the enormous activity that soon will change the skyline — and the economy — of the area. To the north, the eye-pleasing but highly functional new Bauer Hospital facility is rising adjacent to St. Mary's Hospital. To the south workmen work feverishly at the 240 Chestnut Avenue site of a 196-unit apartment building. At Broadway and Atlantic, the Russell Mangum Company's 24-unit condominium nears completion, as does the huge new mail room for the Independent Press-Telegram near Sixth and Pine. A four-story apartment structure already graces the skyline at Sixth and Chestnut while workmen apply finishing touches. And, towering over all eventually, the 17-story apartment complex of 187 units is under way at Seventh and Pacific. But there's more. The INA Brock Development soon will front the ocean south of Ocean Boulevard near Municipal Auditorium, there will be remodeling of the auditorium and Exhibit Hall, new hotels are planned near Queen's Way Bridge, along with 250 rooms aboard the Queen Mary. Add to this a proposed county garage at Magnolia and Broadway and an addition planned to the County Building. It's a busy downtown community.

Big features at Westport

Over $4 million in sales, representing 250 two and three-bedroom homes, has been recorded at Westport Apartment Homes in Cerritos.

The close-in location, plus the many features included in the low price, all have contributed to the success of the community, according to E. J. Cantillon, chairman of the board of Westport Home Builders, Inc.

"We're 25 minutes from downtown Los Angeles, and less to either the Long Beach, Lakewood or Orange County employment centers. "The 100-plus stores of the Los Cerritos Mall is a fast four-minute drive from Westport, with many smaller shopping centers nearby.

"Schools, churches and city parks are conveniently close, although our homebuyers have many recreational facilities at their doorstep in the form of pools, cabanas, play areas and green belts placed throughout the Westport community," the executive explained.

FINANCING terms include no down VA, FHA and conventional with the homes priced from $13,995.

Features included in the full sales price are wall-to-wall carpeting in living room, halls and master bedroom, all built-ins, vinyl tile in secondary areas, ash cabinets, cultured marble pullman tops and plate mirrors in the bathrooms, forced air heating, fenced private patios, shake and shingle roofs and many homes include central refrigerated air conditioning.

The beautiful model homes of Westport are open every day from 10 in the morning to 7 at night, on 166th Street, between Norwalk Boulevard and Bloomfield Avenue in Cerritos, adjacent to the Artesia (91) Freeway.

Extras at Sherwood

Excellent financing has been arranged at Park Sherwood, George D. Buccola built homes in west Anaheim's finest neighborhood, reports Bill McCabe, president of McCabe Realty, Inc., exclusive sales agent.

"Park Sherwood Homes can be purchased for as little as 10 per cent down with a 90 per cent loan on the first trust deed at 7½ per cent for 30 years," McCabe continued.

"And if a family wishes to put down 20 per cent, the interest drops to 7 per cent over the life of the loan. There is no second trust deed and no balloon or double payment penalties."

The homes are priced from $42,450.

Oceana South in opening

Oceana South, an all-adult planned development community emphasizing ecological development, holds its grand opening today in Oceanside.

The project, third all-adult community to be built by Oceana Land Company in the Oceanside area, is located at Mesa Drive and Pear Tree Lane. The models will be open 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily.

The 303-home community will cover 48 acres and will be valued in excess of $7.5 million. The first phase totals 76 homes on about 12 acres. It will be completed by September.

Carl Cutsinger, president of Oceana Land Company, said: "Oceana South has been planned with ecology in mind. Lush landscaping and flowering pear trees enhance the naturally beautiful setting, while underground utilities and cablevision will eliminate unsightly utility poles and roof antennas.

"All of the homes will front on expansive greenbelt areas," Cutsinger added, "with some choice locations affording a view of up to 700 feet of continuous greenbelt."

OCEANA South is the third in a series of all-adult communities being built by Oceana Land Company in Oceanside. The first two communities, Oceana and Oceana Real, included nearly 1,000 homes built over the last 10 years.

Jim Davis, owner-sales director of the project, noted each of the three phases of the project will have its own private recreation club for the exclusive use of its residents.

Each club will have a large recreation room with fireplace — an ideal setting for parties, meetings, dining, dancing, cards and other community activities.

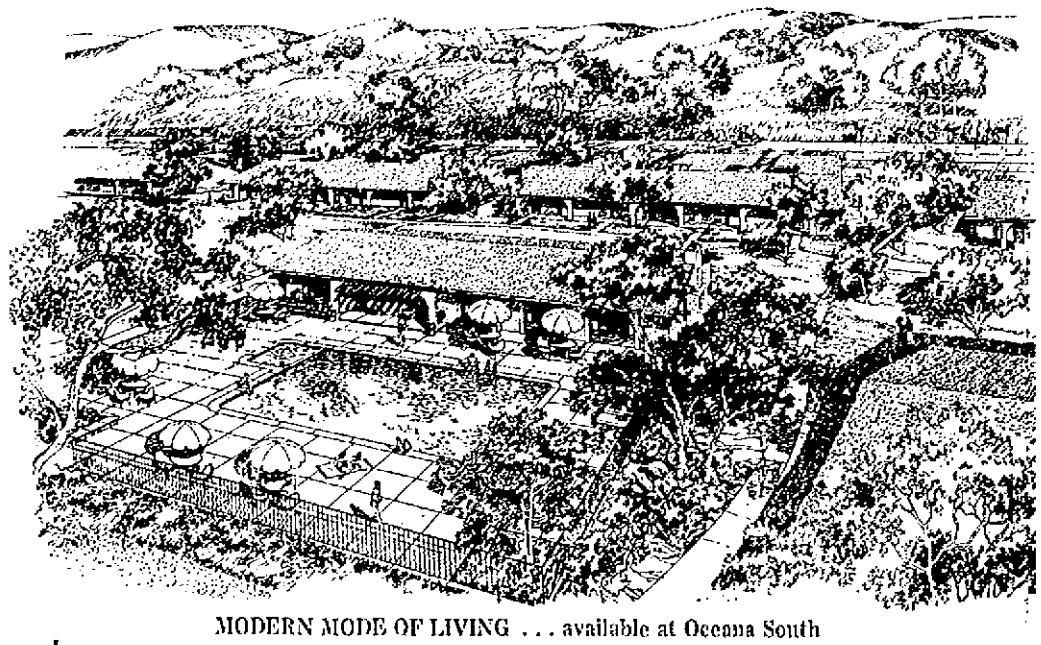

There will also be a kitchen, pool room, 20x10-foot swimming pool, jacuzzi and shuffleboard courts.

TO PROVIDE residents with more leisure time for the enjoyment of the recreational facilities, the Oceana South Owners Association will hire a professional maintenance firm to provide continual care of all common areas and building exteriors.

The all-adult nature of the community will be preserved by the requirement that at least one permanent resident of each household must be at least 40 years of age, while no children under 16 may live in the community.

Two floor plans are offered in single-story duplex and fourplex buildings, with a single triplex bringing the total number of

Ecology means higher price tag to consumers

By ROBERT BECKMAN
Real Estate Editor

This era of ecology is bringing up some increased costs — and, remember, it's the consumer who foots the bill.

Necessary ecological planning, as an example, can be expected to increase housing costs from 5 to 10 per cent.

That is the belief of a leading land planner, David Jay Flood of Los Angeles, and he voiced the opinion recently at a national conference on housing and environment in San Francisco.

"Building communities with lower densities and preserving natural hillsides and wooded areas costs more money, and both developers and the buying public must be ready to pick up their shares of the tab," Flood said.

Flood said his estimate of increased costs comes from several projects his firm is master planning in various sections of the nation.

"These extra costs result from ecological studies and additional land planning and engineering to provide the environmental safeguards now demanded by governmental and regulatory bodies."

The Los Angeles-based architect and land planner cautioned builders and developers against expecting projects which include these environmental safeguards to gain approvals without some opposition.

"The environmentalist demands that land be preserved in its natural state, but saving the land for the future without making it useful to the present generation is not and cannot be a solution," Flood said.

"On the other hand, the developer must pay more attention to the impact his project will have on the environment. And, both sides must realize the costs involved," he added.

Then Flood raised the question: "How far can we go in increasing these costs."

"We cannot go so far as to price nearly everyone — with the possible exceptions of J. Paul Getty or the Aga Kahn — out of the housing market," answered Flood, whose organization includes land economics, planning and architectural divisions.

Flood advised developers to be "willing to spend time and money and accept greater risks in trying to achieve a balance between providing housing — in both urban and recreational areas —and working to preserve our natural resources."

Environmental safeguards, according to Flood, must be built into a development from the outset if the project is to receive approval.

"Certainly this is going to cost more money. But, consider what it will cost the developer who doesn't spend the extra dollars. You probably won't get approval for the project, and you've already laid out thousands," he said.

Flood also urged ecologists to start thinking in terms of public use, not selfish interests, and consider the needs and rights of all people, not just those of a small but highly vocal group; if today's environmental gap is to be bridged.

"Both sides must become aware that esthetics and economics are inseparable, and the developer and his land planner must accept the responsibility of designing and building communities which do not destroy the environment," he said.

From trickle to flood

A few weeks ago, this column told how inflation and unemployment is being reflected in the number of defaults on government-backed mortgages.

Now there are more details on the subject:

Nationally, last year's trickle of defaults is becoming a flood. It is estimated that within the next few years HUD will have to take back 240,000 units "with little resale value except at catastrophic levels of loss."

The cost of this repossession program has been put at $2.4 billion.

While some 900,000 families have been helped to move into decent shelter under the subsidy program, HUD's Romney has been claiming that subsidies have hurt the inner-city poor and the cities themselves.

Subsidies provide the means by which remaining middle-income families can sell their homes and move out.

The subsidies enable families to buy houses they can not afford to maintain, leading to deterioration of the neighborhood.

Subsidies leave untouched the problems of poverty, social demoralization, and physical decay that plague central city communities. "The real problem is not the housing problem. It is the problem of the social conditions of the central city," Romney said.

The future of the subsidy program is not bright, as Romney has asked for about 25 per cent less money to fund next year's Section 236 program. He further warns that tighter regulations and quality standards which he has ordered may cut 200,000 units from production this year.

Even so, this year's 508,900 subsidized starts represent a significant increase from last year's 400,000 housing units — worth about $8 billion to builders.

Retained by the National Assn. of Home Builders to study housing subsidies and recommend improvements, Anthony Downs, of Chicago, says: "A great deal of the criticism of the subsidy programs is an orchestration of complaints by people who don't know what they are talking about."

He continued: "The programs have been successful, but if we want to assist a lot of low-income people, it's going to cost a lot of money, and this is scaring people."

One alternative to the Federal government's subsidy approach for construction of new units would be for Washington to step up its leased housing program.

Under this plan, which now accounts for 85,000 units, local housing authorities lease dwellings from private owners, sublet them to needy families, and pay the difference between the full rent and what tenants can afford.

NEW HOMES EVERYWHERE . . . at Canyon Lake, four miles east of Elsinore

Canyon Lake building pace at million mark

Nearly $1 million worth of new home construction is under way at Canyon Lake, the 2,017-acre private community four miles east of Elsinore in Riverside County, reports James Cashman, president of Corona Land Co., the developer.

The dollar total represents 35 residences around the lake, the golf course and in the equestrian area.

Current construction will raise the number of homes at Canyon Lake to 193, valued at 4.9 million, according to Cashman.

Plans for another 11 homes have been submitted for approval to the Canyon Lake Property Owners Association, he added.

"The quality of construction has been exceptional," remarked Cashman. "Obviously, the people who have purchased property here are determined to do their share to create a first-class lake community."

HOME design has been both individualistic and innovative. Among the homes already built are several modified A-frames, several tri-levels, a T-shaped house, and a home with an interior swimming pool. Floor space ranges from 1,200 square feet to 4,500.

About one-third of the residents have established primary homes at Canyon Lake and commute regularly to Riverside, San Bernardino, and Orange County, Cashman notes.

He adds that this number has grown with recent freeway openings which have shortened driving to major metropolitan areas.

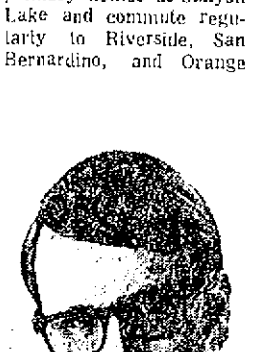

The 4,790 homesites in the masterplanned community either front on the lake or the golf course, or have unobstructed views of the water or fairways. A cluster of horse ranchettes also perches on the highest hill in the area, affording panoramic views stretching from Sun City to Elsinore.

LESS THAN 200 home sites are available, but "surprisingly they include many primo waterfront lots and horse ranchettes," adds George Kaufmes of Walker & Lee, Inc., exclusive sales representative for the development.

Canyon Lake has $2 million of private recreation facilities, including a 12-acre equestrian center, golf course, and a three-mile championship water ski course. With over 400 surface acres, the lake is 80 ft. deep in some spots. The property owners association has a regular fish-stocking program and tests the water monthly for purity.

Canyon Lake may be reached via the Corona Freeway (Highway 71), which crosses the San Bernardino, Pomona and Riverside Freeways, and Highway 395.

Canyon Lake is four miles east of the Elsinore-Canyon Lake turnoff from Highway 71.

Few 2-bedrooms remain at Carmenita

Just a few of the two-story, two-bedroom townhouse condominiums of Carmenita Village, on Carmenita Road in Cerritos, remain to be sold, reports Alex Graham, president of Marketing Management Co., exclusive sales agent.

"We have over 150 families who have purchased a townhouse here, so we feel that we have an exceptional home offering," Graham said.

"No down VA and low down FHA financing is available on our $19,700 homes. And builder Bob DeRuff of Newport Beach has included all the features that a family needs to move-in and begin enjoying the maintenance-free life of condominium living.

"Features such as refrigerated air conditioning, carpeting and drapes throughout, all kitchen built-ins, including dishwashers, private fenced patios, spacious bedrooms and baths, front yard landscaping and sprinklers and a heated pool with adjacent cabana and playground for children," he added.

"AIR conditioning and the swimming pool are especially appreciated by our homeowners during these hot summer days and since professional gardeners and pool maintenance people do all the exterior maintenance, homeowners easily beat the dog days of summer," Graham said.

Carmenita Village is located midway between the Artesia (91) and Santa Ana (5) Freeways in Cerritos. The Long Beach-Lakewood area is only 15 minutes distance via the Artesia, Long Beach or San Gabriel River freeways.

Children walk to both elementary and intermediate schools and well known markets abound in the new city.

WHAT'S YOUR PROBLEM?

Economics baffling renters

By DON G. CAMPBELL

No one likes controls on the economy. No one likes the artificiality of bureaucratic restraints, for one thing, and there is always the frustrating realization hovering over us that controls never work very well for very long under the best of circumstances.

Be that as it may, we've had a baffling series of controls on our hands since August when, in a dramatic move to choke off domestic inflation and shore up international confidence in the dollar, President Nixon chose to go this route.

MR. CAMPBELL:

We own property in central Indiana which we rent. The present rent is $125 and it has been at this figure for probably six years. We did not want to raise it while it was occupied.

But in December, 1971, our renters moved. I called our lawyer and he didn't know if we could raise the rent. He referred us to a local office which had been designated by the government for price questions. They could not, or would not, give us an answer.

Our present renters were told before they decided on the house, that as soon as it was possible, the rent would be increased to $140, considering housing in this area is still scarce and the figure is low.

What are the present rules for rental property? As we live in a small city we do not know who to contact for this information. We have added extra landscaping, awnings and storm windows since we have owned the property. Mrs. B.A.H. (Muncie, Ind.)

ANSWER: Few of the controls laid down last August have been quite so befuddled as the ones directed at residential rentals. The arm of the government that is supposed to be acting as the interpreter on all control matters is the poor old, overworked Internal Revenue Service which needed this extra responsibility like it needed a hole in the head.

The Rent Control Board has decreed that any rent increases must be held to a maximum of 2½ per cent plus "charges reflecting higher taxes and capital improvements." That seems pretty cut and dried, but interpretations will vary from one office to another.

For instance: What classifies as a "capital improvement?" Would a new air conditioning unit, for example, qualify as a capital improvement if it were actually replacing a worn-out unit? If it is a capital improvement, would the entire cost of it classify as such an improvement, or just the difference between the value of the old one and the cost of the replacement?

And is the 2½ per cent rental increase added before or after the capital improvements have been lumped in? Under the rigid 2½ per cent rule, you couldn't jump the rent from $125 to $140, but from $125 to $128.13—unless you can present proof that higher taxes and capital improvements to the property justify a greater increase.

And so, inconvenient or not, we seem to end up with the nearest office of the IRS as the final local authority on the question.

MR. CAMPBELL:

We own a farm and the taxes have gone up so high we are compelled to sell some of the land.

What is the best procedure: Put it in the hands of a real estate broker, or retain a lawyer? Mrs. N. H. C. (Glastonbury, Conn.)

ANSWER: I wouldn't put the property in anyone's hands until I had first consulted with a reputable certified public accountant or a tax lawyer to make absolutely sure that you are considering all the tax angles involved.

When you have done this, and have determined how much of the land must be sold, then I suggest that you put the problem in the hands of a good broker specializing in farm real estate. The services of a lawyer shouldn't be required.

(Campbell welcomes letters. He is unable to enter into personal correspondence, but will attempt to answer as many letters as possible through his column.)

(Released by The Register and Tribune Syndicate, 1972)

MR. CAMPBELL:

My husband and I bought 2½ acres of land in a nearby "planned" community about six years ago. At first we paid only about $45 in taxes, but the last couple of years this has gone up to approximately $170 because they now have included a bond. Last year we went to look at our property and there hasn't been much built although many more acres have been sold. There is a school, a church, a lake, a golf course and some houses and even a Holiday Inn, but I had the feeling that it might be wiser to sell.

Have you any information about this community that could be helpful in making up our minds to sell or not? Mrs. C.A.O. (Cerritos, Calif.)

ANSWER: This letter ties in very nicely with an earlier one on the same subject: land developments and the rate at which they can be expected to grow.

In the earlier letter I made the point that in any land development, it is necessary to look down the road quite a few years. Any promoter who promises would-be buyers any sort of price-appreciation miracle in five to seven years is usually playing fast and loose with the truth. The best land development project in the world—proceeding exactly on schedule—is still going to look slow in amounting to very much in the average person's eyes.

Frankly, I don't have any personal knowledge of the "planned" community you mention or whether it would be a good idea to sell you acreage there. I do believe, however, that your present reasons for thinking about selling are on shaky ground. Taxes were almost sure to go up as the area developed, which you must have known in the first place. While the progress may SEEM slow (and may indeed be behind the developer's schedule), the city seems to be taking shape.

The land, as you have pointed out, still seems to be selling well, which is a good thing. There are also more homes in evidence than there were on your previous visit—as well as a school, a church, a lake and a golf course—all of which suggest progress. Finally, the presence of a new Holiday Inn indicates that at least one national organization, which is not noted for making silly mistakes, seems to feel that the area has promise.

Sell, or not? I don't know, but it is entirely possible that you're expecting too much too soon.

MR. CAMPBELL:

In August of 1964 we sold our home in Indiana and moved to the Southwest. We sold it on contract for $16,000—$2,500 down and $100 per month at 6 per cent interest.

At the time of sale we had a verbal agreement that in one year they would convert to an FHA loan but, with rising interest rates, they have neglected to change over. Now, after eight years, they still owe $13,500. They have not reduced the principal at all. Last year, interest, insurance and taxes amounted to more than the $1,200 they paid.

My question is whether there is any way I can force them to increase their payments so they can start lowering the principal. I don't need the money, but I am concerned about my investment. I only owe $7,000 and the payments on the house are $114 a month.

Mrs. R. N. S. (Scottsdale, Arizona)

ANSWER: You are being extremely charitable when you say that these people have "neglected" to convert the contract to an FHA loan. You have a family of deadbeats on your hands who, I would imagine, have no intention of converting the contract.

I would, post-haste, retain myself a lawyer in Indiana and have him explain the facts of life—and contracts—to this family. So much, too, for any future verbal agreements. Right?

MR. CAMPBELL:

We live in a nice, quiet, residential area. A few months ago, however, one of our neighbors moved and rented his home to a young couple who seemed all right at first.

Since then, though, the couple has turned "hippie" and the house has been turned into a 24-hour-a-day hangout for all kinds of long-haired freaks coming and going at all hours, with cars with out-of-state plates filling up the driveway.

My husband and I, and most of our neighbors, are sure that the house is a dope headquarters of some kind, but the police say that they can't do anything without proof. If the police can't (won't) do anything, isn't there some kind of court action that we can take ourselves? Mr. and Mrs. R.F. (Buffalo, N.Y.)

ANSWER: As long as the police can't find anything sinister going on with your neighbors, it's highly unlikely that you would have much legal luck trying to get them declared a public nuisance.

Except for the late hours and the out-of-state cars, they don't really sound all that disruptive. I think your best bet is to grit your teeth and sweat it out—such people tend to be rather mobile and, in all likelihood, will be moving on in short order.

Addition at Atlas completed

Atlas Fabricators, Inc., has completed a major addition to its manufacturing facilities at 6375 Paramount Blvd., Long Beach.

According to Joel Husebo, Atlas plant engineer, the addition includes a new 2,000-ton hydraulic press which will be used to form side panels for the Toyota pick-up truck beds being produced at the Long Beach plant.

Tri-Cor, Inc., of Long Beach designed and constructed a 5,000-square-foot building addition to house the huge 35-foot-high press.

The concrete machinery pit and foundations for the press and building addition were designed for Tri-Cor by Robinson-Thompson Associates of Irvine, according to Keith Kerwin, Tri-Cor industrial building division manager.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Amex Petroleum Corp. has announced that Pennzoil Nederland, operator for the Noordwinning Group, has found gas traces in an exploratory well in the North Sea, 60 miles northwest of Ijmuiden, Holland. The well was drilled to 8,800 feet.

Cortese active in Arizona

According to a joint announcement by Ross W. Cortese, president of Rossmoor Corporation (ASE) of Laguna Hills, and Junius E. Driggs, president of Western Financial Corporation (ASE, PCSE), the final agreement has been signed by Rossmoor and Western Service Corporation, a wholly owned subsidiary of Western Savings and Loan Association and Western Financial Corporation, for the development of 2,150 acres in eastern Maricopa County, Arizona.

It will be known as "Leisure World" Golden Hills.

The Leisure World Development is expected to have 7,000 dwelling units. Later a "New World" open age section will be built and the total development will cost in excess of $250 million.

The new community will offer both single family and multiple family housing. It will be designed on a people scale with a system of golf carts and walking paths throughout the project.

Most houses will be of a cluster design with large areas of open space. There will be mineral baths and complete recreation and commercial facilities. Housing unit prices are expected to be in the mid-$20,000 to mid-$40,000 range.

It is anticipated model homes will be ready in the fall of 1972 and that the first residents can begin to move into the project in early 1973.

'Recreational retailing' concept evident in 'Old Towne'

The marriage of architecture with merchandising is the concept which developer Robert R. Brindle is incorporating into the $30 million Old Towne Mall, under construction in Torrance.

He labels this concept "recreational retailing" and says the 320,000-square-foot enclosed and air conditioned facility has been engineered especially as a merchandising entity.

"We have used the value of good old fashioned architectural design with the needs of present day retailing. Our objective is to provide fun, entertainment, convenience and atmosphere for the consumer, and good business for our merchants," explains Brindle, a specialist in shopping center leasing, development and management.

Situated on 18 acres on the northeast corner of Hawthorne and Del Amo Boulevards, the mall is the beginning of a major construction project based on the recreational retailing concept expected to eventually encompass the Torrance intersection.

WITHIN three months, two 12-story office buildings atop a plaza, will go under construction on 11 acres along the south perimeter of the mall fronting on Del Amo. Richard O. Prior & Associates, Long Beach architects, has completed the preliminary phase of the design.

The Ralph W. Evans Company, currently ahead of schedule on the mall construction, will be the contractor.

The 142 merchants to occupy Old Towne when the mall opens Sept. 19, will find their stores showcased architecturally as individual attractions.

A walk down the winding cobblestone street that runs the length of the mall will feature more than 50 different geographical regions of architecture depicted in the design of the store fronts dating from the days of the Old West to the turn of the century.

"This is the first shopping mall in the world to achieve a three dimensional effect which allows the customer to see the store before he gets to it. Normally, only a corner store would get such exceptional visibility," says Brindle.

ALSO incorporated into the design will be balconies where roving live entertainment will be featured to move people within the mall. A $50,000 antique carousel will be at the main entrance.

Fifty cast-iron light standards, which 70 years ago lit the streets of downtown Long Beach, are being reconditioned and will be used to light the interior. Old fashioned bus benches will also dot the streets of Old Towne along with memorabilia ranging from antique cars to a hurdy-gurdy.

Brindle and co-developer Clifford A. Hemmerling entered into a partnership with Southern California Financial Corporation (SCFC) to develop the mall and twin high rise office buildings.

SCFC is the real estate subsidiary of City Investing Company, listed on the New York Stock Exchange.

MIK BRINDLE, leasing agent at Old Towne, holds globe and stands in front of one of 50 cast-iron light standards—used to light downtown Long Beach 70 years ago—being installed on new mall interior, in Torrance.

WORLD OF WHEELS

By ART STEPHAN
Auto Editor

The millionth Thunderbird has been built at Ford Motor Company's Los Angeles Assembly Plant, making the Ford Division flagship the first luxury car to reach that milestone.

"We're particularly proud of the milestone we are observing here and feel this is truly significant not only for Ford Motor Company, but for the industry," said Frank E. Zimmerman, Ford Division general marketing manager. "Thunderbird over the years has set the pace for many design and engineering innovations and created markets that have contributed to the health of the automobile industry."

Listing Thunderbird's accomplishments, Zimmerman said it:

- Gave Ford Division the prestigious car it needed.
- Sowed the seeds for the Ford Mustang—the most successful car of its time.
- Brought to Ford a loyal and dedicated group of buyers.

Thunderbird has led the personal luxury segment of the market in sales every year except one since it was introduced in 1955.

The millionth Thunderbird is painted a "glamour" gold with white interior, tobacco trim, white vinyl roof, and color-keyed wheel covers and grille. It has commemorative medallions in the Landau bars.

The car was a focal point of activities recently at the biennial convention of the Classic Thunderbird Club of America at Palm Springs. It was loaned for one year to the club member whose car won the "Concourse d' Elegance" competition at the convention.

THE CLUB IS MADE UP of owners of 1955-57 two-seater Thunderbirds, which were acclaimed classics just four years after the last one was built.

Explaining why production of the two-seater was discontinued in 1957, Zimmerman said "it was just plain good business."

"Our designers started working on the four-seater version (introduced in 1958) before the public saw the first two-seater," he said. "There's no doubt that the two-seater was beautifully styled. That it was named a classic car just four years after the last two-seater was produced is indeed high praise.

"But the styling of the 1958 Thunderbird also helped set industry trends. Particularly imitated were the one-piece grille and bumper and the clean, contemporary lines.

"By the end of the 1960 model year the four-passenger Thunderbird had accounted for 202,896 sales — more than four times as many as the '55-'57 models."

Thunderbird became a true luxury car for the first time in 1961. Standard equipment included automatic transmission, power steering and power brakes.

The 1964 model — available in hardtop, convertible and Landau body styles — introduced the "cockpit" look in which instruments were mounted in separate pods and a command console contained controls. It accounted for 85,661 sales, still a Thunderbird record for one year.

The four-door model was added to the Thunderbird line in 967. Passenger capacity was increased from four to six the following year.

All American Home Center in expansion

Irving Gertler, president of All American Home Center, said work is about to begin on a 4,500-square-foot expansion of sales space in the firm's two-year-old facility at 7201 Firestone, Downey.

The new sales area will be used for expanded Unfinished Furniture, Hardware, and Christmas Trim-A-Tree Departments.

All American moved to its present site two years ago. Since that opening it has expanded three times; this latest expansion scheduled for completion Aug. 31 will be the fourth.

According to Leonard Gertler, vice president and general manager, continued expansion has been necessitated by the acceptance by customers of the new stores.

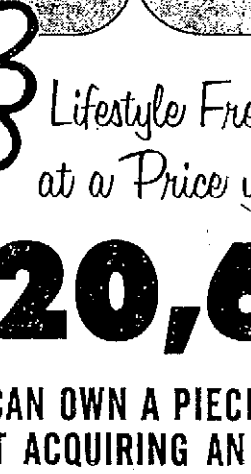

Integrated Incorporated of Paramount will be the General Contractor for the project.

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — General Electric said its Philadelphia plant has received orders for 832 modular garden apartment units for the federal housing "Operation Breakthrough" and other projects in Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, New Hampshire and Nevada. Luxurious models in the second unit of Huntington Town Homes in the choice harbor area of Huntington Beach are attracting buyer acceptance, with many units being sold to families who have been home-seeking since models in the first unit were completely sold out soon after opening, according to Alex Graham, sales agent.

Dunn sells interest in Carson Mall center

Dunn Properties Corp., a subsidiary of Los Angeles-based Pacific Lighting Corp. (NYSE) has announced it has sold its interest in the Carson Mall regional shopping center to Continental Illinois Properties, a Los Angeles-based real estate investment trust.

The exact sales price was not disclosed, but it is "substantially in excess of $5 million," according to Rogers Severson, executive vice president of Dunn.

Headquartered in Santa Ana, Dunn Properties is primarily involved in the business of building, leasing and selling industrial and business parks.

For almost two years, Dunn has been working with the city of Carson and major department stores to assemble the first major regional shopping center in the area.

Severson said that after all of the arrangements had been completed Dunn decided to sell the property because it is not in the commercial development business.

SEVERSON said that prior to making the sale Dunn made sure it had fully met all of its commitments to the City of Carson.

Continental Illinois Properties is managed by Continental Illinois Properties Advisors, a wholly-owned subsidiary of Continental Illinois Corp., the one-bank holding company for Continental Illinois Bank of Chicago.

Continental Illinois Properties is one of the largest real estate investment trusts in the country. It has been listed in the over-the-counter market since it went public last November with a $120 million stock issue.

Severson said Continental Illinois has both the financial resources and the capability to develop the Carson Mall in keeping with the plans made by Dunn for the shopping center. These plans were shown to,. and approved by, Carson city officials, Severson said.

Carson Mall includes 71 acres near the San Diego Freeway bounded by Del Amo Boulevard on the north and Avalon Boulevard on the west. The new shopping center will serve a population of more than 500,000.

Sears, Roebuck and Co., J. C. Penney and Broadway have recently purchased land for major department stores at the site, Severson said.

IN PLANNING NEXT HOUSE

Ideal home laundry in combinations

NEW YORK (UPI) —The old rule: Monday, washday; Tuesday, ironing . . . may not apply any more, but laundry still is a fact of life in any home and the wise homeowner will plan for it.

Just as any day — or every day — may be washday, just about any room can serve as the laundry. And, with a little thought, the chore can be turned into an opportunity for those who launder to do something they enjoy.

Like to sew? Combine laundry and sewing facilities (you should have tools for mending nearby anyway — and pressing is essential to sewing) and stitch away while washer and dryer go through their paces.

Have a green thumb? What about a greenhouse-laundry. A simple greenhouse, built on a slab, perhaps adjoining the kitchen, could make an attractive and efficient addition.

A shutterbug could combine darkroom and laundry — with careful separation of functions so photo chemicals don't get into the wash, and bleach in the developing pan.

Does the man of the family shut himself off in a basement workshop? Generally, it's step-saving to keep the laundry in living areas, but many families have found the workshop-laundry combination a companionable one.

PERHAPS you never seem to find time to curl up with a good book. A comfy chair, good reading light and a bookshelf, along with washer and dryer, will give you the perfect opportunity. Same goes for the gal who would write — letters or fiction — if only she had the time. Combine home office and laundry — and make washtime your time for settling down at the typewriter.

These suggestions come from the Maytag Encyclopedia of Home Laundry, a pocket book size treasury on everything to do with laundering and laundries.

Maytag says to be really efficient your laundry should contain:

—An automatic washer and dryer with the features you need to do your laundry. Those requirements differ from family to family.

—Space to pre-sort and store soiled clothes.

—Storage area for laundry aids and stain removal supplies.

—Space to fold clothes and store those that require ironing.

—Sink for pre-treating and other laundering needs.

—Place to hand permanent press items as they come from the dryer, and other items as they are ironed.

—Provision for ironing — storage of board and iron.

—Provision for mending supplies.

IN LOCATING your laundry, consider your work habits, available space, and availability of plumbing and utility connections. The ideal location, according to Maytag, is near the source of soiled clothes and the storage space for clean ones, but it really depends upon you. The hall, a large bath, an extra-large closet, a corner of the bedroom, one end of the family room, a utility or mud room, a pantry off the kitchen, even a breezeway if you live in a warm climate, can be utilized. Ideally, of course, put your laundry in a room of its own, and combine it with your favorite hobby.

Maytag offers the following planning tips.:

—Be sure work surfaces are a comfortable level. Counter height is correct for you when you can stand and rest your hands on it with your arms comfortably relaxed from the shoulder. You should not have to raise your hands above the level of your elbows while folding clothes. For women of average height, counters 36 inches high are right for maintaining correct posture and avoiding fatigue.

—Comfortable counter depth depends on the length of your arms.

HUD has advice for home buyers

NEW YORK (UPI) — Two out of every three buyers select a used house — and the one out of three who buys a new house is likely to purchase one already built.

It's a choice each home buyer must make for himself, but whatever the choice, the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) has some good advice on "Wise Home Buying."

In a new booklet of that title — a handy pocket-size volume every house hunter would do well to ask for — HUD has suggestions on how to decide whether you are ready for a home, whether you can afford it, where to look for one, what to look for in a home, and your obligations once you own it.

Whether you decide on a new or an older home, "Once you've found a house you like," HUD advises, "evaluate it carefully. You are buying the property 'as is' and you must literally live in as well as with your mistakes."

IF IT'S AN older home, HUD recommends a thorough inspection to reveal hidden defects and obvious remodeling needs — and suggests if you have any doubts at all, a $50 or $100 fee for professional inspection will be money well spent. Wiring, heating, plumbing — particularly plumbing that includes a septic tank — are areas where expert advice is particularly helpful.

However, HUD warns, if you call in experts, first check their reputations and beware of unscrupulous operators who may justify their fee by exaggerating flaws which they may want to repair at inflated costs.

If it appears repairs and improvements are needed, have a clear understanding as part of any purchase agreement as to what the seller will pay for and what you will have to be responsible for.

HUD suggests 10 areas that deserve special attention in older houses:

—Termite infestation and wood rot. This calls for expert knowledge and is of extreme importance, especially in areas of the country that have a history of infestation.

—Sagging structure.

—Inadequate wiring. Be sure wiring is in good condition, with adequate amperage and enough electric outlets.

—Heating plant. Check the general condition of the system and get an estimate of how old it is and how long it can be expected to function.

—Inadequate insulation.

—Faulty plumbing. Try to check with the plumber who last serviced the house. Check for water pressure. If possible, choose a house connected to a public sewer system.

—Hot water heater. Check condition and capacity of system.

—Roof and gutters.

—Wet basements. A basement that's dry in summer can be a different story in spring. Check for signs of water around foundation walls.

—Examine condition of outside paint and paper inside. Be sure windows and doors operate and are in repair. Inspect floor and wall tile and fixtures. Determine if the house plan is, or can be made, suitable for your way of living. Get all available instructions and warranties for equipment, names of service people.

Two homes available at Casa Del Amo

Two homes have become belatedly available to new home-buyers at the Casa Del Amo homesite in Cerritos.

Bob Solomon of SIR Development Company, builder of the project, said: "We've been sold out for several weeks, but one of our buyers has been unexpectedly transferred out of the area, while another home is available do to a credit rejection."

Both of the homes are Cabrillo Plans, with three bedrooms, kitchen, living and family rooms, formal dining rooms and two-car garages.

Luxury features of the homes include electronic air cleaners, luminous kitchen ceiling, deluxe range with double oven, dishwasher and disposal, fireplace, fenced rear yard and concrete driveway.

"ONE OF the homes has an upgraded electric oven," Solomon noted, "which the previous family had already installed before their transfer was ordered."

The homes are located across the street from a proposed 82-acre park site which is to be developed by the Los Angeles County Parks and Recreation Department.

When finished, the park will include football and baseball fields, playgrounds, wading pools, covered pavilion, picnic grounds and tables and ample parking areas.

CASA DEL AMO is also centrally located to five major arteries — the Santa Ana, Artesia, San Gabriel, Garden Grove and San Diego Freeways.

They provide rapid access to the vast array of recreational, educational, employment and shopping facilities in the Los Angeles and Orange County areas.

The office for the special sale of these two homes will be in one of them at 20008 Teresa Way, just west of the corner of Eckelson Street and Bloomfield Avenue, one block north of Del Amo Boulevard in Cerritos.

Fairway Estates sold out; 2nd unit planned

Holstein Industries' Fairway Estates development in the company's Green Valley development in Fountain Valley is sold out, president George M. Holstein, III announced.

The $3 million project included 91 single-story garden homes.

Following the sellout of the development, Holstein will add 31 more homes to the second unit, with plans calling for opening late in the summer. Prices will continue to be in the $40,000 price range, Holstein explained.

The new section of the three and four-bedroom Fairway homes will be located near the Green Valley community pool and recreation center. The site is also near Mile Square public golf course and park in the Orange County City of Fountain Valley.

Thre Green Valley community is offering Park Royale Homes and the new Seville Garden Home section with models on Los Jardines just south of Warner Avenue near Brookhurst in Fountain Valley.

Building plant

NORFOLK, Va. (UPI) — Lone Star Industries, Inc., said it will join the La Farge group of France and England in building a $3 million plant at Norfolk to make calcium aluminate cement, a fast hardening cement for refractory furnaces and chemical plants.

Wagner expands

NEWARK, N.J. (UPI) — Wagner Electric Co. will build new plants in Tennessee at Sparta and Sevierville, President Frank J. Ehringer told the annual meeting. The Sparta plant, on which work has started, will produce automotive lamps; the Sevierville plant, cigarette lighters and similar products.

Cutting lead

NEW YORK (UPI) — Texaco, Inc., announced it will spend $150 million on new hydrotreating facilities at four of its domestic refineries in order to cut the lead content of gasoline. The refineries are located at Anacortes, Wash.; West Tulsa, Okla., and Lockport and Lawrenceville, Ill. Contract for the work was awarded to Bechtel Corp. of San Francisco.

GREAT Dane buyers. check before you buy. Buy from a breeder who x-ray's his stock, see's that his puppies have been cropped, wormed and had shots. Buy from someone who cares enough about the breed to breed according to ethics, not because he has a puppy factory. Beware of $50 & $75 puppies. Get what you pay for. Don't ruin our noble breed. A great Dane admirer.

HELP ME! I'M FREE I'm just a little 3-5 month old puppy and I was lost on 6th & Atlantic Ave., when I was found by a nice person. But they can't keep me, and I'm looking for a good home. I'm part germ. shep. and I'm really friendly. Call 436-6789 before 6 p.m.

Bank greets Hodges executives with flowers as they enter East-West center

When executives of Rex L. Hodges Realty moved into their new offices in Anaheim's picturesque East-West Shopping Center, they were greeted with an enormous bouquet of flowers presented by a Sumitomo Bank official. George Yamashiro, assistant vice president of the bank branch at the center, gave the flowers to Hodges vice president Bernie Jones and office manager Phil Konan on behalf of the bank manager, vice president Frank Omatsu.

The new Hodges location is at 2943 W. Ball Road on the corner of Beach Boulevard. There are several unusual businesses with an oriental flavor in the shopping center. Sumitomo Bank is offering Hodges customers conventional home loans with terms up to 30 years. There are no pre-payment penalties, no impounds, and interest rates as low as 7.25 per cent.

East-West Furniture, Inc., is also housed in the center. They have served Anaheim residents with imported oriental furniture and custom carpets and draperies for over six years. President Kimio "Butch" Tamura is a veteran of more than 25 years in the furniture business. The firm also offers a custom interior decorating service.

Nippon Foods, at 2935 W. Ball Road, specializes in foods from Japan, the Philippines, and Taiwan. Proprietor Shigeo Yamasaki is a native of Japan.

The Asaki Beauty Salon in the East-West Shopping Center is owned by Mrs. Nancy Inoue, who has won many professional awards for hair dressing. She is a member of the Orange County Coiffeurs Guild and the California Cosmetologists Association.

Kyoto Oriental Gifts, at 2947 W. Ball Road, sells Japanese stereo tapes and records, in addition to a complete line of oriental gifts. Masaru Morita is the proprietor.

Ann Takahama operates the Naris cosmetics store in the center, and Kiyoshi Ikai's Miki Tea House is a popular restaurant serving authentic Japanese foods. The tea house is open daily except Tuesdays for dining from 11:30 a.m. to 9:00 p.m.

Hodges offers no payment equity loans to sellers

Home owners who list their homes with Rex L. Hodges Realty may take advantages of an exclusive equity loan plan, wherein no payment is made on the loan until the property has been sold, according to president Robert C. Westmyer.

These equity loans are repaid out of the proceeds of the sale of the home.

Some owners use the Hodges loans to renovate their property so it will bring a higher price when sold; others need cash to complete the down payment on a new home. Occasionally, some pressing personal problem is the reason for requesting this loan service.

Because of their size, the Hodges organization is able to guarantee the sale of a home if the owner so desires. If the seller wants his money in full in as little as five days, Hodges will also buy a home themselves for all cash.

Complete information may be obtained from any Hodges office.

Rex L. Hodges Realty opens new Anaheim office:

Sales people sought to staff 19 other locations

Another new office for Rex L. Hodges Realty has been opened in the unique East-West Shopping Center in Anaheim, according to Robert C. Westmyer, president of the rapidly expanding real estate firm. 19 more offices will be added as soon as qualified sales personnel can be found to staff them.

Manager for the new office is Phil Konan, who became a top salesman in the Hodges Cypress office in only one year. "We believe in finding people with potential," Westmyer stated, "and advancing them within the organization as rapidly as possible. Phil Konan is a prime example of a man who has worked hard and taken advantage of our exclusive training program to make a lucrative career for himself." Westmyer stressed that Hodges is "going all out" to attract sales men and women with real estate licenses. "We're advertising in newspapers and on radio. Applicants are told to contact our vice president and sales manager directly to learn about Hodges and what we offer. His name is Bernie Jones, and he wants to talk to each salesman personally." Jones may be reached at his office on his own private telephone lines. His special phone numbers are: (714) 839-5501 and (213) 435-6381.

Rex L. Hodges offices currently serve more than 45 communities. All existing offices have been recently refurbished or remodeled, and some have been enlarged in the past few weeks by as much as 2,200 square feet. Hodges also owns a complete property management company, an escrow service, and an insurance company. New sales people are trained in an ultra-modern educational division with closed-circuit television facilities.

Rex L. Hodges Realty was founded in 1929 and has expanded continuously for the past 43 years.

Hodges vice president Bernie Jones surveys "Rex L. Hodges" country as he stands in front of a large billboard in Cypress.

Trevino slams the door on Nicklaus, wins second consecutive British Open

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Jack's bid just misses

MUIRFIELD, Scotland (AP) — Lee Trevino, shaking off the choking pressure applied by Jack Nicklaus in an incredible bid for victory, sank a saving 30-foot chip shot and won the British Open Golf Championship Saturday.

It was a heartbreaking defeat for Nicklaus who saw his dream of a first-ever Grand Slam vanish as his course record-equaling 66 fell one stroke short of Trevino.

The self-styled Super Mex scored his second successive British Open victory—the first man since Arnold Palmer in 1962-62 to do so—with an up-and-down round of 71 for a 72-hole total of 278, six under par, on the 6,892-yard Muirfield links on the Scottish Moors.

Nicklaus, starting the day six strokes back of Trevino, birdied six of the first 11 holes and gained a share of the lead with Trevino and Tony Jacklin.

But the 32-year-old Golden Bear bogeyed the 16th and lost his chance for a Grand Slam of the U.S. and British Opens, Masters and American PGA, when Trevino canned his pressure chip. Nicklaus already had won the Masters and U.S. Open.

Jacklin, the 26-year-old Englishman who won this crown in 1969, finished bogey-bogey, to drop from a share of the top spot to third with a 72-280.

Veteran Doug Sanders was next with a 70-281 and was followed by Brian Barnes of England, 71-283 and Gary Player of South Africa, 67-285.

"I'm the great chipper in the world," Trevino told a friend after he chipped in from ankle-deep rough on the par 5 17th for a par that saved the day for the defending champion.

The lead fluctuated with almost tick-tock regularity on the bright and sunny day that drew a gallery of almost 20,000—including Princess Margaret—to the links just south of the Firth of Forth.

Trevino and Jacklin, in the final twosome, were playing the 17th, while Nicklaus was working on the very difficult 18th, a long par 4.

At that stage Trevino and Jacklin were tied for the lead at six under and Nicklaus, who had dropped out of a share of the top spot with a bogey on the par 3 16th, was five under.

Jacklin drove into perfect position but the 32-year-old Trevino, who last year captured the imagination of the world with his rags-to-riches success in three national opens, put his tee shot in a deep bunker.

The squat Trevino bulldozed his way out. The shot found the knee-deep rough while Jacklin put his second in short rough just in front of the green.

Trevino hit his third into even more rough and was in three inches of heather and thistle with his fourth.

Jacklin pitched up about 15 feet short of the flat and was lying three while Trevino was four and not on the

'Shoeless' Quack romps in Gold Cup

By HANK HOLLINGWORTH
Staff Writer

Even the great make mistakes as the world's winningest jockey, Bill Shoemaker, proved Saturday when the mount he turned down, Quack, scorched the Hollywood Park track to score a five and one-half length victory in the $175,000 Hollywood Gold Cup and tied a world record in the process.

The Eastern invader, Droll Role (9-2), finished second to the favored Quack, a neck ahead of War Heim, who was bet down from 15-1 to a surprising 6-1. Another longshot, Single Agent (27-1), was a length behind War Heim.

In the previous 32 runnings of the Gold Cup only one three-year-old had won the richest race in the country for handicap horses and that was Round Table in 1957.

But Quack became No. 2 in his record-breaking performance.

Quack's time for the mile and one-quarter dirt race was 1:58 1-5, which equalled Noor's mark way back in 1950 at Golden Gate Fields. The previous track and Gold Cup record was shared by Swaps (1956) and Round Table (1957). The only comparable mark was a 1:58 flat by Quilche over the partially downhill course at Santa Anita.

Quack's supporters in the crowd of 43,997 who sent the son of T. V. Lark off the 5-2 favorite were rewarded with a $7.40 payoff.

Shoemaker had been Quack's regular rider his entire career, but he opted to ride Buzkashi Saturday for his friend, Mrs. Marjorie Everett, Hollypark's newest board of directors member.

Quack's trainer, Charlie Whittingham, explained Shoemaker's change of heart.

"Shoemaker was going to ride Cougar II in the Gold Cup, but Cougar came up with a slight infection, and he hesitated on accepting Quack's mount immediately," said the trainer who had won his second Gold Cup.

"So I had to get a rider for Quack and chose Laffit

Expos tumble Dodgers, 3-2

By GORDON VERRELL
Staff Writer

First they moved an entire bank of lights, hoping that might solve some of the Dodger Stadium third base problems.

Then it was bad hops that were plaguing third basemen.

The next move will be to abandon the position altogether.

The never-ending merry-go-round at third base continues.

This afternoon when the Dodgers conclude a three-game series with the dreaded Montreal Expos, the O'Malleys will employ their third different third baseman in as many days.

Saturday night it was Jim Lefebvre's turn and he did the same thing everybody else who's tried third base has done.

He threw away an easy grounder and it enabled the Expos to score an unearned run in a 3-2 victory over the Dodgers before a gathering of 42,102.

The Expos shoved across the winning run in the eighth, breaking a 2-2 tie and sending Bill Singer to his eighth defeat and fifth in a row.

Singer was reactivated just hours before the game but he probably wishes his busted knuckle hadn't healed to fast.

He relieved Al Downing in the seventh and after

MARIANNE TROUNCED BY LAURA

PEBBLE BEACH (UPI) — Laura Baugh, the U.S. women's champion, defeated high school teammate Marianne Stangeland, 6 and 5, Saturday to win her second successive California junior girls golf title.

Playing over the par 73 Shore Course at Monterey Peninsula, the 17-year-old Miss Baugh made the turn in even par and then closed out the match with her 16-year-old rival from Wilson High in Long Beach on the fourth hole of the back nine.

In addition to winning the U.S. Women's title this year Miss Baugh also played on the Curtis Cup team. She will be a senior this fall.

Trade to Chargers was 'shock'

Deacon still disappointed

When Deacon Jones, the Rams' 11-year "secretary of defense" who was traded after last season to the San Diego Chargers, was asked if he had any differences with rookie Ram coach Tommy Prothro in 1971, the eight-time all-pro didn't ride the fence with his response.

"Prothro and I spent one year together," said the Deacon. "There's nothing I wouldn't do for him and there's nothing he wouldn't do for me.

"So we spent one year doing nothing for each other."

With that fact established, Jones continued:

"The only way you can make a coach eat his words is between the goal posts.

"I only hope Tommy Protho brings his salt Sept. 2 when we meet the Rams in San Diego."

IT'S NO SECRT that Deacon's trade to the Chargers upset many people, especially the defensive lineman who anchored the Rams' famed Fearsome Foursome for so many campaigns.

HANK HOLLINGWORTH

"I was disappointed in getting traded," remarked Jones, who is training at the Charger camp in Irvine instead of at Long Beach State with the Rams. "But getting traded is part of the game of football. Somehow, though, you never expect it to happen to you, and when it does, it's a shock.

"I missed some games last season because of an injured foot, but I didn't think I saw any signs of me going downhill.

"If that was the Rams' thinking, they were wrong. At least the Chargers didn't think there was anything wrong with me.

"By the way, that injury was the only one I had during 20 years of playing football.

"I'm in great shape now. I weigh a streamlined 275 pounds and I'm ready. But I'm saving it all for Sept. 2."

"I ENJOYED my 11 years with the Rams," continued Deacon, "but I don't expect to play another 11 with the Chargers. I can quit any time, but if I stay in shape, I think I can go another five years.

"I don't know anything about the Chargers' defense except the starting defensive team will be composed of the Deacon and 10 other people."

Who does Deacon think is the toughest offensive lineman in football?

"There are plenty of tough ones," replied Jones, "but Bob Brown of the Oakland Raiders is the strongest, and I've got him twice this season."

Which running backs, if any, does Deacon fear?

"I fear no runner," shot back Jones. "At my defensive line position, I catch the runners before they get up a head of steam. Besides, I outweigh those runners by at least 50 pounds."

WHAT DOES Jones think about the alleged attempted sale of a Ram playbook by Karl Sweetan to the New Orleans Saints?

"I agree with Paul Brown," snapped the Deacon. "The incident was blown out of proportion. The league shouldn't have called in the FBI."

Brown had said he didn't think a playbook helped another team very much. He even remarked that he gave away some of his Cleveland Brown and Cincinnati Bengal playbooks to his deserving players who were going into coaching. He definitely thought the FBI shouldn't have been involved.

"Everyone has someone else's playbooks," chuckled the Deacon. "I certainly have one of the Rams'."

There should be a hot time in old San Diego the night of Sept. 2.

MARLIN McKEEVER, the Rams' defensive signal-caller, voiced the same sentiments as Paul Brown and the Deacon regarding the Sweetan playbook case.

"The issue wasn't that important," said the 1972 Rams' most valuable player at George Lederer's Anaheim Stadium luncheon. "I have four or five playbooks at home and if anybody wants to shop, he can come and see me.

"But I won't make any transaction out-of-state or by telephone."

MARLIN McKEEVER

Since the Deacon had some comments about Tommy Prothro, Marlin was asked how he got along with the sophomore Ram coach.

"In one year, Prothro and the players got used to each other," replied McKeever. "It's a tough thing for a new coach to step into a pro job, remember that.

"But after one year with Prothro, the Ram players think we can beat anybody in football. It was a big change from George Allen to Prothro, but now everybody's used to one another, so I don't see any problems."

Allen's game plan was a controlled one, based primarily on defense. Does Marlin expect the Rams to return to a defensive pattern or go another season for the big plays?

"Prothro's a big play man," replied McKeever. "He likes to go for the bomb and the long yardage running plays. I can't see him changing to a defensive game now."

WHAT ABOUT the Rams' defense?

"Linebacking, with myself and Isiah Robertson, will be very strong," laughed Marlin. "This is the best I've EVER felt before a season.

"With Deacon gone, we probably won't have as strong a pass rush, so we'll probably make some changes in that regard."

Does McKeever plan to remain in football after his playing days and how many more will those be?

"I won't be a coach," emphasized the former USC all-America. "I hope to play another four years, which would give me 15 in the NFL. That's enough. I'm a marketing consultant in the off-season and I like that type of work."

How many rookies will make this season's Ram squad?

"Prothro likes rookies, but I don't see how many can make it this time," said Marlin. "Last season we had a lot of rookies and now they're experienced, and that will hurt the present rookies. We'll probably keep three or four, but I have no idea of which ones."

What was Marlin's most embarrassing incident?

"The year I reported to camp weighing 256," blushed McKeever.

What is his weight now?

"A very comfortable 235," informed Marlin.

It might be comfortable to McKeever, but it probably will be a source of discomfort to several running backs in the league, even if they have Ram playbooks.

Northrup lifts Tigers past Royals

DETROIT (AP) — Jim Northrup drove in two runs with a single and contributed to two other rallies as the Detroit Tigers whipped the Kansas City Royals 5-3 Saturday.

Northrup's bad-hop single past shortstop Fred Patek gave the Tigers a 2-0 lead in the first.

Then in the fifth, Northrup doubled and scored as a fly by Bill Freehan bounced off the left field fence railing for a two-base hit, giving Detroit a 3-0 advantage.

Aurelio Rodriguez led off the Tiger seventh with a double off Mike Hedlund, took third on Northrup's sacrifice fly and eventually scored on a passed ball by catcher Ed Kirkpatrick. Then Norm Cash drove in Detroit's fifth run with a double.

Tom Timmerman, 7-7, was working on a two-hitter until singles by Rich Scheinblum, Lou Piniella, Kirkpatrick and Cookie Rojas produced two Royal runs in the seventh.

They added another in the eighth when Patek singled, stole second and came home on a single by Scheinblum.

Stephenson homer stuns Brewers, 4-3

By DON MERRY
Staff Writer

MILWAUKEE — The saga of John Stephenson will never make the best seller lists. In fact, it is not likely to ever be written.

John Stephenson, 31, professional catcher for the Angels. You may be pardoned for inquiring John who?

John Stephenson has six years in the major league pension plan but about the only people who have ever heard of him are his manager and his wife.

He is, as they say, a journeyman player who toils diligently only to be forever enveloped in the shroud of obscurity.

He is not so anonymous in Milwaukee, however.

Stephenson introduced himself to relief pitcher Ken Sanders and an assemblage of 7,160 Saturday afternoon by belting a

ANGEL OF DAY

JOHN STEPHENSON belted two-run homer in ninth as Angels rallied to shade Milwaukee, 4-3.

two-run pinch-hit homer in the top of the ninth as the Angels rallied for three runs to nip the Brewers, 4-3, and present Clyde Wright with his 10th victory.

Trailing 3-1 entering the last inning, the Angels realized a stroke of good fortune when Leo Cardenas ripped a line drive to deep left. John Briggs went back to the wall, leaped up and, for a moment, cradled the ball in his glove. Then his head slammed into the wall and he slumped to the ground while the ball fell loose at his feet.

Cardenas seized this opportunity to circle the bases with an inside-the park home run while Briggs lay motionless at the base of the fence-unconscious.

When Art Kusnyer singled with one out, Milwaukee manager Del Crandall replaced starting pitcher Gary Ryerson with Sanders and Stephenson was summoned to bat for Wright.

He responded by hitting his first homer of the season.

Stephenson appeared in 98 games for the Angels last season. He got off to a torrid start and was above the magic .300 mark for half of the season before a series of minor injuries took their predictable toll. He finished at .219 and this winter was placed on the Salt Lake City roster.

"I was deeply disappointed," he related in a buoyant Angel clubhouse. "In my own mind I felt I had a good year and at my age I didn't want to go back to the minors."

John Stephenson then confided he seriously thought about quitting the game he loves in favor of a baseball coaching job at William Carey College in Hattiesburg, Miss.

"I was trying to decide what to do when I received a nice letter from Harry Dalton (the Angel GM)," Stephenson explained. "He told me what my status was and that I would likely be back in Anaheim shortly after the season started. When I heard that I decided to give it one more year and see what happens."

Dalton was a man of his word and Stephenson was recalled from Salt Lake on May 14, a month into the season.

Stephenson has displayed his appreciation by hitting at a .367 clip and Saturday marked his second game winning hit for the Angels. Only Bob Oliver, with three, has more.

"Me hit a home run, are you kidding.?" Stephenson laughed when it was asked if he were trying to hit one out against Sanders. "Haven't you heard, I don't hit home runs.'

Last season Stephenson went to then General Manager Dick Walsh. At the time, Stephenson was making perilously close to the major league minimum of $13,500.

"Your average is too low," Walsh replied.

"But I've been playing hurt," Stephenson pleaded.

"I didn't know that,' Walsh retorted and the raise was rejected.

This winter, Dalton gave him a boost.

Another may be forthcoming next winter, too.

ANGEL ANGELS: Wright threw only 88 pitched in eight innings, 59 of them were for strikes. "I felt loose and easy," Wright said. Two years ago, when he won 22 games, Wright was (12-6) on July 16. Today he is 10-4 . . . Lloyd Allen (2-6) and Rudy May (2-7) will face Milwaukee's Bill Parsons (6-7) and Jim Colborn (2-0) in a double-header today. The first game will appear on KTLA (Ch. 5), at 11 a.m. Ken Berry singled home the first Angel run in the fifth but in the same inning Wright yielded a two-run homer to George Scott, his ninth. Milwaukee got its final run in the eighth on Mike Ferraro's scoring single . . . Steve Barber, who has not permitted a run in 12.2 innings, will get his first start Monday night in Boston . . . Cardenas' homer extended his hitting streak to seven games . . . Cardenas is batting .320 for July.

Cuellar homers as Orioles edge Sox

BALTIMORE (AP) — Dave Johnson drove in three runs, two of them with his third home run of the season, to lead Mike Cuellar and the Baltimore Orioles to a 6-3 victory over the Chicago White Sox Saturday night.

The Orioles, winning their third game in row, remained within one game of first-place Detroit in the American League East while Chicago, dropping its fourth in a row, slagged 6½ games back of front-running Oakland in the West.

Cuellar, scattering nine hits as he raised his record to 8-7, chipped in with two RBI, one on his second homer of the season in the seventh inning.

The Orioles took a 2-0 lead in the fourth as Robby Grich walked and trotted home following Johnson's homer into the left-field seats off Stan Bahnsen, 11-10.

The White Sox got a run back in the sixth on singles by Luis Alvarado, Bahnsen and Dick Allen but Baltimore made it 3-1 in the bottom of the inning as Grich was hit by a pitch, moved to third on a wild pitch and an error and scored on Johnson's grounder to second.

The Orioles wrapped it up in the eighth on run-scoring singles by Cuellar and Don Buford, offsetting Ed Spiezio's two-run double in the ninth for Chicago.

Chambliss sparks 6-run Cleveland second inning

ARLINGTON (AP) — Chris Chambliss' two-run double capped a six-run Cleveland uprising in the second inning Saturday night and Dick Tidrow made it stand up with ease, hurling a four-hitter as the Indians defeated the Texas Rangers, 7-0, in an American League game.

The Cleveland second included four hits, three for extra bases, three walks, and two Ranger errors.

Rich Billings' misjudgment of Buddy Bell's fly ball, which fell in for a double, opened the way for the rally which made a loser out of Casey Cox, 2-2.

Tom McCraw's homer to right-center field in the fifth off Don Stanhouse, the third Texas pitcher, completed the Indians' scoring.

Tidrow, recording his sixth victory against nine losses, struck out three and walked only one.

Errors ruin Boston, 7-1

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI) — Bobby Darwin hit a two-run homer and the Minnesota Twins took advantage of John Kennedy's error to score five unearned runs in the sixth inning Saturday to down the Boston Red Sox, 7-1.

Darwin's two-run homer, his 12th, and Rod Carew's three hits in four at-bats, giving him nine hits in his last 12 at-bats and boosting his average to .308, helped the Twins win their fourth in a row.

Cesar Tovar, Charley Manuel and Darwin each had two hits for the Twins, who collected 11 hits before a crowd of 20,709, the largest home crowd of the year.

Five of the Twin runs came in the sixth after an error by Boston shortstop Kennedy, one of 10 Boston errors in the three games against the Twins and the seventh by Boston shortstops. Juan Beniquez made the first six.

Darwin's homer followed a single by Manuel and gave the Twins a 2-0 lead against loser Lynn McGlothen in the second.

Consecutive singles by Carlton Fisk, Danny Cater and Kennedy accounted for Boston's run in the seventh.

Women making presence felt

For men only sports dwindle

(Editor's note: It's women, women everywhere in sports these days. UPI has conducted a survey to find out what they're doing and "what makes Sally run.")

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mrs. Bernice Gera won a six-year legal battle for the right to become professional baseball's first lady umpire only to quit after one game because she felt male umpires weren't cooperating with her.

The 41-year-old New Yorker may have let down many women's libbers with her hasty resignation but at least she proved her point — that women can qualify as baseball umpires.

They're also qualifying in a flock of other sports hitherto regarded as "for men only" in a surge of competitive zeal that's become an unexpected phenomenon of the 1970's.

Women are battling head-and-head against men as jockeys, race car drivers, airplane stunt pilots, rifle shooters and in rugged cross-country runs including the historic Boston Marathon.

Until they were sidelined by a collegiate "men only" rule, 18-year-old Vicky Brown served as coxswain of the men's varsity rowing crew at the University of Oregon and Karen Weiss of Vermont's Windham College played two basketball games with the men's varsity.

Mrs. Roberta Cohen, recently named assistant athletic director at the City College of New York, is believed to be the first woman to hold such a position at a co-ed college. Part of her assignment is to build a new sports program for women with national intercollegiate competition projected for the future.

School girls recently have competed on boys' teams in golf, tennis, polo, and track in scattered areas where liberal rules permit mixed competition in non-contact sports.

In competitions against their own sex, girls and women are every bit as dedicated as their male counterparts and sometimes are more successful, as in the case of United States Winter Olympians.

America's girl skaters and skiers won seven medals — including three golds — in Sapporo, Japan. American men collected only one — a bronze medal for third place in ice hockey.

Women will tackle most anything, including each other. The most unusual project so far is an all-girl pro football league with teams in New York, Detroit, Cleveland and Pittsburgh.

There's an all-girl hockey league in Boston, all-girl Little League-style baseball in Detroit and all-girl rowing at some 20 colleges in New England. In addition, there are scores of long-established women's track clubs and swim clubs that develop U.S. Olympic talent.

So far, there is no simple answer to the question of "What makes Sally run?"

In a survey by United Press International, some officials credited the increased interest to attitudes fostered by the Women's Liberation movement. But many gal athletes don't agree.

"It was a blow for my own individuality, not for Women's Lib," says 25-year-old Kathy Switzer Miller of Syracuse, N.Y., who finished ahead of some 200 men in this year's Boston Marathon. "Running is the best thing in the world I can do for my body. The men I beat don't seem to mind. They just assume I trained harder than they did."

"I don't believe in this women's lib stuff," says Mary Keys of Springfield, Va., freshman member of East Tennessee State's rifle shooting team and top collegiate marksman in the nation last season. "I come from a shooting family and I just like to shoot."

"When it's men against women, there is always a sex battle," admits hard-riding jockey Mary Bacon. "But I ride a horse race, not a jockey race."

"Our bunch calls it Women's Lob," facetiously notes Billie Jean King, the first lady athlete ever to win more than $100,000 in a single year (1971) and current holder of both the U.S. and Wimbledon singles championships.

According to Dr. Kenneth D. Miller, professor of physical education and women's track coach at Florida State, only the most naive would wonder at all why women are willing to sacrifice time and energy in the body punishing area of competitive athletics.

"Women really are of the same species as men and some people can't seem to understand there are quite a number of them out there," says Miller. "Many of these women are beginning to act like any other man animal instead of conforming to unnatural, stereotyped, illogical behavior patterns imposed by the male ego (and the superior physical attributes, such as strength.)"

Lacey O'Neal of Washington, a hurdler on the 1964 U.S. Women's Olympic team and again this year, concedes things are improving.

"Women athletes are getting more favorable publicity now," says Lacey. "Sports writers are starting to use words like 'grace' and 'feminity' and even 'graceful as a deer.' That influences young girls who might have had misgivings about becoming athletes and reinforces a positive image of the female athlete."

Nina Kuscsik of Huntington, N.Y., 33-year-old mother of three who was the first woman finisher in this year's Boston Marathon (beating some 400 men), began jogging with her husband as a health thing. Now that she has become something of a celebrity in the East, she says her husband isn't quite as enthusiastic about her running as he was.

"But," she insists, "he'll just have to get used to it."

A's blast Yanks, 6-2

NEW YORK (AP) — Sal Bando ripped two home runs and drove in four runs and Reggie Jackson blasted a long solo shot, leading the Oakland A's to a 6-2 victory over the New York Yankees Saturday.

After Dave Duncan singled home a run in the second inning, Bando staked starter Ken Holtzman to a 2-0 lead with his ninth homer of the season in the fourth. Bando then walloped a three-run shot in the ninth to cap the A's scoring.

Jackson earlier had broken a 2-2 tie with his 17th home run, a tape-measure wallop into the upper right field seats at Yankee Stadium.

That tie had existed since the fourth inning, when Bobby Murcer hit a two-run homer for the Yankees off Ken Holtzman, 12-7. Murcer's homer, his 10th, followed a single by a Roy White.

Rollie Fingers nailed down the victory for Oakland, pitching the last two innings after Holtzman tired in the eighth.

Phillies rock Giants for 11 runs in seventh

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Philadelphia Phillies scored a season high 11 runs in the seventh inning and went on to belt San Francisco 11-4 Saturday.

The Phillies sent 15 batters to the plate in the inning which lasted 48 minutes as the Giants used five pitchers in the frame.

Willie Montanez scored two runs in the big inning and drove in two with a double. Oscar Gamble also scored two runs in the big inning and drove in two with a double. Oscar Gamble also scored two runs in the inning and drove in two others with a triple.

The Giants took a 4-0 lead into the seventh with Frank Reberger breezing along on a two-hitter.

But he walked leadoff man Montanez and gave up a single to Don Money. He was replaced by Don McMahon, the losing pitcher, who didn't retire any of the three batters he faced.

Jerry Johnson and Randy Moffitt also were rapped by the Phillies before Don Carrithers struck out Roger Freed to end the inning.

In the big seventh inning, the Phillies collected six hits, while Giant pitchers walked six batters and had two wild pitches.

Ironically two of the outs in the inning came on sacrifice flies.

The Giants lost first baseman Dave Kingman, who leads the club with 18 home runs, for a few days with a sprained ankle. He caught his spikes on first base on a pickoff play in the first inning.

Stargell, Pagan ruin Astros, 5-1

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Willie Stargell and Jose Pagan cracked home runs to back the four-hit pitching of Dock Ellis and reliever Dave Giusti, leading the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 5-1 victory over the Houston Astros Saturday in a nationally televised baseball game.

Houston jumped to a 1-0 lead in the first on a walk and Lee May's double to right-center. But Pittsburgh responded with a run in its half of the inning on a single by Gene Clines, Vic Davalillo's double and a sacrifice fly by Al Oliver.

The Pirates seized the lead for good in the third off loser Ken Forsch when Davalillo singled and Stargell followed with his 18th home run of the season, a 400-foot belt into the right-field seats.

Pittsburgh raised the lead to 4-1 the next inning after Gene Alley doubled down the leftfield line and scored when Gene Clines' pop to right bounced past the diving Jim Wynn for a triple.

In the seventh inning Jose Pagan pinch-hit for Ellis and cracked Forsch's first pitch over the leftfield seats for his third home run of the season.

Colbert, Johnson hold lead

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Jim Colbert, seeking his second tour victory and first in three years, and erratic George Johnson, each fired two-under-par 69s Saturday to share the two-stroke lead after the third round of the $125,000 Greater Milwaukee Open Golf Tournament.

Colbert and Johnson, who had shared a one-stroke margin at the halfway point of the tournament, each were 11-under par at 202 for 54 holes over the 6,514-yard Tripoli Golf Club course.

Two strokes back were slender Buddy Allin, who also shot 69 Saturday.

Seven golfers were tied at eight-under-par in the quest for the $25,000 first prize. Among them were Bob Bourne and Bert Greene, who each shot 67s Saturday.

Others at 205 were Jim Wiechers, Grier Jones, Mike Hill, Gibby Gilbert and rookie Billy Ziobro, who had been one-down after 36 holes.

Cincy bombs Cards, 12-2

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Cesar Geronimo and Joe Morgan drove in three runs apiece as the streaking Cincinnati Reds unleashed a 16-hit attack to bury the St. Louis Cardinals 12-2 Saturday night.

The victory, Cincinnati's fifth in a row, coupled with Houston's loss to Pittsburgh in an afternoon game, widened the Reds' lead in the National League West to 3½ games over the Astros.

Singles by Pete Rose, Morgan and Bobby Tolan and Johnny Bench's sacrifice fly gave the Reds a pair of first-inning runs off Al Santorini, 4-7, before Tony Perez walked and Geronimo ripped a two-run triple to right center field, capping the outburst.

Publinx playoff today for title

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Rick Schultz, Omaha, Neb., and Bob Allard, Portland, Ore., deadlocked after the fourth round of the National Public Links golf championship Saturday to force an 18-hole playoff today.

Both fired one-under-par 69s Saturday for a 72-hole total of 285.

Dan Elliot of Portland, a teammate of Allard, finished third at 288 after a 74 Saturday. Elliot shared the lead after Friday's third round.

Sudakis provides punch as Mets turn back Padres, 2-1

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Bill Sudakis knocked in two runs with a first-inning single and Gary Gentry and Tug McGraw made them stand up by combining for a four-hitter as the New York Mets beat the San Diego Padres 2-1 in a Saturday night game.

Gentry, 4-6, allowed three hits, struck out five San Diego batters and walked four before being removed for a pinch-hitter in the eighth inning.

It was his sixth career victory against the Padres without a defeat and enabled the Mets to stay within three games of first-place Pittsburgh in the National League East.

Willie Mays drew a one-out walk from Clay Kirby, 6-9, in the decisive first, John Milner singled, the runners moved up on Dave Schneck's grounder, then Sudakis sent them scampering home with his single to center field.

The Padres' lone run came off McGraw in the bottom of the eighth on Nate Colbert's 20th homer of the season and sixth against the Mets, a two-out shot into the left field stands.

Jack Nicklaus to Lee Trevino after conclusion of British Open: "Lee, you're something else. Why don't you go back to Mexico."

Lee Trevino — "This year will be remembered not as the year I won, but the year that Nicklaus lost the Grand Slam."

Bill Shoemaker: When asked if jockeys handicap the horses just like the bettors: "Right. All jocks do the same thing. Usually it doesn't work out the way we think it will. In fact, the more we know, the less we can pick 'em. Eddie Arcaro always said he'd like to get rich being the bookie in the jockey's room."

Dave Wottle, U.S. Olympian: "When I was in high school, (Jim) Ryun was my idol. He's always been the epitome of track and field. At least now I can talk to him on equal ground. He's beaten me and I've beaten him. He even came up to talk to me after the 1,500 in Eugene."

Muhammad Ali: "It's hard to be humble when you are as good as I am."

Marlin Briscoe: on what it means to him being traded to Dolphins: "Money, yes, but exposure too. I like the idea of playing on Monday night television, but Howard Cosell never comes to Buffalo. He goes the other way."

L.B. netter ousted by London ace

ATLANTA (AP) — Steve Delaney of Potomac, Md., won a five-set marathon in semi-final action of the National Amateur Clay Court Tennis championships Saturday, setting the stage for a showdown match today with the No. 1 foreign seed, Ross Walker of London, England.

Walker breezed through the men's singles semifinal round with a 6-3, 6-2, 6-1 victory over George Hardie of Long Beach.

Delaney, a 19-year-old sophomore at Stanford University, took the first set in Saturday's battle with Steve Kurlevitz of Baltimore, but lost the next two sets, 4-6, and 2-6. In his comeback effort, Delaney won the final two sets, by 6-3 scores. Today's men's finals will be a battle of old foes. Walker and Delaney met two weeks ago in Birmingham, Ala., with Delaney the winner in three sets.

Janice Metcalf of Claremont, Calif., and Jeanne Evert of Ft. Lauderdale, advanced to the finals in women's singles competition.

Miss Metcalf trounced Kate Latham of Palo Alto, 6-1, 6-1. Miss Metcalf has lost only six games in the entire tournament.

Women's favorite Miss Evert had a little tougher time in her 6-0, 7-5, victory over Kathy Kraft of Tulsa.

In the men's doubles, Hardie teamed with Tim Vann of Los Altos to defeat Greg Jablonski, Fullerton, and Robert Chappell, Santa Barbara, 6-7, 3-6, 7-5, 6-4, 6-3.

In the other semifinal doubles match, top seed Raz Reid of Greenville, S.C, and Fred McNair, Chevy Chase, Md., defeated Delaney and Chico Haggey of La Jolla, 7-5, 4-6, 7-5, 6-7, 6-4.

Rupp joins ABA Memphis Tams

Combined News Services

Adolph Rupp, the winningest college basketball coach in history, is back in the game after a 14-day retirement.

This time, however, instead of coaching the Univ. of Kentucky Wildcats, Rupp will be serving as president of the Memphis Tams of the American Basketball Assn.

"This is the happiest day for me since I have been in sports," said Memphis' new owner Charles O. Finley Saturday in making the announcement. "From the time I purchased this basketball team, I started thinking of one individual I'd like to have to be president of this club and run it.

"That person accepted a three-year contract a few minutes ago," Finley continued. "His name is Mr. Adolph Rupp."

Rupp, who coached 42 seasons at Kentucky and won 879 and lost 190, was forced into retirement by Kentucky officials June 20 and was given a special services contract.

"My love is the university," he said. "I'll surrender my special service contract Monday, since I cannot work for the university and for another organization at the same time."

Four of his teams won NCAA titles, another won the NIT crown and 20 were Southeastern Conference champions.

Finley also announced the team's new nickname,

ADOLPH RUPP
Tams' Baron

Tams, selected from 20,000 entries in a two-week contest.

The initials of the nickname stand for Tennessee, Arkansas, and Mississippi. The Memphis city limits adjoin the Mississippi and Arkansas state lines.

"It's a real challenge," Rupp said. "I'm working for one of the finest men in America. If this were not true, I never would have agreed to go to work in the ABA.

"I think Charlie Finley is one of the outstanding businessmen in America and it's an honor and privilege to be associated with him," he said.

The length was the only terms of the contract revealed but Rupp did say, "His offer to me . . . was impossible to reject."

PAUL BLAIR BECOMES A HIT WITH TROOPER

BALTIMORE (AP) — Baltimore Oriole center fielder Paul Blair is becoming a big hit with Maryland state trooper Bill Christian.

While playing golf earlier this week, Blair ripped a drive onto the adjacent highway, shattering the windshield of Christian's car.

"I thought someone blew my windshield out with a shot gun, said Christian.

Blair's golfing partner, Chuck Thompson, who broadcasts the Orioles games, invited the trooper to drop by the booth during Friday night's double-header with Chicago.

"I wasn't in the booth a minute when this ball came rocketing back and nearly tore my head off," said Christian.

"I looked down and guess who was batting?

"Paul Blair, of course."

Holt wins Olympic yacht trial

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Alan Holt, 33, of Seattle, a mast manufacturer who has been sailing since boyhood, won the U.S. Olympic Star Class yachting trials Saturday by finishing third in the final of seven races over an 11-mile course in San Francisco Bay.

Holt, who has his business partner, Richard Gates of Bellevue, Wash., as his crew, had two first, two seconds and two thirds for the week-long trial races. The best six of seven finishes counted and he eliminated his sixth-place finish in Friday's race.

High winds, ranging from 22 knots at the start to around 30 near the end, reduced the number of boats finishing to nine. There were 26 entries when the trials began a week ago, but only 16 started the last race, with seven withdrawing before the finish.

Two other boats were disabled — that of Barton Beek of Los Angeles was dismasted and that of Tom Blackalle of Sausalito, Calif., sank.

Holt will represent the United States at the Olympic Games in Kiel, Germany.

Winds hurt YC Regatta

Long Beach Yacht Club held its annual Invitational Regatta for Ocean Racing, Pacific Handicap and Midget Ocean Racing classes Saturday under variable wind conditions.

Cal-25 and Cal-20s also took part in the race, which was to a buoy off Pt. Fermin and return.

Aileen comes with the lease

"I love boxing and I love the people in it. I'm not patting myself on the back, but you will find that clubs that have been running for a long time usually have a promoter that managers can trust and fighters can trust and commissions can trust."—Aileen Eaton.

It was 30 years ago that Babe McCoy, the stereotype of a matchmaker, nodded to fight promoter Cal Eaton as they opened shop at 18th and Grand.

"Cal," said Babe, chomping a cigar, "get rid of the redhead."

"I can't," Cal shrugged. "She comes with the lease."

The redhead is still around and the lease is still good as the Olympic Auditorium prepares to celebrate its three decades of operation — the longest running weekly boxing club in history — with a special night Thursday, July 27.

Beer and hot dogs will be 15 cents, just like the good old days when Aileen LeBell went to work there. She knows they were 15 cents. She kept the books.

"I came in here as a representative of the Los Angeles Athletic Club, which owned the building," Aileen recalls. "They really sent me here as a troubleshooter to see what the problem was.

"One of the problems was that the promoter was paying out 110 per cent to the fighters. When I asked him how he could make a go of it and pay his rent, it just didn't seem to register. I recommended to the landlord that he close the building and try to find another promoter who could count."

AILEEN, LATER to marry Cal Eaton, the promoter she recommended, didn't know a left hook from left field.

"But I did understand promotion and I did understand figures," she says.

She didn't bother to leave the box office until three months later when, curious about the fuss over the great Henry Armstrong, she emerged during the second round just in time to see the triple titleholder stiffen one Juan Zurita.

"I didn't see much value in it," Aileen says.

So here she is, 30 years later, and she's still going strong, the world's only woman fight promoter, or more accurately, lady fight promoter, because while surviving riots and rainouts and sickness and death and Art Aragon in sport's darkest jungle, Aileen has remained, above all, a lady.

"There are a lot of managers that I'm sure are very rough in their language," she says. "But I've never had — except one time — anybody use any language that I didn't like, and I put a stop to it right then and there. I don't tolerate it at home and I don't have to here."

It's not an image that has been easy to grasp for people meeting her the first time. There is a tendency to underestimate a promoter who dresses tastefully in skirts and high heels with a fashionable hair style and doesn't cuss or gush or smoke cigars.

"I'm positive they do at first," Aileen smiles, "but I think maybe I've gotten a reputation around the world for integrity and honesty, so I don't have any trouble getting fighters here. You know, you see some of the big fights and everybody wanting to have their money put up in advance? Not with me. Nobody has ever asked for it."

AILEEN EATON . . . Loves boxing

THOSE WHO KNOW Aileen would know better.

"I wouldn't do it," she says, "because they might not show up and then I'm out."

Aileen's business sense is such that she could have been successful in other fields. It was she who first took an unknown wrestler named George Wagner to the hairdressers — presto! Gorgeous George was born.

She made the most of the hatred held for Aragon and the love for Bolanos, "a very nice gentleman" and perhaps the Olympic's best attraction ever. She has an expert's eye for "box office."

"Mando Ramos had that charisma the first time he got in the ring in a four-rounder," she says. "You could tell it from the crowd reaction. He had that baby-face appeal, and yet he was a scrapper, almost a street fighter.

"You know, really good boxers have never appealed to the average boxing fan. The majority want to see someone go in there and sling it out."

IT'S OBVIOUS that Aileen cares for her work.

"Some of the people in boxing are real Damon Runyan characters, and I get a kick out of it,' she says. "What really got me interested, though, was getting to know the boys as they're growing up."

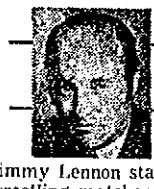

She is also firmly attached to that lovable old barn, the Olympic.

"I just love this building. Do you know this is the only large building in the whole country that is built especially for boxing and wrestling? It's cozy. The employees are like one big family. It's a friendly place."

Fans who were present one night eight years ago might disagree. Everything but the outside walls was demolished when Japan's Hiroyuki Ebihara was awarded a split decision over Mexican favorite Alacran Torres.

"All hell broke loose," Aileen says. "Everybody decided they were going to take a piece of the Olympic home for a souvenir. We had a roller game two nights later, so we had to start that night rebuilding and, of course, we eventually did the whole building over for $150,000, so maybe it was the best thing that ever happened to us."

BUT THE OLYMPIC remains "one big family." Luis Magana, the Spanish language publicist, and timekeeper Jack Smith have been with Aileen since 1943.

RICH ROBERTS

Jimmy Lennon started by announcing the wrestling matches in 1947. One son, Mike LeBell, is the wrestling promoter, aided by another son, Gene, a former international judo champion.

Her matchmaker is Don Chargin, a relative latecomer of five years ago, but "one of the best in the country."

"Don and I are the perfect combination," Aileen says. "He can put two kids together and instinctively know what kind of fight it will be. I instinctively know what it will draw."

One former employee, publicist Don Fraser, has become a rival, promoting boxing out of the Forum.

"Don learned a lot here, I'm sure," Aileen says. "But I've had an awful lot of competition over the years and I've always made it a policy never to annoy another promoter . . . never try to outbid him. If he wants to bid high and go broke, that's his problem."

AILEEN BUTTED HEADS with a rival only once. In 1958, she had matched Aragon against Carmen Basilio at Wrigley Field for the welterweight title. Then Bill Sorenson, an out-of-town interloper, tried to upstage her by scheduling Floyd Patterson to defend his heavyweight title against Roy Harris from Cut n' Shoot, Texas, 10 days earlier at Wrigley.

The conflict became bitter and finally Aileen's matchmaker, George Parnassus, proposed a $5,000 wager on which fight would draw the largest crowd, the money going to the City of Hope.

"It didn't appeal to me much because, in the first place, I don't gamble," says Aileen. "Also, the other promoter was having plenty of headaches and I didn't feel like sticking him for another five. But we did outdraw him."

Now she sits in her small office directly behind the ticket office, her desk buried in paperwork. She does an eight-hour day and spends weekends preparing TV material for Jim Healy and ring material for Lennon.

She can't remember all the boxing stars, from Armstrong to Ali who have fought for her.

"They all fought here," she says. "The only ambition I have left is to promote a heavyweight championship. It seems rather unlikely at the moment, but you can never tell."

At any rate, don't underestimate the redhead.

Never suggest jockeys aren't good athletes

When a usually reputable wire service named a golfer as the professional athlete of the year in 1971, there were those who threw themselves to the ground kicking their feet in anger.

The point was, of course, that a golfer is not an athlete in the generally accepted sense of the term. Professional golf is a trade with requirements, to be sure, but most authorities prefer that the athlete of the year present a more wholesome appearance. That is to say, more beastly of chest and thick of forearm and low of forehead.

Still, hardly an eyelid was raised in question when two of the athlete of the year award's write-in candidates were Bill Shoemaker and Laffit Pincay, Jr. These gentlemen are jockeys and therefore hardly fit the brutish description usually associated with an athlete.

As a matter of fact, jockeys often do not look as much like athletes as the average run of the mill pro golfer.

But you should on suggest to a jockey that he is not an athlete, lest he kick you in the kneecap. Neither should you abuse the issue with a dedicated student of gamesmanship, lest he give you a fat lip.

The thing is, jockeys are highly respected in the world of fun and games because of the nature of their pastime. It has to be considered that a 100-pound man who intimidates and commands a 1,000-pound horse is no creampuff.

IT MUST BE ALLOWED that an equestrian of this nature has strength, stamina and co-ordination. This is not to mention courage.

A perfectly natural assumption, then, would be that all jockeys are little men of unusual bravery. Unfortunately, however, this is not altogether true.

It is the unpleasant duty of this reporter to blow the whistle on Shoemaker and Pincay. It is a distasteful act, to utter the very least, but necessary in the interests of accuracy.

Shoemaker and Pincay were discovered recently when Los Alamitos race course put the summons in the mail for its annual jockeys' invitational night. This is an interesting evening wherein riders from an operating thoroughbred track visit Los Alamitos and take part in one of the night's quarterhorse events. Specifically, they ride in one of the races.

The 1972 invitational will be staged Monday evening with an impressive lineup of horseback riders scheduled to adorn quarterhorses. Officially entered are Jerry Lambert, Howard Grant, Milo Valenzuela, Wayne Harris, Larry Gilligan, Rudy Campas and Bill Mahorney. The latter will doubtless leave the gate as the favorite inasmuch as he is a former rider of quarterhorses.

You have noted, of course, the absence from the above list of the names of Shoemaker and Pincay. The two were accosted at Hollywood Park and interviewed in the finest traditions of horse racing journalism.

QUOTH PINCAY, "I will be at Los Alamitos and I will do any job they ask of me but, please, don't make me ride one of those quarterhorses. They are much to fast for me."

The question and answer — is academic, of course, because Laffit has a broken collarbone and couldn't ride in any case or even attend.

Said Shoemaker, "Not me, baby. I'm not up to riding that kind of horse. I'll be at Los Alamitos that night but my job will be to announce the horses and riders as they parade to the post."

John Sellers, who was prominent in last year's race but will be out of town for Monday's affair, remarked that getting on a quarterhorse is no outstanding feat.

"The big thing," John said, "is staying on."

The main difference is in leaving the gate. Bolting the gate on a quarterhorse has been described as riding the nose of a rocket.

The 1971 Jockey's Invitational Sprint was decided following an inquiry. The horse and rider first at the wire were disqualified after the stewards had viewed the films and the losing jockey was later asked what took place.

"Ask the horse," he replied. "I was just along for the ride."

Electricity was there Saturday

Nicklaus 'Let it get away'

New York Times Service

MUIRFIELD, Scotland — Striding off the seventh tee Saturday, Jack Nicklaus turned to a friend in his gallery.

"Ask Barbara to stop at nine and get me a cold lemonade," he said, alluding to his wife. "Tell her no lime juice. It's dry enough out here without any lime juice."

The dryness was from the electricity.

In the final round of the British Open golf tournament, Nicklaus was showing what makes him tick. At the start, he had been six shots behind Lee Trevino, the leader, but he had to win to keep his chances alive for a Grand Slam of the world's four major titles in one year —the Masters, United States Open, British Open and Professional Golfers Assn. tournament.

As he gulped the lemonade on the 10th tee, he had a 4-under-par 32 on the front nine to tie Trevino for the lead. The electricity kept flowing. When he dropped a six-foot putt for a birdie on the 10th, he led by a stroke.

Another birdie occurred at the 11th with a five-foot putt. He was six under par now, going for a 65, which would be a course record for the Muirfield links.

After four more pars, he came to the tee of the par-3, 188-yard 16th hole tied with Trevino, who had birdied the 11th, one of many roars to rumble across the moors. Nicklaus chose a four iron, but his tee shot into the cooling wind rolled half way down the bank into low rough on the left side of the green.

"Another few feet in the air," he would say later, "and it would have stayed on the green, about 25 feet from the cup."

BUT IT HADN'T. His pitch shot was too far left, too, about five feet. As he stood over his putt, the sound of bagpipes in the distance intruded on the silence. The putt slid by the cup. It would be the only bogey on his score card in a 66, but it would be remembered as the hole where his bid for the Grand Slam was lost.

Not that a playoff with Trevino almost didn't occur. After a par at each of the last two holes, Nicklaus came off the 18th green with a sad smile and with a shrug. He glanced at the scoreboard, which showed both Trevino and Tony Jacklin ahead of him by a stroke. Then he walked into the brown shed where the Royal and Ancient golf club officials registered each contestant's score.

"Trevino's blown," somebody shouted.

Out on the 17th hole, Trevino was in the rough on his fourth shot, creating a probable bogey 6, maybe a double bogey 7.

"He just holed his chip," somebody yelled.

Outside the scorer's shed, Nicklaus's caddie, Jimmy Dickinson, flung down his yellow vest in disgust.

"He holed a chip shot for a five," he yelled to Nicklaus.

"What?" Nicklaus said, his voice shrill in the shock.

Moments later, Jacklin took three putts for a bogey 6. Now, if Trevino had a bogey 5 on the 447-yard 18th hole, Nicklaus would qualify for an 18-hole playoff. When he emerged from the scorer's shed, he went into the R. and A. office to watch television of Trevino's final hole. His arms were folded, the legs of his chocolate brown slacks crossed.

"HIT A LONG DRIVE, didn't he?" Nicklaus said.

On the screen, with his flat swing, Trevino quickly floated an eight iron shot close to the pin, assuring his par.

"At long last," the voice of Henry Longhurst said on television, "we have seen the shot that has won the Open."

In the trailer, Nicklaus scratched his blond hair and departed without a word. Quickly, he was escorted toward the press tent where his wife, in a red-leather pants suit, waited for him.

"Hi, there," she said softly. "Beautiful round."

Without a word, he kissed her, and held her for a moment, while others congratulated him on his dramatic attempt. Then, inside, the tent, he listened to the roar that greeted Trevino's winning par.

"I was there and let it get away," he said. I felt a 65 would do it. I had a 65 and let it get away."

He let the Grand Slam get away too. But in his disappointment, Nicklaus also showed what makes him tick. Asked about the odds on him producing a Grand Slam in another year, he laughed.

"They're pretty high now," he said.

THEN, SERIOUSLY, he added, "I shot 279, and 19 times out of 20, that'll probably win. But it didn't. That's what you're fighting, that somebody'll beat you. For 16 rounds, to put it together, that's difficult. I'm disappointed because I felt I could put it together, but I didn't. I got beat. That's why everybody enters and plays. You don't want to give it to one guy."

Nicklaus stood up and said, "Lee Trevino is some good player. If I had to lose, I'm glad it was to him."

LEE PROUD TO BE KING

MUIRFIELD, Scotland (AP — Lee Trevino, the self-styled, "Super Mex" whose fast-talking wisecracks enchant the Scottish golf gallery, was almost subdued Saturday as he picked up the British Open title for the second successive year.

Thousands of fans rose to their feet, applauding wildly, when the flamboyant Trevino accepted the crown and said, with out-of-character humility:

"I'm proud to be your Open champion again. See you next year."

ANOTHER HUSTLE

Naw, not MY kind of hustle. I mean playing faster to help you relax under pressure. That doesn't mean walking faster. I may look like a cross between a Mexican chihuahua and a greyhound out there, but it's my natural speed.

When tension rises it helps to play faster. That doesn't mean rushing your club selection, either. Just don't stand over the ball so long.

Watch ol' smoothie, Julius Boros. He's a slow walker and takes his time picking a club. But he's a fast player because he takes his stance, waggles, then pops up.

WHEN A GUY stands over his ball 40 seconds, his muscles either draw up like smokehouse jerky or he gets brainlock. Study long and you study wrong. I think John Greenleaf Trevino said that first.

If you never choked when the heat was on, you never played my kind of game. And when you're tense, the less you think about a shot the better off you are.

So if you're getting tense, hustle up. It ain't smart to stand around on a golf course. If you're not moving somebody's gonna paint you, prune you, or wrap a club around you.

putting surface. It appeared Jacklin was sure to win, possibly by two strokes.

Trevino hitched his shoulder, fingered his cap, stalked to the green to survey the situation - - and then chipped it in from 30 feet, just as he had done twice in a brilliant round of 66 in Friday's third round.

Shaken, Jacklin three-putted for a bogey 6. He missed from about three feet on the second one. That put Trevino in front by one.

Nicklaus, at the same time, needed a birdie 3 on the final hole to have any chance. He put his second about 35 feet to the left of the flag. The putt was about a foot short.

Jack, watched intently as the ball rolled toward the flag, then cuddled the clinched fists — still holding the putter — between his cheek and shoulder and grimaced in despair as the dream of his sweep became impossible — at least for this year.

Jacklin put his second in the bunker on the right of the 18th green and made a bogey to drift back to third. Trevino almost knocked the flagstick down with his approach shot but missed the short putt for a birdie.

Playing with the awesome majesty that has made him the game's all-time leading money winner in only 11 years on the tour, Nicklaus began his spectacular victory bid by rifling his irons to the green after booming drives and the putter was working with metronome efficiency.

He saved par from six feet on the first hole, birdied the second from the same distance, made it for eight feet on the third for another birdie, then scored two-putt birdies on the two par 5s on the front side, the fifth and ninth.

TREVINO and Jacklin, meanwhile, were scrambling. Nicklaus was four under after nine holes and they were two over after seven, giving Jack a share of the lead with Trevino.

Jack ripped irons to within five feet of the stick on the 10th and 11th for two more birdies to go in front, Trevino made an eagle 3 on the 495-yard ninth to catch him again. Jacklin also eagled the hole to move within a stroke of the lead.

Trevino made a long putt after hitting his second from the rough while Jacklin lashed a three wood to within six feet of the cup.

It was at that stage that Nicklaus began to fade. He missed from six feet on the 12th, from 15 on the 14th and lipped a seven-foot putt on the 15th, any of which would have given him the lead alone.

He bogeyed the par 3 16th when he missed the green and failed on a four-foot putt, then failed to birdie either the 17th or 18th.

"I told Barbara (his wife) before we got started I would win it," he said. If I'd had that 65 on the board, it might have made things different for the others on the last few holes.

"But it didn't happen," Jacklin got a share of the lead with a long birdie putt on the 12th, then the three matched strokes until Nicklaus bogeyed the 16th and Trevino made that miracle chip on the 17th that shook Jacklin to his heels.

Grandstand managers

Alston and his pen pals

By GORDON VERRELL
Staff Writer

Walter Alston walked into his office in the Dodgers' clubhouse and, recognizing the envelope on the desk, he broke into a big grin.

"Well, I got another one," he said with a laugh as he promptly deposited the letter into the waste basket.

"Aren't you even going to read it?" his visitor asked.

"That guy sends me one all the time," Alston said, still laughing. "I can't figure out what he wants me to do but I gather he doesn't think we're doing the best job possible. Go ahead and read it if you want."

WALTER ALSTON
He gets letters

The manager, as usual, was right. On two counts. One, you couldn't figure it out and, two, the guy didn't like the job Alston was doing.

But at least he hasn't liked it for a long time. The post mark was Brooklyn, N.Y.

The letter prompted some probing into Alston's mailbag and the answers weren't exactly surprising.

"Most of the letters — I'd say about 90 per cent of it — are for autographs," Alston said. "Then, a good number of the letters ask about how to become a bat boy. You'd be surprised how many of those I get.

"The rest, maybe five per cent, well, those are the ones telling me I should play this guy and not that guy, giving me all sorts of lineups and asking me why this and why that."

What does the manager think when he gets one of those, shall we say, less-than-complimentary letters?

"I really don't think much about them," he said. "I figure as long as you're in this business you're going to get letters, some good and some bad. Naturally, you don't like the bad ones but you get 'em anyway. Usually you don't have to go past the first line to find out if the guy is sending you a good one or a bad one."

Alston goes through his mail every day, generally a half dozen or so letters. Some he reads all the way through, some, as mentioned, just the first line.

"One guy, several years ago, used to write all the time, to me, to the players, the O'Malleys, everybody," Alston recalled, laughing about it now.

"Nothing we did was right. He got on everybody. Oh, and was he filthy!

"After a dozen or so of his letters I sat down and wrote a letter to him. I guess I wasn't too complimentary either. But I let him have it pretty good and ended it by telling him if he had an ounce of guts he'd come down to the ballpark and we'd sit down and talk to him. Needless to say, he didn't come down. But at least he didn't write any more letters."

Alston's letters go to the club's public relations office.

"I take care of all the autographs up there and pictures or whatever," he said. "They'll bring the rest of 'em to my office. Naturally, I don't want to miss any of the ones with perfume on 'em or checks in 'em."

EXPOS EDGE DODGERS—

striking out the first two batters, hit a streak of wildness. He walked four batters including Tim Foli, a .238 hitter, on four pitches. Jim Brewer took over and Boots Day slapped a pitch to rightfield to score Tim Mc Carver and snap a 2-2 tie.

Walter Alston's concern isn't so much about Singer as it is with third base—a position that's been a problem for a decade.

"It doesn't seem to make difference who we play at third," he said after the Dodgers' fourth loss in their last five starts. "I just don't know what can be done."

The manager said he might as well draw straws between Lefebvre, Bill Grabarkewitz and Steve Garvey.

Lefebvre, after a fast start at second base, has seen his average nosedive from .350 to .204.

Grabarkewitz has speed and occasional contact, but he's struck out 31 times in 75 times to the plate.

Garvey, the best hitter of the three average-wise at .271, has committed 18 errors.

"I guess I'll go back to Garvey" Alston said when pressed.

The Dodgers, who've tumbled 8½ games behind Cincinnati, their biggest deficit all season, have now dropped six of 11 games to the Expos, their one-time patsies.

They clubbed out 11 hits but stranded as many runners.

In a nutshell, the hitting isn't timely, the pitching isn't razor sharp and the fielding isn't—period.

The Dodgers made two glaring errors, the one by Lefebvre and Singer's mistake in walking McCarver and Foli, neither of whom is hitting better than .240.

The Expos, on the other hand made a couple of booboos but got away with them.

It appeared the Dodgers might at least tie the game in the ninth when young Lee Lacy got his second hit of the game, a one-out single to center. Mike Marshall then walked Manny Mota which nudged Lacy into scoring position.

But Willie Davis flied deep to centerfielder Day, Lacy advancing to third, and Wes Parker lined to the rightfielder Ken Singleton.

"We hit the ball good but couldn't get any scoring," Alston said. "But that's the way it goes when you're losing."

Losing the Dodgers are. They're again only two games above .500 and no one appears eager to rescue the sinking club.

Parker, after going an entire month without an RBI, is starting to come out of it with 15 runs batted in his last 17 games.

He drove in two more Saturday night with a double and single.

Frank Robinson, hitting .249, his lowest percentage of the year, will be rested again today. His wrist and leg are still giving him problems.

The one change Alston says he won't make is to remove the red hot Lacy even though he labored through a tough game on Friday.

"No, not Lacy," Alston said. "He's had only one bad game."

DODGER DOPE: When Bill Russell returns from his two-week military stint next weekend the Dodgers will likely cut relief pitcher Hoyt Wilhelm instead of another infielder. Wilhelm, 49, is 0-1 with 4.68 ERA . . . Bill Singer returned to the active list Saturday after spending 21 days on the disabled list because of a broken knuckle on his left hand. He probably won't start until following the All-Star break . . . Jose Pena (0-0, 9.00 ERA) was optioned to Albuquerque.

Preston Gomez, the former pilot of the San Diego Padres, is sitting in with Fats Garcia on the Dodgers' Spanish broadcasts on KWKW next Tuesday through Sunday . . . Lee Lacy, whose 11-games hot spree was snapped Friday night, has now hit safely in 12 of his last 13 games and 13 of the 15 games in which he's played.

Down on the farm: Albuquerque has seven players hitting .300 or better, led by Von Joshua (.330), Larry Hisle (.322), and Ron Cey (.322). Tom Paciorek is leading the Pacific Coast League in home runs (20) and RBIs (71) and is also hitting .321.

Pitching the concluding game of the series today will be Don Sutton (10-5) and Bill Stoneman (8-6). All kids 14 and under, will again receive free plastic batting helmets.

San Pedro turns back Lakewood

Matt Tiel and Felice Spionosa drove in runs in the seventh inning to help San Pedro dump Lakewood 5-3 Saturday in American Legion play at Blair Field.

In the first game, Peterson scored four times in the eighth inning to nip Carson, 10-9.

San Pedro's rally ended almost any hope Lakewood had of getting into second place.

Matt Clear walked three batters in a row and hit another batter to start the Peterson rally. Reliever Armando Arcienaga came on and Rich Perruccio greeted him with a run-scoring single. Then Stan Butler doubled home the other two runs.

Few will make team

Rookie's life one of aches

By RICH ROBERTS
Staff Writer

It's been a week of games but very little fun for 34 young athletes who have been sampling a taste of the professional football life at Long Beach State.

"I think," says Ram coach Tommy Prothro, "that there are easier ways to get free meals than by going through what they do."

Eddie Phillips, a superstar at the University of Texas who has been reduced to the status of a plebe, said it for all of them.

"Talk about being sore. I called up my mother and said, 'How about giving me some sympathy? I'm not getting any around here.'"

After today's scrimmage against the San Diego Chargers' rookies at 2 p.m. on the LBSU field, some of the more hopeless cases will be evicted from Alamitos Hall to make room for the veterans who check in today.

"They all came here thinking they could make it," Prothro says. "A lot of 'em don't believe it now, but they're still hoping.

"I think the rookies we have in camp, if they played the rookies we had last year, would defeat them rather badly. But I don't think we're going to get as much help because I think we already have more good football players, and we might not have those rookie aces like (Isiah) Robertson, (Jack) Youngblood and (Dave) Elmendorf."

Linebacker Robertson became the National Football League's defensive rookie of the year. Safety Elmendorf was on the all-NFL rookie team. Phillips and the other rookies this year are aware of the imminent arrivel of such established stars.

"Everybody was trying to make a good impression this first week because they know when the veterans get here they won't get much attention," Eddie says.

It is possible that the Ram coaches will be more patient with the likeable Longhorn because he is converting from Wishbone quarterback to defensive safety.

"We've had two workouts every day and a two-hour meeting at night when they try to show you what you're doing wrong," Eddie says, "which in my case is plenty. I thought I'd come around quicker than I have, but I hope to learn by my mistakes, and I think I've made a little progress."

Phillips says that the most difficult part is learning to "recognize offensive patterns. I'm playing free safety so I'm supposed to be watching everything at one time. But sometimes when I'm concentrating on the quarterback, I have no idea where the wide receivers are."

Eddie's competition at free safety is two veterans — Kermit Alexander, switched from strong safety, and Alvin Haymond.

"I don't think past one practice," Phillips says. "I'm trying not to let it affect me a lot."

RAMBLING: Today's scrimmage, closed to the public, will be strictly the Ram rookies' offensive against the Charger rookies' defense. San Diego coach Harland Svare says he lacks offensive personnel. "Typical Svare team," one wag noted. "All defense and no offense" . . . Impatient Ram veterans continued to trickle in early Saturday. Special teams stalwart Rich Saul even took a light workout, and cornerback Gene Howard arrived with a degree in history from Langston College in Oklahoma, appearing tough and trim at 204 pounds, 14 over last year's playing weight . . . Prothro says, "I've been pleased with the three veterans who came in early with the rookies—Travis (Williams), tackle (Rich) Buzin and (linebacker Jeff) Staggs. They're looking a little better than I expected." He also is high on defensive end Fred Dryer, a veteran of the New York Giants, who has been too much for the rookies to handle at Deacon Jones' old spot . . .

The first official cutdown date is not until Aug. 4 when the exhibition season opens against Cleveland. Sixty is the limit at that time.

Strokers, Seal Beach gain in volleyball

Nu-Strokers' defending champions and Seal Beach's Locals scored impressive wins Saturday and will meet in the finals of the winner's bracket today at 9 a.m. in the annual Seal Beach Open Beach Volleyball Tournament.

The double-elimination tournament is being held at 12th Street, located east of Seal Beach Pier.

QUACK WINS GOLD CUP—

Pincay, but he broke his collarbone and I signed Don Pierce. At least, Shoemaker proved faithful to his friends."

Buzkashi had no early speed and when Shoe finally got his mount going, the gelding tried and finished seventh in the 14-horse field.

Quack was given a perfect ride by Pierce, whom Whittingham said "really burned him in the stretch to set that record."

Pierce kept Quack back in 13th spot past the first half-mile, while first Figonero, then Single Agent were cutting out blazing fractions. Single Agent was in front after a mile, with War Heim behind him, but Quack had already begun his big burst.

He passed horses like they were standing still around the stretch curve, then took over for good the second the field turned into the stretch.

Meanwhile, Droll Role, who had won his last three $100,000-added races with Eddie Maple in the saddle, was picking his way slowly through the field from the eighth slot and was making a run at Quack when the big colt simply went into high gear in the stretch and pulled away to his convincing triumph.

Bicker the other three-year-old in the classic who was second choice at 7-2, was always within striking distance but had no closing kick and wound up fifth.

"Quack was a running horse today," smiled Pierce, who was winning his second Gold Cup and was aboard Quack for the first time.

"Charlie just told me to let him place himself and then go from there. Charlie reminded me the horse liked to run better on the outside than on the inside, but my decision to stay out there was made on the backside when I could see that the horses back there with me were going nowhere.

BILL SHOEMAKER
Guesses Wrong

"I wanted to get by them as soon as I could. I've seen this horse get beat by pulling himself up when he gets to the front, so I didn't want to go to the lead too soon.

"But, he got rolling and there wasn't anything I could do about it.

"I got fanned out when Droll Role moved out just as I was going around him, but otherwise we were in no trouble."

Maple said Droll Role was "a nice horse, but he wasn't going to beat the winner today. I got him to the outside just as the winner went by me and then I had to go get him. But my horse just wasn't going to catch Quack."

War Heim ran a good race, said jockey Victor Tejada, but said he couldn't catch the winner either. "Quack went flying by us. My horse had a good trip all the way. He had no trouble."

Whittingham said that the Gold Cup's fast fractions and a weight difference enjoyed by Quack were major factors in the victory.

"When he finished behind Riva Ridge in the Hollywood Derby, Quack didn't have any apparent weight edge," said the trainer. "Today he dropped 11 pounds from that race when he carried 126 and that naturally helped him.

"The slow Derby pace set up the race for Riva Ridge.

"I think I'll put Quack away until Santa Anita in December. He's had a pretty good year and the rest might make him a real champion."

Whittingham climaxed his conversation with a little dig:

"Shoemaker could have won with Quack today too, but he just picked the wrong horse."

C'est la vie!

Trot classic to Speedy Crown

WESTBURY, N.Y. (UPI) — Co-favored Speedy Crown led virtually all the way Saturday night to become the first United States winner of the $125,000 International Trotting Classic at Roosevelt Raceway since his sire, Speedy Scot, won the 1964 edition of the harness race.

Speedy Crown, taking the lead after the first quarter of a mile, finished three quarters of a length ahead of Canada's Fresh Yankee, which finished second in the mile and a quarter spin for the second consecutive year.

Flower Child, the second U.S. entry in the field of six, was third, 1¼ lengths behind Fresh Yankee, with Beau Winter a distant fourth.

The 14th International lost some of its luster when two-time winner Une De Mai, the greatest money-winning harness horse in history, was scratched several hours before the race because she was having muscle problems. Her trainer blamed the difficulty on the fact that the seven year old mare, who was being aimed to become the first three time winner of the International, was held three days in enforced idleness in quarantine after arriving from France earlier this week.

Speedy Crown was timed in 2:35.1, five seconds off the International record, and paid $4.20, $2.40 and $2.10 across the board. Fresh Yankee, the other co-favorite, returned $2.40 and $2.10 and Flower Child paid $2.20 to show.

In addition to breaking a string of seven consecutive foreign victories, Speedy Crown also was the first male winner in seven years.

MONMOUTH — West Coast Scout made no contest of the $113,500 Amory L. Haskell handicap as he galloped across the wire a six-length winner to score his first victory in six starts this year. Ridden by John L. Rotz West Coast Scout ran the 1 1/4 miles in 2:02 1/5, ahead of 10 other three-year-olds. Hitchcock was second and Eastern Fleet third.

AQUEDUCT — Cloudy Dawn, edged out of second place in the Belmont Stakes, turned the tables and upset Ruritina in the 55th running of the $85,575 Dwyer Stakes. Ridden by Bill Hartack, the winner was timed in 2:03 1/5, ahead by a half-length. Halo was a neck back for third.

LIBERTY BELL—Angel Gonzalez, Jr. marked his debut in stakes competition by riding Sir Dragonet to victory in the $22,725 Gettysburg Claiming Stakes. Bill Tichenor rode Saxony Warrior to victory in the second division

ARLINGTON — Sunny Says Quick and Main Pan, owned by Peter Fuller, ran 1-2 in the $28,000 Janice H. Handicap. Viewpoise was third.

Albatross becomes a millionaire

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. (AP) — Albatross became the youngest millionaire in the history of harness racing Saturday, covering the mile in 1:57 3-5 in romping to victory in the $16,000 Bret Hanover Invitational race at Saratoga Raceway.

Albatross, however, failed to break the world record for fastest mile on a half-mile track of 1:56 4-5, set by Nevele Pride on Sept. 4, 1969 here.

Driver-trainer Stanley Dancer, in the sulky for Nevele Pride's record triumph, also guided Albatross to his latest victory.

The 4-year-old son of Meadow Skipper paced the quarter in 24 4-5 seconds, the half in 57 2-5 and the three-quarters in 1:26 4-5 en route to breaking the record for a 4-year-old pacer on a half-mile track. The previous mark of 1:57 4-5 was by Bye Bye Byrd at Roosevelt Raceway in Westbury, N.Y.

Albatross was first by 13¾ lenths.

"Albatross in the greatest horse I've ever been assoicated with and, perhaps, the greatest horse in the history of harness racing," Dancer had said earlier in the week.

A crowd of about 7,000 was on hand on a hot, humid day to watch harness racing's star attraction.

The triumph marked the 30th time in his racing career the standardbred stepped a mile in less than two minutes, and only Bret Hanover has more — 31.

VALUE ADDED WINS

ed. "I'm real happy to have the chance to ride good one like Osage Rocket (winner over Kaweah Bar Friday night) and this little colt."

Trainer Kenneth Teutsch added that the winner came out of the race in perfect condition.

Owner Frank J. Hieden picked up the winning share of $51,750 as a result of Value Added's victory, upping the colt's earnings to $60,005.

Third choice in the wagering, Value Added rewarded his backers with payoffs of $10.80, $4 and $3.40. Go Chickie Go returned $3 and $2.80, while the show price on Pockatu was $5.40.

The win aboard Value Added was the second of the night for Treasure and the 16th of the meeting. He also scored with Bubbles La Rue ($3.60) in the third, those being his only two mounts of the night. Bubbles La Rue won her third in a row at the track.

Cashiers were kept busy as favorites captured the first six races.

Top Side ($6) started it all off in the first race, followed by Leota's Dial ($4) in the second, Bubbles La Rue ($3.60) in the third War Patch ($7.40) in the fourth, Top Todd ($4.60) in the fifth and Go Isle Go ($3.80) in the sixth.

Top Side and Lighthearted combined for a $17 exacta in the first race, while Go Isle Go joined 41-1; longshot Roaring Rocket for $295 payoff in the sixth race.

Jets' 12-game WSC win streak halted in split

Terry Birdsall spoiled Ed Klecker's bid for a perfect game with a leadoff single in the seventh inning Saturday night as the Lakewood Warner Electric Jets had to hold on for a 3-2 first game Western Softball Congress victory at Burbank.

The Jets, attempting to overtake Long Beach in the WSC race, had a 3-0 lead entering the seventh on a second inning home run by Bob Snowden and Jerry Cooper's long sacrifice fly in the fifth that chase across two more runs.

Klecker retired the first 18 Burbank batters before Birdsall singled and two ensuing errors accounted for both runs.

The Jets' 12-game WSC winning streak came to an end in the nightcap as Ron Smith spun a two-hitter and Don Frazier hit a home run off Klecker to spark a 5-1 Burbank victory.

Lakewood is now 23-5 in the WSC.

QUACK was unhurried early at the start, lagged to the half mile pole, rallied wide on the final turns, wore down the leaders through the stretch under left handed urging and won in full stride. DROLL ROLE broke in stride to be with in striking distance early, offered his best bid from the middle of the track at the furlong pole then could not match strides with the winner. WAR HEIM had enough early speed to be close up, rallied wide into the far turn, responded to force the pace into the stretch then hung in the late stage. SINGLE AGENT broke flat footed, rushed up while corssing onto the main track to get a clear lead and tired in the drive when headed. BICKER broke slowly, rushed up to be in contention on the first turn, raced between horses at the five sixteenth pole and lacked a closing kick. MANTA was without early speed then could make little impact from between horses. BUZKASHI, without early speed, rallied wide leaving the far turn and tired in the stretch. KENNEDY ROAD saved ground early while near the pace then faltered. FIGONERO forced the early pace and gave out.

Shrine's top grids check in

The top prep football stars in the state, 52 in all, plus four coaches, checked in Friday for the 21st Shrine game, July 27 at the Coliseum.

Two highly touted pure passing quarterback — Vince Ferragamo of Banning High and Jeff Siemen of Westminister, along with John Sciarra, who led Bishop Amat to the CIF title, were among those QB's who checked into the South's headquarters at UCLA.

Also checking in for the South are two of the most sought prep linemen in the country — Scott Avery of Wilson High and Terry Albrition of Newport Harbor High. Avery, a defensive linemen, is 6-5, 250 while Albrition, who will anchor the offensive line, is 6-4, 235.

The North will stay at USC.

The South roster had two changes for the game. John Chavez, quarterback from El Rancho was added in place of Jamie Quirk, who signed a baseball pact, and Dave Tenn of Miraleste replaces Dennis Littlejohn, athlete of the year.

Tickets are priced at $5, $3 and $1.50 and are on sale at the Shrine office, 655 W. Jefferson Blvd.

Unser zips 199 mph record run

CAMBRIDGE JUNCTION, Mich. (AP) — Bobby Unser recorded the fastest qualifying lap in auto racing history Saturday, a sizzling 199.778 m.p.h., to win the pole position for today's 200-mile race for Indianapolis-type cars.

The 38-year-old Unser, who has been setting speed records regularly the last two years, stormed around the two-mile Michigan International Speedway in 36.04 seconds, missing his goal of 200 mph by just .041 seconds.

Moments earlier he had warmed up by getting around the medium blanked oval in 36.10 seconds for a speed of 199.444 mph.

The old record for race qualifying was 199.658 mph posted by Bobby Isaac in a Dodge stock car at Talladega, Ala., in April, 1970. The Talladega speedway is banked 35 degrees in the turns, 18 degrees on the front stretch and measures 2.66 miles.

Isaac also holds the world's closed course speed record for race cars, 201.104 mph, also set at Talladega two years ago. Unser had hoped to beat that mark, too, but said he had been having problems setting the car up to handle properly. His crew had changed wings on the Olsonite Eagle owned by Dan Gurney late Friday in an effort to add more speed.

"I honestly thought I could run 201-to-203," Unser said.

"Naturally, I'm disappointed. You're always disappointed when you don't reach the goals you have set. I should have gone faster because the conditions were good."

A heavy overcast and warm humid weather prevailed as 26 drivers earned starting spots for today's first race in a pair of 200-mile events. Stock cars of the United States Auto Club run in the second half of the twin bill.

Fittipaldi wins again

BRANDS HATCH, England (AP) — Emerson Fittipaldi of Brazil drove a JPS-Lotus to a narrow victory over Jackie Stewart of Scotland in the British Grand Prix Saturday and increased his lead in the World Drivers Championship.

Fittipaldi covered the 76 laps in one hour, 47 minutes, 50.2 seconds—an average speed of 112.06 miles per hour—and crossed the finish line about five seconds ahead of Stewart, who was in a Tyrrell.

Peter Revson of New York was third in a McLaren, followed by Chris Amon of New Zealand in a Matra and Denis Hulme of New Zealand in a McLaren.

The victory was Fittipaldi's third of the season and gave him a total of 43 points, 16 more than Stewart. His other triumphs were in the Spanish and Belgium Grand Prix.

Birch puts title on line Monday

John Birch will again put his Long Beach wrestling club title on the line Monday when he meets Massa Saito in a two-out-of-three fall, no time limit, main event at the Long Beach Auditorium.

In the semiwindup, Salvador Lotharío will face Fritz Von Goering while Lou Anthony opposes Super Star Billy Graham in the special event. Jack Garfano will wrestle Billy Rogers in the opener at 8:30 p.m.

NFL NOTES

49ers —All 35 players in the rookie training camp at Goleta, including top draft choice Terry Beasley of Auburn, passed their physicals Saturday. Beasley, still nursing a pulled hamstring, was joined by two notable veterans in camp, Rolf Krueger, defensive tackle Charlie Krueger's "little" brother at 6-4, 250 pounds, and Tony Harris preparing for the switch from running back to wide receiver.

Redskins — Coach and general manager George Allen continued his passion for acquiring veterans, as he traded a 1973 draft choice for defensive end Ike Lassiter of the New England Patriots, a 10-year vet who scales 6-5, 270.

Browns—Wide receiver Gary Collins said he will retire rather than stay on as a punter, telling owner Art Modell "a player should get out before he's kicked out."

Steelers — Frank Lewis, 1971 first draft pick, hauled in two scoring passes in the season's first scrimmage. While regular quarterback Terry Bradshaw watched from the sidelines, Lewis caught a short aerial from Bob Leahy for a 55-yard score and a 65-yard bomb from rookie Joe Gilliam. The latter also hit Dave Kalina for a 50-yard TD pass.

Jets—Gary Kipfmiller, a 335-pound rookie center from Nebraska-Omaha, center Dan Dyches from last year's taxi squad, and wide receiver Chip Newman all were cut.

Ottawa (CFL) — Cut Dennis Duncan (N'Western), Mike Anderson (LSU).

Edmonton (CFL)—Cut Mack Murphy (Sul Ross), Dickie Brown (New Mexico), Larry Miller (Montana) and Mike Bolin (Houston).

Saints—Cut Paul Dongeiux (Ole Miss) and Kent Branstetter.

Giants—Signed rookie free agent Charlie Bolden, a defensive back.

Bedford's 27:52.8 fastest 10,000 meters run in 1972

LONDON (UPI) — Dave Bedford of England recorded the fastest 10,000-meter time in the world this year, running it in 27 minutes, 52.8 seconds Saturday in the British Open Athletics meet before 30,000 fans at Crystal Palace Stadium.

Bedford's time was 13.4 seconds off the world record of 27:39.4, set by Ron Clarke of Australia in 1965.

Friday, Bedford had run the 5,000 meters in 13:17.2, only six-tenths of a second slower than Clarke's world mark of 13:16.6, established in 1966.

Britain's David Hemery, 1968 Olympic gold medalist and world record holder, won the 400-meter hurdles title in a thrilling tussle with Uganda's John Akii-Bua.

Both were clocked in 49.7 seconds.

The 100 meter went to Greek champion Vassilious Papageorgopoulos in 10.1 seconds.

2 L.B. Navy teams in Slo finals

The destroyer escort USS Fanning and the Coast Guard will represent the Long Beach area in the 11th District Slo-Pitch finals in San Diego, opening Monday.

The Fanning, winning three games the final day, came out of the losers' bracket to tip the Coast Guard in the finals, 12-0 and 13-12, and win the area crown at Long Beach Naval Station.

Pairings Monday are the Fanning vs. the USS Dixie and Coast Guard vs. the USS Durham.

Mary Spall, sports supervisor for the station's Special Services, said fast pitch Northern Area play opens on July 24. Six teams will compete, including: China Lake Weapons Station, Pt. Mugu Air Station, USS Norton Sound, USS Stein, USS Ramsey and USS Henderson.

The Henderson was the last team to qualify, winning its league on the final day, staving off a furious drive by the USS Tolovana.

Oldtimers and wives asked to meet

Wives and oldtimers who will play in the Long Beach Nitehawk-Lakewood oldtimers game and the Nitehawks vs. Lakewood wives game are asked to meet at Joe Rodgers Park today, 2 p.m.

Mullet loses way in grunion bunch

This is without a doubt the goofiest grunion story that I've ever researched, and I have heard many in my years in Long Beach.

Ray and Jeanie San Jose, 2055 Roxanne Ave., Long Beach, took their eight children ranging from four to 15 years of age to the beach near the Long Beach Marina entrance channel Wednesday night. All had high expectations of going home with a bucket of grunion.

This story, however, concerns just two of the children, little Bobby,4, and brother, Joe, 10. The grunion were running off 72nd Place, but not in great numbers and the kids were having a ball trying to catch some with their bare hands.

FOUR-YEAR-OLD Bobby San Jose has the grunion, but it took some real grabbing on the part of his brother, Joe, to take the striped mullet out of the surf at the same spot. —Staff Photo by D. C.

The whole family got about 10 grunion and then Bobby saw the tail of a fish in the water. He pointed it out to Joe and Joe waded into the shallow surf, grabbed the fish by the tail and suddenly found that he had a real lively marine specimen in his hands.

Other people were on the beach in that area and they scattered in a hurry, not realizing just what Joe was struggling with; you see, most people who go to the beaches to find grunion don't even know what a little silverside looks like. What Joe had was a 24 ½ - inch striped mullet that weighed 4 ½ pounds. One man was heard to exclaim: "If that's a grunion, I don't want any part of it."

THE SAN JOSE FAMILY virtually had the beach to themselves, but there were no more grunion and no more mullet. It didn't take Joe long to subdue the one he had grabbed by the tail, and the family gathered around to take a closer look.

Ray was told by some observers that his boy had caught a striped bass, but he was dubious, so he called me and described the fish. I told him to take it to the Department of Fish and Game at 350 Golden Shore and let biologist Parke (Bud) Young take a look. I can think of no one in that entire department who knows more about fish identifications.

Bud immediately said that it was a striped mullet but wondered what the fish was doing among a school of grunion. He gave the fish back to the San Jose family and as far as I know it was eaten. Mullet are edible, but never caught with hook and line unless one is snagged.

Bud told Ray, who is an advertising salesman for the American Tobacco Co., that mullet seldom venture into the ocean; that they remained in the bays and harbors where they feed not on other fish, but on algae and diatoms. In fact the mouth of the mullet which Joe captured was so small that he couldn't have swallowed a small grunion.

Incidentally, the striped mullet is the only one of that species that is found on this coast. They can be taken commercially in the Salton Sea under permit and at specified times.

OUTDOOR MINIS-Outside of the annual Ducks Unlimited Dinner, the Long Beach Sportsman's Club, 3623 Santa Fe Ave., has its biggest annual clambake today, starting at noon. It's the Bar-B-Que Stampede and it's the biggest fun day of the year for members and their friends. There will be all kinds of games and entertainment. Club members will start serving the meal at 2 p. m. and continue through 7 p.m. You don't need to be a member to attend; you may buy a dinner ticket at the door. Then let your conscience be your guide on the dozens of games.

Eddie McEwen, who skippers the Pacific Queen out of Fisherman's Landing, San Diego at midnight every day, took off on Thursday and Friday for a short holiday with his wife; they still live in Los Alamitos.

Discussing the current top ocean fishing subject, Eddie said:

"The albacore are acting just as silly as ever. We had five days of great fishing, then the crazy fish moved south again and it took a bit of searching to find the schools, so naturally the count dropped. At last report (we were talking Friday afternoon), the fish were roughly 75 to 90 miles south, southeast of Point Loma. Where they will be today is anybody's guess."

In a previous column last week, I mentioned the plight of Southland lakes and their water levels. One was Wohlford, where I said the fishing was slow. It is, but Hugh Morton sends word from the lake that several bass in the 7 ¼ to 15 ½ pound range had been caught, along with some hefty catfish.

HAVING A HIGH TIME at the day care center is Craig Mazzagatte, 5.

Nature and kneading bread, sports and good sportsmanship are all part of the program at an experimental day camp being offered this summer by the Child Care Commission at Long Beach State University.

There, on a rugged stretch of land away from the center of campus activity, 30 elementary school-aged youngsters (all of them children of LBSU students) are doing their own thing—climbing trees, sculpting clay, playing chess—AND learning to work together in an atmosphere where the rules are as relaxed as the setting itself.

"This is a totally child-oriented program," said Louise Maddox, director of the child care program at LBSU. "Instead of being told what to do and when to do it, the youngsters themselves vote on craft projects, what days they will go swimming, where they will take field trips, even what they will eat."

The day camp, which is open to a maximum of 50 6-to-12-year-olds, operates Monday through Friday from 7 a.m. to 2 p.m. under a shaded eucalyptus grove on the northwest corner of campus.

Louise West, a veteran of Girl Scout day camps, is in charge of the program. She is assisted by three student aides.

"Offering programs which will appeal to all the children, regardless of their ages, has been no problem," Mrs. West said. "In fact, we find that they get along remarkably well."

One reason, she believes, is that the older campers — many of whom have no younger siblings — feel a sense of responsibility toward the younger ones that they have never experienced before.

"In many ways, these older youngsters are providing much of the camp leadership themselves. Diplomatically, they break up fights, encourage the younger ones to help with clean-up and smooth ruffled feelings.

"For them, as well as for the younger children who really look up to and revere them, this is a tremendous learning experience."

Equipment at the site — which includes a pair of picnic tables, a paint-spattered workbench, a fire ring and a few games — was purposely kept to a minimum, both because of limited finances and the basic camp philosophy which was to keep the program as simple and natural as possible.

For many of the projects, such as building the clubhouse and the tree house, the children utilized materials available around the site, while for others, organic products were used.

DURING a typical day, which begins for most of the children at 9 a.m., campers play chess and checkers — 'we have several tournaments going now" — play sports — "softball seems to be the most popular, though for a while rock-throwing contests were very big" — and pursue craft projects such as tie-dying, candle making, papier mache and stringing beads.

Additionally, the campers have time to do as they please — climb trees, roam through the surrounding field or work on individual projects. During the afternoons three days a week they swim at the LBSU pool.

Lunchtime seems to create the most activity around the campsite when a student assistant's call, "Who want to help with the fire?" brings most of the boys and several girls to the fire ring to help gather dried leaves and twigs.

Later, when the fire is going, the youngsters cook their own food, which includes hotdogs and s'mores—"the all-time favorites"—corn on the cob, foil dinners, pizza and tacos.

Another cooking project was preparing and baking homemade bread over the campfire. Though it didn't turn out as they'd hoped, "the youngsters liked it so much that we're going to try it again."

EACH WEEK, youngsters take a field trip, which they decide upon during a planning session early in the week. Thus far, they have visited the Nature Center at El Dorado Park and Whaley Park and have spent a day on the beach.

During the final week of the program, an overnight camp-out is planned. "We're going to bring our sleeping bags and sleep right here," Mrs. West said.

Cost for the 6-week camp is $75 per child or $12.50 a week. Children still may be enrolled for the remaining two weeks by contacting Mrs. Maddox at the Soroptomist House on the LBSU campus.

According to Mrs. Maddox, who was re-

She finds happiness is helping

By ROBIN HINCH

As Dr. Donna Mae Barras, assistant chief physician in the department of pediatrics at Rancho Los Amigos Hospital, looked about her in the hospital's new Children's Department she didn't say, "Doesn't it break your heart, all these severely disabled youngsters?"

Rather, she smiled and said, "Aren't our new facilities marvelous? It's such a happy place for the children."

And it's her own warm, positive attitude which contributes largely to the happiness on those wards.

Dr. Barras, stricken with polio when she was nine months old, now walks with a single leg brace and a cane, or, to save time, propels herself about the hospital in an electric chair.

She is being honored Monday as Professional Handicapped Woman of the Year, an award made annually through a program sponsored jointly by the President's Committee on Employment of the Handicapped and Pilot Club International. Recognition is given to outstanding women who have overcome physical disabilities and are making significant contributions to society. The award will be presented at the president's banquet of the Pilot Club International Convention in San Francisco.

"I WAS STUNNED when they said I was getting this award," said Dr. Barras, who gives the impression of being extremely sensible and modest about the work she is doing with young people. "I have never really felt handicapped.

"When I was little I tried to do everything the other kids did. And I was embarrassed when people on buses offered me their seats. I was more capable of standing than they were. But I learned to accept offers of help that I didn't really need. They were just trying to be nice, and it's wrong, I think, to refuse people's kindnesses."

Born and raised in Michigan, Dr. Barras did her pre-medical studies at Lake Superior State College, interned at Los Angeles County-USC Medical Center and completed an orthopedic residency at Columbia Hospital in Milwaukee, Wis. She joined the Rancho staff in 1957.

She maintains that she has never been hampered by her handicap, nor felt any professional discrimination because she is a woman.

"Of course, I always worked very hard for what I wanted. I wanted very much to be a doctor, so got down to the business of becoming one. The fact that I happen to walk with a brace made no difference to me or to anyone else."

She originally concentrated on orthopedic medicine, then suddenly realized she wanted to work with youngsters, and changed her specialty to pediatrics. She is particularly interested today in working with handicapped teenagers.

"HANDICAPPED TEENS have as many and the same kinds of problems as average kids," Dr. Barras explained. "They need the same restrictions, discipline and guidance. Things that, because they are handicapped, always were done for them when they were small they must finally learn to do for themselves. They must learn to groom themselves,

Hartmans host party

By CAROLYN McDOWELL

IF YOU ARE in the market for a very special sculpture by Claire Falkenstein, and are planning a very special housewarming party and happen to be president of the Long Beach Art Museum, you might be able to get the artist to come to your home and hang the sculpture herself.

Dr. Ron Hartman did.

The accompanying picture shows the wall piece which is six feet wide, four feet tall and extends three and a half feet from the wall. Not a suitable piece for a small apartment. But perfect in the Hartman's large home.

Ron and his wife, Sylvia, planned a beautiful evening of dinner, dancing and new home viewing for more than 100 family members and friends.

Their sons, Carl, Bruce, Gregg and Glenn, were on hand to assist. Sylvia's parents, Abe and Joan Ball, were there and Ron's mother, Bea Hartman.

There were lots of doctors in the house including Dr. Norm Pokras and his wife, Lakewood Councilperson, Sheila.

Other doctors and their wives were Sandy and Joan Davis, Sid and Gerrie Willner, Les and Jean Baker, Joe and Ruth Weiss, Larry and Lil Rothstein, Bill and Shirley Wild, Rog and Shirley Slater, Oliver and Maggie Nees, Jim and Joan Reitz, Jack and Bev Goldstein, Charlie and Diane Jenkins, Bob and Joan Feldman, Sid and Toby Sharzer, and Lew and Jill Rosenberg.

Civilians included the architect of the Hartman's home, Dick Drossgold and wife, Dorothy; Warren and Barbara Eckert, Gene and Sharon Lassers, Courtney and Muriel Trostle and Dave and Barbara Cohee.

A PICTURE-PRETTY old-fashioned garden party was the setting for presentation of gold medallions to nine Assistance League debs who are, to use an old-fashioned phrase, "coming out" this summer.

The young ladies wore garden party gowns in pastel shades and they were prettier than any flower in Louise Belcher's lovely yard where the afternoon tea was held.

Debs receiving medallions were Jean Crane, Denise Dilday, Cynthia Hamilton, Julie Langslet, Daryl Nees, Robin Swaffield, Jo Lynn Sharp, Susan Koppel and Janice Main.

Susan and Janice not only made their mothers proud but they got them out of an afternoon of hard labor.

It is traditional that the just-graduated provisional group of Leaguers serves as tea committee. Serve is the word AND they make tea sandwiches for 175 guests.

Since the mothers tie the medallions around the girls necks with appropriate remarks, introductions and picture taking sessions, 1971 provisionals Harriet Koppel and Dorothy Main were mothers-of-leisure for the party.

Hard working committee members, under the direction of Lo Peterson, were Doris Merrick, Shirley Thronson, Ruth Boorkman, Karlyn Garcia, Helen Downing, Jane Smith, Joy Wintemute, Patti Carey, Jim Bronn, Josephine Voorhees, Marilyn Brock, Louise McClaughry, Hilda Donaldson and Diana Brown.

THE SOUND OF MUSIC was heard (and played) by scores of Long Beachers this past week.

First, the cast, and crew of "Fiddler on the Roof" gathered at the home of Gil Stevens for a farewell to "Fiddler" party.

Order of the day was swimming in the pool followed by a delightful summer buffet followed by more swimming and entertainment.

When this Civic Light Opera group gets together there is no need for a host to provide entertainment. The guests do it.

A quartet of song birds; Carolyn Taylor, Vicki Clay, Margaret Sue Roberts and Valeen Tzavo, harmonized on some numbers, Ann Perrett sang, Donn Roman and Steve Minter did a comedy act and Jack Ritschel spent most of the evening at the piano accompanying everyone.

It wouldn't have been a party without CLO President Jim Sidford and his Frances and old and new Women's Guild Presidents, Joan Nickerson with Dr. Art and Shirley Coscarelli with Don.

Director Gary Davis was there without his wife, Marti Rolf, who was in New York finishing up a run in "Follies." Marti is here now preparing to do the same role in the new Shubert Theater in Century City.

Of course Harvey Waggoner was there and Bill and Anna Maas and "WR" and Meredith Griffiths and past CLO president, Harv Wehrman AND about 100 others associated with "Fiddler."

Even 10-year-old Christopher Stevens, Gil's son, qualified as a cast member. Chris filled in for one performance. Gil's other children, Kathleen and Curt qualified as hard working assistant hosts.

"AIDA" WAS THE SOUND heard by members of the Long Beach Auxiliary to the Southern California Symphony-Hollywood Bowl Association who bused to the opening night of the Bowl.

DR. RON AND SYLVIA HARTMAN, left, chat with Dr. Marshall and Rita Grobert in the shadow of sculpture by Claire Falkenstein. See Socially Speaking for party details.

Picnic suppers were on the menu for such as Bill and Marian Carls, Betty Benwell, Odie and Lois Wright, Dr. Les and Fran Nason, Dr. Bill and Jane Rhorer.

Others were Francis and Elsie Merchant, Andy and Mary Sorenson, Dr. Ron and Wynne Root, John Clock, Dr. Vic and Mary Peterson, Glenn and Esther Gilmore, Robert and Arlene Johnson, Everett and Irma Luoma and Robert and Loretta Lease.

President Georgene Hayter was welcomed back by the group. She and Morry just finished three weeks in Europe.

SPEAKING OF EUROPE and the travel season . . .

It's time for my annual open column to burglars.

You won't get any leads from this social column. The travelers have either already returned by the time you read this, or they live in security buildings, or they have burglar alarms or their houses are being "sat" by a pack of large vicious dogs.

JERI SWIFT lives in a security building and she sailed with the midnight tide on the freighter Oriental Inventor.

Her friend, Charlotte Phillips, came out from Miami (a good place to be FROM this summer) to join her on the Slow Boat to China. (I'm sorry. Sometimes those puns just slip out and I can't control them.)

Charlotte will be lazy and Jeri will be hard at work on a novel during the month-long cruise.

BACK FROM PARADISE Island in the Bahamas are Perry and Suzy Griffith and Lloyd and Ann Greeno.

Best part of the trip was that the tab was picked up by Investors Diversified Service because Perry and Lloyd are among the leading sales representatives for the company.

GEORGE AND JOYCE Murchison are tanned from three weeks in Hawaii houseguesting with friends.

SMALL WORLD Department

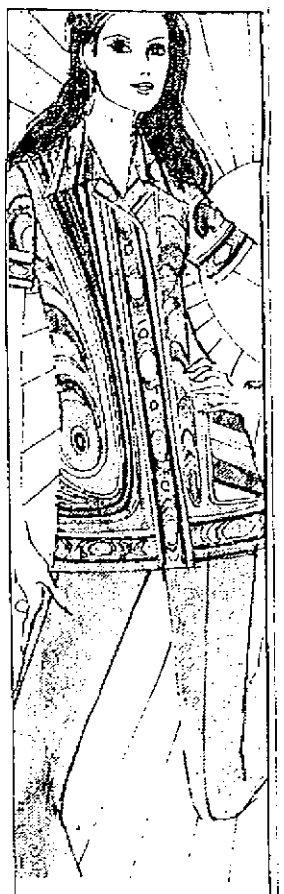

Dr. John and Wanda Sewak and their youngsters are back from a leisurely motor trip to the northern part of our state.

Their first day in Yosemite they ran into Woodrow and Borgny Baird. Next day it was Dr. Don and Ruth Willardson and the next day they bumped into Dick and Carole Sukman.

JANE MELOM is off for a visit with her son, Hal Jr., and what a visit it will be!

First she is stopping at Goettingen, Germany, where he is finishing his junior year under the Education Abroad program from UC Santa Barbara.

She'll have other stops in Norway, Helsinki and Leningrad.

THE CLUBHOUSE, constructed by participants in the LBSU day camp program this summer, is a favorite hide-away for campers like Allison Hunter, 8. But she couldn't resist peering out to have her picture taken.

Emphasis is on nature

sponsible for the six-week experiment, the day camp is just one part of the total day care program offered to LBSU student/parents.

A pre-school day care program, open to children ages 2 to 5, operates during the regular school year from 7:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. and during the first six-week summer session from 7 a.m. to 2 p.m.

"Last year, when we first experimented with a summer day care program for preschoolers, we found that many parents also were interested in having something for their older children who were out for summer vacation.

"I agreed with them, and that fall I approached the Associated Students — who fund the day care program — about making money available for a day camp on unused property here on campus."

The funding was approved, as were requests for use of the property and a fire permit. The only problem was that the program was completed so late in the year that by the time it was publicized, many parents had already made other plans for their school-aged children.

"NEXT SUMMER, if funding is again approved, I'm sure we'll fill the program to capacity. It's a good program that I think the students enjoy. At least I haven't heard any complaints about it."

University-operated day care at LBSU has been part of student services since the fall of 1970 when a trial program was established at the Los Altos YMCA.

After the first semester, the site was transfered to the Soroptimist House on State College Dr., where it has been operating since.

"Like the day camp, the child care program is entirely child-centered. We don't demand that a child start or stop a project at any specific time and we allow the child to select his materials by himself, whenever he wants."

A maximum of 45 children can be accommodated at any one time at the center, but since student-parents do not attend classes all day, every day, a total of 130 children are served.

"THIS NUMBER will be increased to 100 when the new facility — now in the planning stages — is built. Once we're established in a permanent center, we'll also be able to operate in the evenings, thus being able to serve students who attend classes at night."

Mrs. Maddox, who worked with the Long Beach Unified School District Head Start program for four years before assuming the directorship of the LBSU day care center, believes that child care services are as important to today's students as health services and an on-campus book store.

"Right now, I have a waiting list of 200 children for the fall semester," Mrs. Maddox said.

"And just today I took a call from a woman who wants to enroll her child in the fall of 1974."

CHEF OF THE WEEK

'Houping' it up with clam bake

By MILDRED K. FLANARY

Does he ever "houp" it up with their three sons, Ken Jr., 11 Scott, 10 and Danny 8! The "houping" includes everything from Little League Baseball, Cub Scouts and Indian Guides, to teaching a Sunday School class. Wife, Jane, is right in there pitchin' (enthusiasm), too! The "houper upper" is Kenneth R. (Ken) Houp, son-in-law of "Chef" Jack Hanstein. Ken is vice president of J. E. Hanstein & Associates, which he joined in 1968.

Born in Reading, Pa., he graduated from Pennsylvania State University, with a degree in business administration. It was the U.S. Air Force Reserves which brought him to California in 1958. After being discharged in Sacramento, he came to Los Angeles to live with a friend.

It was while attending an insurance course at Long Beach City College, that he met his wife. That class TOOK — and he took to both Jane and the insurance business.

A MEMBER OF the Downtown Lions Club and chairman of their Sight Conservation Committee, Ken also belongs to the Long Beach Coustory, The El Bekal Shrine and the Union Lodge F&AM, Birdsboro, Pa.

A member of the board of directors of Long Beach Endowment Insurance Agents Association, and a past director of the Long Beach Junior Chamber of Commerce, Ken is active in the Downtown Long Beach Associates.

He shares hobbies mostly with his boys. He has managed the Los Altos Little League for four years, and is president and manager of Youth Football with Belmont Cubs and the Los Altos Indian Guides. Ken also teaches Sunday school at St. Gregory's Episcopal Church. He finds time, occasionally, to deep sea fish with son, Scott, and to go back packing with his family.

ALMOST EVERYBODY collects something, but Ken's interest is most unusual . . . It's parking tickets. He chalked up some 80 last year, and they're not antiques, either. In fact, the habit had become so notable, that Jane purchased a parking meter for him at a recent birthday celebration, she had the police, complete with car and siren, present the meter to him. NOW, on occasion, he finds it necessary to ante to his own parking meter.

KEN'S RECIPE today is a bit unusual—and has become the fare for a New Year's Day celebration. It's a Complete Clam Bake Dinner.

NOTE: This photograph was not taken at the New Year's Day gathering.

A COMPLETE CLAM BAKE DINNER

—for 6 Hungry People

1. In bottom of clam steamer pour 3 pints of cold water
2. Cover with upper section and load, in this order:
   Generous layer of wet seaweed (you may use wet celery, lettuce or spinach leaves)
   Wrap each of the following in cheesecloth squares, tie corners (this makes for easy removal and serving)
   3 broiler chickens (split)
   6 unpeeled medium sized potatoes (regular, sweet or mixed)
   6 unpeeled medium sized onions
   6 ears of corn (husks intact, but silk removed)
   4 dozen small soft-shell clams (make 4 bundles of 1 dozen each)
   4 one-pound size live Maine lobsters

More wet seaweed, and finally, in center put one medium sized potato and cover. This potato is your thermometer; when it is done, the feast has steamed through. It takes approximately 1½ hours. NOTE: For the 38 quart steamer (large size), double the above recipe.

Doctor is a friend to all

select clothes. They become very self-conscious all of a sudden and aware of their relationships with the opposite sex. They need a lot of special counseling so they can cope in society."

She wants very much to see more handicapped teens integrated into regular schools.

"Any kid who can, should be in a regular school. Our problem is one of educating parents and teachers, and getting them to accept the handicapped. They're afraid of the unknown. Other youngsters are much more accepting of a disabled student than adults are. And it's interesting to note that all the students we have been able to place in junior high and high schools on a trial basis have been asked to stay permanently. School officials always are surprised at how well they do."

Dr. Barras knows every one of the 80-plus young patients in the Children's Department, who range in age from newborn to 21. She knows the case history of each, and as she walks down the light, wide corridors, is greeted with smiles from children and adults.

She's an attractive woman — small, tanned and smartly dressed. She never wears a white physician's coat because it pleases the kids to see what she's wearing and to comment on her clothes.

THEY'VE GOT A FRIEND in Dr. Donna Mae Barras, center, who counsels Donna Comstock, 14, left and Teresa Wright, 16, on all aspects of their rehabilitation.

IN ADDITION to the extensive work she does at Rancho, Dr. Barras volunteers much of her time to work as a member of the Ladies Guild for Children's Hospital in Orange County and also teaches a sex education course to orthopedically handicapped children attending Bassett High School in La Puente.

She is married to James D. Berry, a businessman, and has two children, aged 7 and 4.

She laughs at the mention of Women's Lib.

"I get so tickled when I see women using that Ms. I use my maiden name only because I was a doctor before I was married and it's so complicated to change all the records and certificates. I never feel any conflict between career and home. I like being Dr. Barras, but I also like being Mrs. Berry."

AT WIT'S END

'But, officer, sir, I didn't...'

By ERMA BOMBECK

My husband says I overreact to a traffic ticket. That's not true. I know a lot of women who cry for three days. And sell the car. And try to retain F. Lee Bailey to defend them.

The trouble with men is they do not have the proper respect for a traffic ticket. To them, it is a sign of manhood, like drinking a quart of beer without belching. To women, it's an emotional trauma, comparable to Hester wearing a large "A" on her chest that stands for Auto Violation.

My husband considers my traffic tickets the greatest source of humor since Milton Berle wore a dress. As a high school graduate, I consider them a humiliation.

I HAVE received three citations in 23 years of driving. The first one was in 1950, when I made a U-turn in front of a paddy wagon. I know what you're thinking. You're thinking I didn't see the paddy wagon. Wrong. In my mind, I humanized the police officer, rationalizing he was a man who took out the garbage, stood in line at the circus, and knew the agonies of circling the block 18 times only to see a parking spot on the other side.

If I live to be 100, I will never forget the laughter that came out of that paddy wagon.

My second misdemeanor was for speeding . . . while passing a police cruiser. As I sped by, I purposely waved to the officer and pointed to my watch, indicating that I had a dental appointment for my son and would be charged for it if we were late.

I thought it odd when he escorted me from behind with his siren and red light for three miles, but I respected him for his understanding.

In traffic court, I sobbed so uncontrollably they had to give me two aspirins and a cup of hot tea to sedate me.

LAST WEEK, I cut in front of a police car to make an illegal left turn. As the officer put on his riot helmet and a crowd began to form around my car, I knew he would not buy the fact that if I was stupid enough to cut in front of a police cruiser for an illegal turn, I surely wouldn't be smart enough to figure out the one-way streets in the downtown area.

What could I do? I got out of the car, threw myself against the hood with my feet apart, asked to hear my rights, and requested a phone call to my husband.

Now, my husband is laughing. But just wait till he finds out who gets custody of the kids

Hayden Lake, Idaho will be the home of newly wed Mr. and Mrs. Michael L. Foley (Pamela J. Rhea) upon their return from a honeymoon in Jamaica.

Mr. and Mrs. Scott Rollins were honor attendants for the bridal couple in the ceremony Friday at St. Pius X Catholic Church.

The new Mrs. Foley is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Rhea of Coeur d' Alene, Idaho. Her husband, a Long Beach City College alumnus, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Foley of Lakewood. He affiliated with the Order of Vidar at LBCC.

Awender-Lubick

St. Bartholomew Catholic Church was the setting Saturday afternoon for the marriage of Kathleen Marie Lubick and Richard Walter Awender.

Mrs. Tom Dineen was matron of honor for the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Emil Lubick of Long Beach. The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Antone Awender of Dearborn Heights, Mich., asked Daniel Gavin to be best man.

The bride was graduated from Wilson High School and Long Beach City College, where she was a banner girl. She earned her bachelor's degree at Long Beach State University, where she affiliated with Gamma Phi Beta sorority.

The bridegroom attended Eastern Michigan University where he played varsity football and baseball and affiliated with Theta Chi fraternity. He is currently on the La Fonda semi-pro baseball team.

The newlyweds will live in Costa Mesa after a honeymoon trip to the Hawaiian Islands.

A first home in Fremont awaits newly wed Dr. and Mrs. Alan Leslie Grimm (Mariette Ur) after a ceremony Saturday afternoon at St. Timothy Lutheran Church.

Parents of the bridal couple are Mr. and Mrs. Paul A. Ur of Lakewood and Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Grimm of Waterville, Ohio.

Mrs. Mark V. Ur was matron of honor. Richard Grimm performed best man duties.

The new Mrs. Grimm was graduated from Lakewood High and Long Beach State University, where she affiliated with Delta Delta Delta sorority. Her husband, a member of Delta Sigma Delta professional fraternity, is an alumnus of Ohio State University School of Dentistry.

The newlyweds are honeymooning at Catalina.

Judge's lecture to drug offender

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Recently, a 17-year-old Florida boy pleaded guilty to possessing hallucinogenic drugs. He had also been charged with violence toward a Miami Beach police officer.

Judge Alfonso Sepe sentenced the youth to one year in the County Stockade and four years' probation. The comments of the judge so impressed me that I ordered the transcript from the Court Reporter so that I may read it to my own children.

Your column is so widely read I am sending you the "lecture" Judge Sepe gave that boy in the presence of the grieving parents. I hope you will publish it and give it the national forum I think it deserves. Sincerely, MRS. A. L. CATES, MIAMI, FLA.

DEAR MRS. CATES: Rarely do I devote an entire column to one letter, but I agree, this is worth it. Here it is:

Judge Sepe spoke directly to the youth and said, "Do you know who is going to serve that year? Not you; your mother and father will serve that year.

"That is what's wrong. THEY get sentenced. They get sentenced for a lifetime.

"You serve a year. Your body is in the stockade for a year, but their souls are tormented for a lifetime. Why? Because you are a selfish, spoiled boy, that's why.

"There is no punishment in the world that I could inflict upon you that could in any way compensate for what you are doing to your mother and father. I have not spent five cents raising you. I didn't know you from Adam. But your mother and father have put their lives, their hearts, their sweat, their money and everything else they have into bringing you up. And now they have to sit in this courtroom and listen to a total stranger who had nothing to do with your upbringing scold you and put you in jail.

"This is at a time when phony kids your age are yelling, "You adults have your alcohol, we want our drugs; you have polluted our water and our air, you have polluted this and that," and all the rest of the garbage that comes out of your mouths.

"Meanwhile, you put yourselves above everybody else. I feel sorry for you.

"I want you to think of this for one year, and the reason why I say it.

"If you are sick, a doctor will treat you and he won't be on drugs. The lawyer who represents you won't be high on drugs, and the people in whose custody you'll be won't be on drugs.

"Your astronauts are not on drugs, and your President is not, and your legislators are not.

"And your engineers who build the bridges that you drive across and the tunnels that you drive through are not on drugs, and those who build the planes that you fly in and the cars that you drive are not.

"Neither are those who build the bathrooms that you stink up with your lousy, rotten drugs.

"None of them have been on drugs, and this is because of people like your mother and father.

"But in the world of the future," Sepe went on, "the same may not be true. Teachers, doctors, lawyers, legislators, products of the new drug-oriented generation—may well be high as kites.

"You won't know whom to send your child to, or whom to trust your life to."

Sepe sighed and closed the case file.

"Let's see what kind of world you leave to your children," he said, "before you talk about the world that we left to ours."

---a young sound for Starlight Serenade

COLD, BLUSTERY weather greeted Charles Freeman Singers on arrival in Korea—in contrast to the balmy weather they expect for their appearance Tuesday night. From left are Wanda Freeman, Bayard Gregory, Vera Shipp, the Rev. Charles Freeman and Patricia Richardson. Bass player Bob McCandless, not pictured, will perform with the group at the Starlight Serenade.

There'll be such music-making as you never heard Tuesday night at Recreation Park. The third free Starlight Serenade of the season will begin at 8 p.m., and it's young people who'll be drumming, blowing, piano-playing, singing and whooping up one of the best programs of the year.

First half of the program will be four winning acts from recent "In Session" competitions. "In Session" contests are sponsored in Long Beach high schools by the Long Beach Independent, Press-Telegram, which, with the Long Beach Symphony Association, sponsors the Starlight Serenades.

Opening act with the Flatteracaric Marching Semi-Band, is from the 1971 edition of "In Session." Originally from Jordan High, the nine members of this comic combo are Brad Matthews, Steve Powers, Bill Bybee, Lee Hiatt, Rick Bartkus, Tom Steelman, Tony Wells, Greg Clay and Roy Luthringer. They now attend Long Beach City College.

Next will be Jack McClendon, popular winner in the 1972 competition, who does a true-to-life impression of Elvis Presley and the music of the '50s. From Wilson High, McClendon was this year's alternate grand prize winner.

JEFF SILVERMAN of Lakewood High, 1972 "In Session" grand prize winner, will play his own compositions and arrangements Tuesday.

The $250 grand prize winner was talented pianist-composer Jeff Silverman from Lakewood High. Jeff actually is a two-time winner, having taken top award at Lakewood in 1971. Tuesday, he will perform his own compositions and arrangements.

Final "In Session" representatives will be a jazz-rock combo, "The Bitter Blue," from Wilson High, led by Dan Higgins.

AFTER intermission, The Voices of Jerusalem will appear. They are also known as the Charles Freeman Singers because they are directed by the Rev. Charles Freeman who also serves as lead and tenor. A Long Beach-based gospel group, they recently returned from a tour of the Pacific, taking in Japan, Okinawa, Korea, Guam and the Philippines. Before Christmas, the singers made a four-week tour of Vietnam and Thailand under USO sponsorship. On their first junket they entertained more than 35,000 and on the second, more than 27,000.

Just back from Phoenix, the singers are looking forward to a European tour in the fall.

This lively, dynamic group has appeared with the Carpenters and the Clara Ward Singers. They were the first entertainers to perform in Long Beach on the Queen Mary and were sponsored by the USO in an NBC Holiday Special last December.

The Rev. Mr. Freeman has composed much of the music to be presented. Bayard Gregory is drummer; female vocalists are Freeman's younger sister, Wanda, and Vera Shipp and Patricia Richardson.

Guest host and hostess for the evening will be Mr. and Mrs. Bernard J. Ridder Jr.

LBMA opens new exhibit today

HANS BURKHARDT painted "Black Cloud Over Vineyard," an oil, in 1953.

By ELISE EMERY
Arts Editor

Wahneta Robinson, curator at Long Beach Museum of Art, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd., has selected the show which opens today with a reception for the public from 2 to 4 p.m.

The "Hans Burkhardt Retrospective, 1950-1972" will hang in conjunction with "20th Century Prints and Drawings From the Burkhardt Collection." Both exhibitions will remain at the museum through Sept. 24.

Burkhardt will be represented by 40 paintings from his own collection. These include his early impressions of Mexico, his commemorative and crucifixion paintings and some of his abstract landscapes and city paintings. A few anti-war oils are included.

Considered one of America's most profound artists, Burkhardt is acclaimed for his ability to interpret his thoughts and reactions in paintings.

Born in Basel, Switzerland, in 1904, he studied in New York at Cooper Union Art School, Grand Central School of Art, and privately with Arshile Gorky.

A catalogue will accompany the exhibition.

The prints and drawings from Burkhardt's collection represent the artist's taste during the past forty years. They include almost every major artist from the mid-20th century to the present. Among them are Appel, Archipenko, Braque, Chagal, De-Kooning, Feininger, Kokoschka, Picasso, Gorky, Tobey, Rouault, Soyer and Tamayo.

Burkhardt designed a poster for this show which will be on sale for $1 at the museum bookstore. Some of his prints also will be available.

BEGINNING Tuesday and continuing through Aug. 18, "Art for the Yiddish Theater" by Moi Solotaroff (1897-1970) will be on view at the Jewish Community Center Gallery, 2601 Grand Ave.

Principal set and costume designer for the experimental Artef Yiddish Theater in the 1930s, Solotaroff brought vitality, expressiveness and sensitivity to his work. Even with simple wood and canvas, he could reflect the many moods demanded by a play.

Solotaroff began his theater career in his native Russia at the age of 12; later, he studied art in Paris before emigrating to this country.

A resident of Los Angeles from 1950 until his death, his latest sets were designed, at the age of 75, for "Let's Sing Yiddish." Among his works were sets for Kurt Weill's "Lost in the Stars."

Gallery hours are 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. Sundays through Thursdays, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Fridays and 7 to 10 p.m. Saturday.

TICKETS FOR the Old Spanish Days Fiesta in Santa Barbara now are on sale at Mutual Agencies in the area. Further ticket information may be obtained by writing Fiesta Headquarters, P.O. Box 1587, Santa Barbara, 93102.

This year's 48th annual fiesta, Aug. 9 through 13, will open with the Sergio Mendez Show and Brazil 77 in "Noches de Estrellas" (Nights of Stars) at the Santa Barbara County Bowl. Other stars will be Carlos Monotoya, guitarist, Aug. 11 and Jose Feliciano, TV and recording vocalist Aug. 12.

Unexplored islands on cruise itinerary

By HERB SHANNON
I, P-T Travel Editor

Pacific islands never before visited by cruise ships will be on the itinerary of the M.S. Lindblad Explorer next spring when the unique touring vessel embarks on two cruises to Hong Kong.

Much as the descendants of H.M.S. Bounty mutineers on tiny Pitcairn Island may be startled to see the cruise ship near their shore, the real surprise will be that the Lindblad Explorer is sailing at all. Last winter the ship was grounded on a reef in the Antarctic for the better part of a week.

All hands abandoned ship and the hardy exploring tourists took shelter on a nearby island while salvage tugs went to work. Eventually they succeeded and the tour was completed without further incident.

It was all in the week's work for Lars-Eric Lindblad, the innovative tour operator and president of Lindblad Travel of New York. The Antarctic excursion was typical of the pioneering cruises he has conducted with the specially designed Lindblad Explorer.

NEXT SPRING'S CRUISES are also unusual in approach. According to Lindblad, the Explorer's special navigational aids and shallow draft will enable the ship to sail waters large cruise ships must stay out of, and adaptable rubber landing craft carried aboard will take passengers ashore through coral reefs which prevent normal boat operations.

Other ports of call on the March, April and May cruises, whether or not the destinations offer a port, include the "Robinson Crusoe" island of Juan Fernandez; the Isla de Pascua, better known as Easter Island, and the island of Fatu Hiva in the Marquesas, the home of French painter Paul Gaugin until his death in 1903.

Repairs to the Explorer after the Antarctic incident included some alterations to improve the ship, Lindblad announced. The shakedown cruise after the repair work in Norway begins Monday with a 20-day cruise of the North Cape fjords.

Undaunted by the grounding in the Antarctic, the Explorer will sail on a 28-day tour into the Arctic starting Aug. 5, followed by three expeditions up the Amazon River in the fall.

The spring South Pacific cruises will start with Cruise I on March 10 from Puerto Montt, Chile, to Suva, capital of the Fiji Islands for a total of 30 days at sea. Cruise II sails from Suva April 11 to arrive at Hong Kong on May 4. At least 20 islands will be visited on the two cruises.

AMONG THOSE ON CRUISE I are Tahiti, featuring a coach tour accompanied by island musicians; Raiatea, the island reputed to be the ancestral home of all Polynesians; Rarotonga and Tonga, known as the "Friendly Islands."

Cruise II makes its first call at Tanna, one of three New Hebrides islands on the itinerary. The others are Pentecost, where a native sport is jumping from 100-foot cliffs with the aid of vines, and Malekula, home to a large variety of land birds.

After visits in New Guinea, the cruise proceeds to Micronesia, with 2,141 islands and a total area equal to that of the United States. A 12-hour stop will be made off Yap, providing time for excursions, and also a day-long stop at the island of Palau.

Zamboanga—declared to be one of the most colorful places in the Pacific — on the southwestern tip of the Philippines is the next stop. Arrival at Hong Kong completes the cruise.

Lindblad will be the expedition leader on both cruises, aided by Dr. Roy L. Sexton. Leading naturalists and scientists will accompany the shore excursions for lectures in the field. Rates per person for Cruise I range from $3,600 to $5,100, depending on accommodations aboard the Explorer, and between $2,580 and $3,570 for Cruise II. Rates do not include air transportation.

Brochures describing the exploration cruises in detail are available from Lindblad Travel, 133 E. 55th St., New York, N..Y 10022.

Executive service offered by JAL

Business cards printed in Japanese and English; a Tokyo Information Service for businessmen; workbreak weekend tours for the executive with limited time — these are features of Japan Air Lines' new "Executive Service."

As part of the service, your business card may be translated into Japanese at the price of $3 per 100. When you arrive in Tokyo, you simply pick up your cards at the JAL counter in your hotel.

Dial the JAL information service in Tokyo between 8 a.m. and 7 p.m. any business day and one of the operators will put you in touch with the people who can best give facts, figures.

The "Workbreak Weekend Tours" provide a breather from bustling Tokyo in the peaceful gardens of Kyoto or the natural scenery of Hakone. Or, if preferred, a two or three-day Hawaiian stopover on the return flight to California.

BOAC safari flights continue

Nobody has yet invented a time machine where travelers whisk back through the centuries. But one airline delivers the next best thing.

British Overseas Airways Corp. announces the continuation of its 23-day adventure safari to the island of New Guinea in the South Pacific.

Highlight of the tour is a seven-day houseboat trip up the Sepik River, which for 700 miles winds its way through the interior and carries the traveler 10,000 years into the past — via a maze of channels and crocodile-infested swamps and islands to see mysterious people in strange villages whose culture is virtually unchanged from the Stone Age era.

This most unusual tour includes accommodations with private bath; twin-bedded cabin on houseboat; all meals and morning tea; sightseeing; transfers; gratuities and taxes; tour escort; and visas for Australia and New Guinea/Papua.

Land cost, including charter flights in New Guinea and Papua, is $1950. Air fare is $1001.60 based on 35-day excursion from Los Angeles. Departures are available through December 1974.

Further information and brochures on the New Guinea safari can be obtained from any BOAC sales office.

Hawaii flight caters to young

By DIANNE SMITH
Staff Writer

With 18 per cent of the traveling public to Hawaii under 25, and with summer being the mobile months, Continental Airlines has a new promotion aimed at luring the young traveler aboard one of its four 747 flights to Honolulu.

Called the "Pineapple Split," the flight leaves Los Angeles International at 7 p.m. Monday through Friday, and there begins a fun trip of five hours.

Highlight of the trip is the after-dinner entertainment in the Polynesian Pub, the lounge located between first class and coach. There's folk rock music by a guy and gal on guitars. There's also complimentary nibbles and Cokes.

The inaugural flight featured Maggie King and John Tymon (he's formerly with the New Christy Minstrels). Their counterparts on alternate days are Mary Ann Mahoney and Ted Levalter (he's a former member of the Serendipity Singers). The duo performing on the 7 p.m. flight to the islands returns on the 3:25 p.m. flight the following day, so there's music going and coming.

travel

For those on a nostalgia kick, W. C. Fields and Laurel and Hardy talk movies are screened in economy on the night flight only. The regular full-length feature is shown in coach and first class.

THE YOUNGER set can travel the "Pineapple Split" now through September for $174.04 round-trip, economy on standby. With all those seats on the 747, however, there shouldn't be a problem getting on.

And, with a three-hour time difference, arrival in Honolulu is 9 p.m., which leaves half the night for fun in Waikiki.

Impetus for the Pineapple Split idea came from Charles Bucks, senior vice president, marketing, who explained, "we wanted to expose the first time traveler to a new and different flying experience." It's a new and fun experience for old-time travelers, too.

An interesting sidelight on the performers is that they have never worked together before and had only one practice session before the first flight.

Explained Maggie, "we each sing something from our repertoire, and if the other person knows it, he or she will harmonize along." It sounds good, and they're sure to know each other's songs well by summer's end.

For the first-time visitor to Waikiki, there's a booklet available describing things to do and see in and around Honolulu that don't cost a lot, including a list of inexpensive eating places on all islands. Not a bad thing for the return visitor to have either.

Young travelers also may purchase for $2 a "Pineapple Split" kit, containing a T-shirt, canvas tote bag, shell necklace and coupon book for discounts on car, Honda and bike rentals, plus several shops in International Market Place. There's also $2 worth of coupons for food at McDonald's.

ANOTHER FUN thing about flying are the interesting people you meet. My seat mate on this flight was Barbara Benfield. She has the title Miss International Airlines and represented Continental in the competition in Miami earlier this year.

She was going to the islands on a promotion, invited to a party by Quantas and Aloha Airlines—what a nice job!

Her real job, however, is as a hostess for Military Air Command, flying troops throughout the South Pacific. The government contracts with the various domestic carriers for this service. Most of the planes are old 707's, and carry 165 men. Barbara is one of five hostesses who serve meals and milk or coffee during the flights. "I've never mixed a drink in flight," she commented.

She's considering going back to domestic flying, after three years with MAC, but admits it's a hard decision. "I'd have to be retrained."

On the MAC run, she's usually gone 13 days and receives pay for every day she's away from her home base, whether flying or not.

The flights originate at Travis Air Force Base in Northern California, with stops in Honolulu, Guam, Bangkok and usually end at Clarke AFB in the Philippines. "We used to fly into Saigon regularly, but with the cutbacks in troops, we don't go there much any more," Barbara said.

"WE USED to show movies on the flights, too, but with the troop reductions come a cutback in funds, so we had to eliminate movies."

This flight was also a small world department. One of the regular hostesses is from Long Beach. Joann Wright was graduated from Wilson High and Long Beach City College before joining Continental five years ago. She spent her first three years flying for MAC, so it was reunion time for she and Barbara.

Shopping aloft by catalog

Shopping at 35,000 feet without having to cart home the parcels is the latest in-flight service being offered CP Air passengers.

Passengers are handed a "Jet Shop" mail-order catalogue, first such service to be offered by a scheduled Canadian airline.

The service is available on all cross-Canada Executive Jet flights, on B.C.-Yukon-Alberta domestic routes and most international routes.

PASSENGERS can peruse the mail-order catalogue at their leisure in flight and select gifts and quality merchandise for friends and relatives in Canada, using a prestamped order form. All purchases will be mailed directly to the Canadian address specified.

Tokyo tourists take over Waikiki

By STAN DELAPLANE

Honolulu

Japanese tourists EVERYWHERE in the islands now. Just about saved Waikiki's overbuilt hotels. Hotel men think package tours, sold cheaply in Tokyo, may put Japanese visitors at the half million mark.

Won't make much difference to U.S. mainlanders except a whole bunch of Japanese restaurants are springing up. Furusato of Tokyo has one in the Hikai. Plans two more on the avenue.

Very good one we auditioned last night: Mon Cher Ton (yes, it's Japanese) in the Ala Moana Hotel. Try the oiled beef, sliced thin and broiled on a grill. And the raw beef sashimi, dipped in a garlicky soya sauce. Pricey if you go a la carte. Set dinners mo' bettah.

"Do European trains have dining cars?"

They do and usually have two sittings. Waiter comes through the cars and asks which one you want. The food is adequate, but you won't run into anything exceptional. And it's pricey — about $5 to $7 — for a lot of filler soup and so on you may not want.

MUCH better to get some sandwiches and a bottle of wine from a delicatessen and picnic in your compartment. You'll find a lot of Europeans do this. Skip the ready made sandwiches sold in the station. Get a good deli near your hotel. (Don't forget the corkscrew.)

"How do you find 'Bed and Breakfast' accommodations in England you wrote about."

You see signs all along the roadsides. Ditto in villages. (Sometimes abbreviated to "B and B.") Ask British Travel, 680 Fifth Avenue, New York City, for list of "Farmhouse Accommodations."

Smashing good new book for England driving: "Egon Ronay's Pubs and Tourist Sights." Gives a LOT of tours plus pubs to stay in. Good descriptions. Countryside tours well worked out. Ronay is a hard-working man. Does good job. I can't find a price on my review copy. Or where to buy it here. (English book stores will have it.) British Travel should know how to get it in the U.S. They have a piece of the book.

"We want to cross the border into Mexico at Ciudad Juarez for one night.

I find those border towns dismal, overpriced, honky-tonk, garish. So I never stop and I don't know where to go.

Some people go over for dinner because they can get game — dove, venison, wild pig. Hundreds of shops along the main street. Prices higher than Mexico City. But you can get everything made in the Republic. (Including the turista and a bunch of other ailments.)

"As an Englishwoman I doubt very much that London hotels do not give full value when you cash a traveler's check . . ."

Well, they don't, luv. They rap you two bucks on each hundred dollars. I know the English think such self-delivered cumshaw is a shady deal done only in Asian bazaars. But believe me, it is done by the best London hotels. By the most elegantly frock-coated managers. (Cash in banks! Banks! Banks!)

"Can you drink the water in Spain? In Italy?"

I do — in Madrid. Resident Americans do. In the countryside. I go for the bottled Solares.

In Italy I drink bottled Fiuggi, mainly because it's GREAT water. I like the taste. Fiuggi fixed up Michelangelo's kidneys. So he said in a letter.

Sing Sing has colorful past

By EUGENE W. LASSERS

Every year the annual Western Highland Sing Sing is held in Papua, New Guinea, for up to 40,000 tribesmen who wend their way through the mountainous countryside to participate in the two-day festivities. Another 10,000 natives gather to witness the colorful and sometimes overly boisterous event.

Growing in prominence each year since 1967, the Sing Sing is held in alternate years at the towns of Mt. Hagan or Goroka. The highlands are mountainous and remote from the coastal cities of Port Moresby, Lae, Wewak and Madang, and feature a small outcropping of towns which basically are dependent on air support for survival.

The Star Mountains reach through the clouds to over 14,000 feet and the lower valleys are fed over 200 inches of rain a year and produce a lush tropical forest that inhibits land travel.

Flying is still done by visual means during daylight hours. The treacherous mountain passes can close rapidly and consequently the most famous maneuver is the 180 degree turn which can extract a plane from the danger of hidden mountain peaks. There is plenty of evidence along the mountainsides of those pilots who were not quick enough.

The small town of Mt. Hagan is situated in a valley and lies at the altitude of 5300 feet. During the show many persons are forced to commute by air from surrounding towns because of the limited accommodations available here.

During the show period the visiting tribes are accommodated in thatched-roofed long house known to visitors as the instant Hilton.

These accommodations are adjacent to the show grounds which lie approximately five miles from town. The show is sponsored by the Australian Government to disseminate educational information on agriculture, disease control, and everyday living.

Each province provides an exhibit area and there are a few commercial booths and rides that give it the aura of a county fair. But the reason the natives travel so far and in such great numbers is to sing, chant and pound their Feetfeet to the beat of the drum.

In primative competition against the other attending tribes, they compete for prizes of cattle, feathers or agricultural produce.

It is not unusual to see over 20,000 participants on the infield at one time, massed along a front of 700 persons long and 20 deep, dressed in native costume, their heads plumed with beautiful feathers, hair and beads and their bodies smeared with pig grease.

Bones and ornaments protrude from their ears and nose and all sorts of necklaces dangle from their necks.

Upon completion of this primitive Olympics, the prizes are awarded and the tribesmen start for home in large groups, gradually thinning out as they make their way along the jungle trails.

Arrange the South Pacific any way you like it. And we'll make all the arrangements.

Tired of the same old pre-packaged vacations? Missing the places you want to see? Seeing the places you'd rather miss? Why not build your own vacation in the South Pacific?

It's easy with American Airlines' 12 mini-tours. They go to the Samoas, Australia, Tasmania, Fiji, New Caledonia, New Guinea, New Hebrides, New Zealand, The Solomons, Tahiti, And Tonga. They range from 2 to 15 days, $45 to $495 per person, sharing a double room, plus air fare.

They include hotels. Sightseeing. Even some meals.

And best of all, you can arrange as many or few of them in any way you want, for as long as you want. Which means you're free to witness the ghostly rituals of the Asaro Mud Men. Dance the wickedly sensuous Tamure. And do all the things in the South Pacific that you want to do.

Of course not everyone wants to rearrange the South Pacific. Some people would rather have a vacation just the way they see it in our brochure.

Like our Kiwi Kaper, a 17-day motorcoach tour of New Zealand.

And starting this fall, our 29-day Fly/Cruise South Pacific vacation, where we take you to New Zealand, Australia, Fiji, Tonga, the Samoas, Cook Islands and Tahiti—by air, land and sea.

The prices vary, depending on where you're traveling from. And you can charge all of our vacations on your American Express Money Card.

So ask your Travel Agent about these and our other unusual vacations. Or send us the coupon below for our free brochure "Isles of the South Pacific."

Whether you prearrange it or rearrange it, let American Airlines show you the South Pacific. And how the other half of the world lives.

Please send me your free brochure "Isles of the South Pacific."

The Aces on bridge

by IRA G. CORN JR.
TEAM CAPTAIN

Dear Mr. Corn:

We held this hand in a recent party bridge game. Both sides were vulnerable and North-South had a 60 partial. South dealt. How do you suggest the bidding should go?

Answer: The bidding of highly distributional hands can go in many ways. The right sequence would be:

South	West	North	East
1 ♥	Pass	Pass	Pass

But East would likely bid one no trump. So off to the races.

A trouble hand, to be sure, one with 60 on score, it would take a well-established rubber bridge partnership to avoid a heavy loss.

Dear Mr. Corn: Please tell me what I should have done with this hand after my right-hand opponent opened the bidding with one spade. Neither side was vulnerable.

Answer: The reasonable course is a pass. And without any stewing and fretting to give the show away.

Bidding spades at the two level is a cue bid which is bound to lead to disaster. Equally distasteful is the takeout double which is also a strong candidate to create problems for your partner. If temptation to bid is too great, three spades in this sequence is to show the suit and a strong hand.

If you pass, perhaps the opponents will bid more. There may be a large penalty to reward your self-control. If they do not bid, at least you'll have a plus score.

William Conrad: new kind of hero makes it big

By BOB MARTIN
TV-Radio Editor

WILLIAM CONRAD . . . got his start in Long Beach

Associated Press Newsfeatures Photo

William Conrad is as tough-looking a critter as you'll ever see on television, hero or villain. He weighs about 250 pounds and is only 5 feet, 9½ inches tall, yet he doesn't look fat; he looks like 250 pounds of muscle. His scowl is enough to frighten TV's younger leading men half to death; he looks as though he might devour some of them for breakfast.

Yes, Bill is a fierce bulldog of a man, but let me tell you something you probably didn't know.

He used to sing in a church choir in Long Beach.

Yes, that's right, a church choir right here in Long Beach.

Conrad disclosed that bit of information to me during an interview at Samuel Goldwyn Studios in Hollywood, where he is busy turning out episodes for the second season of "Cannon," in which he stars as private investigator Frank Cannon.

"Yes, I used to sing in the choir at the First Christian Church in Long Beach as a boy," he repeated after I thought I misheard him the first time. "Do you have a street called Locust? I believe the church was at Locust and Fifth.

"I sang there because I took voice lessons from a Mr. Frye in Long Beach three times a week. I thought at the time I might become a singer."

Bill was living in Bellflower at the time. He was born in Louisville, Ky., lived in Oklahoma for a short time, and came to Bellflower with his parents when he was 7.

"I used to go to Long Beach often," he recalled. "It was the closest place to go to the beach. I can remember the Rainbow Pier quite well. And I used to go to concerts at the Shell—isn't that what it was called? I played the trombone in our school band and was interested in music."

He told me also that he remembered when Long Beach's Traffic Circle was built. "Why, people would drive from miles away just to see that magnificent Traffic Circle."

I think I noted a slight touch of sarcasm on that word "magnificent."

Conrad, who was a radio actor for years, as well as a motion picture and TV actor, then a producer and director, got his start in radio in Long Beach, he disclosed.

"I got to know a man named Lew Houston, who was an announcer at KFOX. I would hang around him a lot and late at night he'd let me do a commercial."

For years now, Conrad has been one of the persons most in demand for radio commercials. His manly, authoritative yet pleasing voice has earned him huge sums of money from commercials alone, not to mention his acting assignments.

Bill went to Excelsior High School, then to Fullerton Junior College, where he majored in drama. He figures it was the most natural thing in the world for him to become interested in acting, for he literally grew up in the theater.

"My father was always a theater owner, exhibitor or projectionist," he pointed out. "One of my first memories is of a little town in Oklahoma where my father owned a theater. He was also the projectionist and my mother was the ticket seller. I can remember them pulling me to work in a little red wagon. There weren't such things as baby-sitters in those days. I stayed in the theater with them."

After the family moved to Bellflower, Bill's father was projectionist at the Bellflower Theater until his death in the late 1930s, Conrad said.

Bill recalls being in the junior play and the senior play at Excelsior High. He said he was more interested in drama than in sports in high school, but that he did play center in football for a year or two.

I asked if he had always been heavy.

"Oh, I was a chubby little fellow, I guess, but not really fat. I can remember that I weighed 165 when I entered the Army (Air Corps)."

Conrad was already an announcer-writer-director for radio station KMPC in Los Angeles before entering the service in World War II. He became a fighter pilot, but didn't see combat, and finished his service stint as producer-director for the Armed Forces Radio Service. He left the Air Force in 1945 with the rank of captain.

He had learned the radio business "from the bottom up" at KMPC before the war. "I did everything there was to do there, including singing," he recalls. After the war, he soon became one of the top dramatic actors in radio, starring in more than 5,000 shows over the next decade.

Though he starred in many other series and shows, he is probably best remembered as Matt Dillon in the original (radio) "Gunsmoke" series which ran for 11 years on CBS Radio Network.

Bill's motion picture debut came in 1946 when he played the part of a gunman in Mark Hellinger's production of "The Killers." He played the editor in Jack Webb's "—30—" and had feature parts in such films as "Body and Soul," "Sorry, Wrong Number," "Eastside, Westside," "Naked Jungle," "Five Against the House," "Johnny Concho" and "The Ride Back."

It wasn't until Conrad was selected to star in Quinn Martin's "Cannon" series on TV, though, that he was transformed from a villain or, at best, a "character actor" in films into a hero—at age 50.

I suggested to Bill that he may be doing for the heavy-set, middle-aged men what Yul Brynner did for the bald-headed gents, and asked him how it felt to be a sex symbol.

"That's actually true—the polls say there's a high sex quotient in Cannon's appeal—but I find it absolutely ridiculous," the portly private eye replied.

"I get a lot of fan mail, a lot of letters from women. I smile and take it all with a grain of salt. A lot of them ask for photos. Some of the letters are very interesting. Some women propose marriage, and some propose more than that." (He has been married for 17 years to Susan Randall, a former high fashion model, and they live in Sherman Oaks.)

I asked Conrad if he enjoyed playing a hero more than he did a villain.

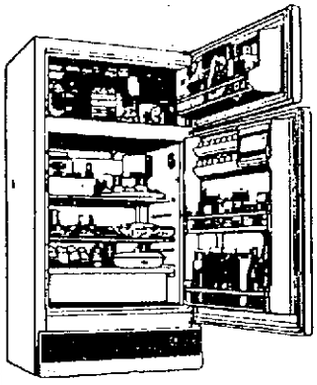

"It really doesn't matter what you play as long as you play it well," he answered. "Cannon is a very good role,

New kind of television hero

though—it allows a great spectrum of acting. I enjoy it but it's not because I'm a hero.

"I suppose you could say I'm acting more and enjoying it more now. You know, I got out of acting for a good while. (He was a producer and director of TV shows and movies for about 15 years.) At the time, I really didn't think acting was a job for a grown man—at least, not for me.

"But time has a strange habit of changing people. I'm amazed at how much I've learned about me in the last few years. I've found that I don't need those responsibilities I was looking for. Acting now is enough responsibility."

Conrad says he is "in amazingly good shape, considering the way I look."

He added: "I hate exercise, and would prefer to be sedentary. But I have always been very strong—I'm just built that way. I'm very healthy."

He said he does about 80 per cent of his own stunts on "Cannon," which, incidentally, moves to a new time slot on the CBS Television Network in September (10 p.m. on Wednesdays).

" 'Jesus Christ, you scared the hell out of me. I thought you were going to have a heart attack,' people tell me after I do a particularly hard stunt," he said.

Bill said he has played golf for 23 years, but hasn't had time for it the last couple of years.

He is an enthusiastic sailor and enjoys deep sea fishing. The owner of a 47-foot ketch, The Moonraker, he sails frequently from the California Yacht Club at Marina del Rey. He says, with pride, that his son, Christopher, 15, "wants to be an oceanographer," not an actor.

While vacationing in Hawaii between TV seasons, Conrad discovered "the exhilarating sport" of soaring and he has soloed in a sailplane.

As you might have surmised, he enjoys the finer things of life when it comes to eating and drinking, but he has to be careful about his weight. He has soared to as much as 275 pounds, but prefers to be no more than 225.

My interview with Conrad was conducted in his star "dressing room" at the Goldwyn Studios after I watched him do a few scenes in a "Cannon" episode just before he took a lunch break in which he skipped eating.

Some "dressing room"! We passed by a secretary, who was busy at her desk in the entry room. Then, in a large room that resembled a den in a sumptuous home, I took a seat on the couch.

He offered me a drink and I settled for a beer, which he produced from a refrigerator. He then sat down behind his desk, sans drink.

Inside the "den" he had all the comforts of home. I took note of a wine rack, a pipe rack, a small bar, a piano, a portable TV, a stereo and recording equipment. On the walls were a number of pictures of ships, including The Moonraker, and mounted fish.

Shelves included books, guns, ship models and a number of miniature cannons, symbols of his TV series.

On the coffee table in front of the couch on which I sat were two books, "The Truth About Weight Control" and "Soaring for Diamonds," and four magazines. The magazines were Sea, Soaring, Sports Illustrated and Cosmopolitan.

Cosmopolitan?

Maybe, as a late-discovered, middle-aged sex symbol, Conrad has hopes of making the centerfold.

PAN AND FAN MAIL

. . . YOU REMARKED on the fact that Mike Connors has the "eyes of a kind and considerate person"; I believe that is the thing which has made me think that he is a great guy!

Also, the statement you made, saying that you almost felt that YOU were doing Mr. Connors a favor, because of his most gracious behavior, brought to my mind one of my most favorite quotations: "Charm is the ability to make someone else think both of you are quite wonderful."

. . . By the way, did I recognize the fine hand of Bill Buerge in the caricature of "Mannix"? I like Mr. Buerge's style; matter of fact, that paper really has some artistic people. While I'm at it, may I say that you are doing a great job? (You may quote me to your boss! (es?) . . .

THERE'S BEEN so much talk about violence on television I think there's one thing that many people have overlooked. The other night I was watching television and a very well-known product was being advertised, to be more specific "Raid" bug spray.

The "bugs" are viewed by people of all ages as having human characteristics. It shows these bugs with human faces, human voices, clothing, etc. Most important, the advertisement shows a very obvious human emotion — fear.

Then these bugs, that have already been giving you human impressions, are VIOLENTLY killed or slaughtered. This may be a "drop in the bucket," but this type of advertising technique is lacking consideration.

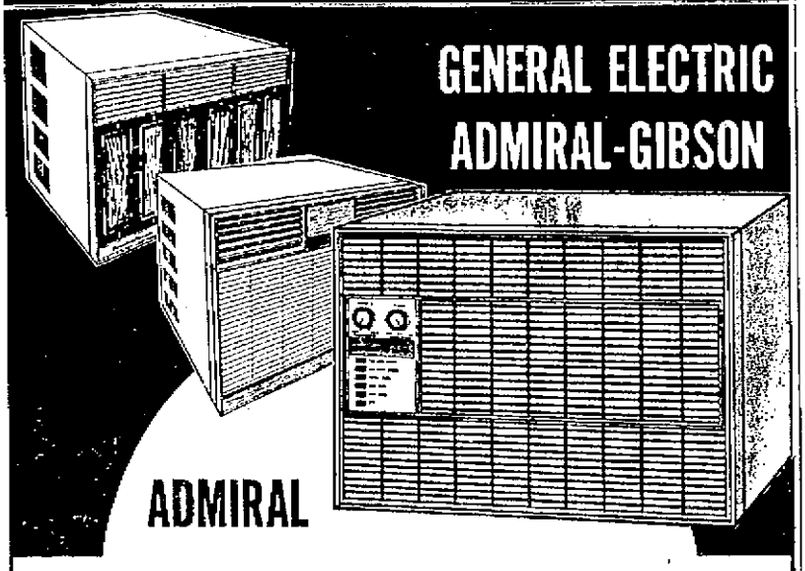

(Just in case someone is wondering, I don't see anything wrong with showing a product that kills real live bugs, without the clothes or the talking.)

SUMMER SPECIAL!
SAVE $500.00
POUR YOUR OWN DECK. Our deck man is way behind schedule, so for a limited time (until he catches up), you can save $500.00 by making arrangements to pour your own deck.
14'x28' $1795.00 84 perimeter ft. 392 square ft.
Vinyl-lined construction is the modern pool-building method that does away with old-fashioned rigid walls — the costliest part of a pool. Our vinyl liner is tough, strong, flexible, completely watertight and practically maintenance-free. A skim filter and occasional vacuuming do an excellent job of keeping the pool clean of leaves and sediment. Another advantage is the satin-smooth, resilient surface. You can't scratch or scrape yourself as you can on hard, rough surfaces. And this same super-smoothness makes it be harder for underwater deposits like scale and algae to take hold, easier to clean off. Our vinyl liner is difficult to puncture (it practically has to be deliberate), but if a puncture happens, repair is fast and easy and can be made under water. Our concrete and steel "Floating Bond-Beam" construction qualifies Banner Pools for 10-year home improvement loans — so make this your "BANNER" year.
You provide: 7' access, Level lot, Your own decking
We provide: A 14'x28' swimming pool
Including: Steel reinforced concrete block side walls

'Vibrations from London'

Five star attractions of today's popular music scene — Melanie, Richie Havens, Joe Cocker, the Beach Boys and the Sha Na Na group — will headline "Good Vibration '72 from London," a one-hour special to be colorcast on the NBC Television Network Tuesday (9:30-10:30 p.m., Channel 4), preempting James Garner as "Nichols".

The stars will be seen performing in a concert at London's Crystal Palace Bowl, an outdoor arena in a pastoral setting.

Executive producer is Ron Delsener, who produced the special with John Moffitt. Moffitt also is the director. The two were responsible for the acclaimed mod musical special. "Good Vibrations from Central Park," which was telecast last August.

Melanie has composed many of the songs she has recorded, Her hit melodies include: "Look What They've Done to My Song, Ma," "Brand New Key," "Candles In the Rain," "Beautiful People" and "Peace Will Come." Last September, Melanie sang from the rostrum of the United Nations General Assembly. She has prepared radio and TV announcements on behalf of UNICEF and will make a world tour for that organization later this year.

Richie Havens also composed many of the melodies in his repertoire. These include: "Freedom," "Younger Men Grow Older" and "The Minstrel from Gault." Havens is noted for his interpretations of songs by the Beatles, including "Here Comes the Sun," "Lady Madonna" and "Strawberry Fields." He has written a book, "The Great Blind Degree," and recently completed a role in his first motion picture, "We Always Part Much Wiser."

England's Joe Cocker won a large following in this country with his first concert tour in the summer of 1969. Among his popular recordings are: "The Letter," "Cry Me a River," "Delta Lady," "Feeling All Right" and "High Time We Went."

The Beach Boys appeared in "Good Vibrations from Central Park." Their soft rock sounds have made them favorites from California (their home base) to New York. They were the first to popularize the West Coast "surf sound" in pop music. Songs with which they have become identified include: "Surfin' U.S.A.," "Fun, Fun, Fun," "I Get Around," "Help Me Rhonda," "God Only Knows" and "Good Vibrations."

Sha Na Na was formed specifically to bring back the rock 'n' roll sounds of the 1950s. (The group's name is derived from the sounds of the rhythmic background employed by rock groups in that decade).

DAVID STEINBERG (left) joins guest stars Ed McMahon and Leslie Uggams in a musical extravaganza when "The David Steinberg Show" premieres Wednesday at 8 p.m. on Channel 2.

Comedy series to open

"The David Steinberg Show," starring the night-club actor-comedian whose irreverent-but-hilarious approach to the contemporary scene has made him a favorite of the "now" generation, premieres Wednesday on the CBS Television Network (8-9 p.m., Channel 2).

Talk-show favorite Ed McMahon and singer Leslie Uggams are the guest stars on the opening show of the series, which replaces 'The Carol Burnett Show" on the network for five consecutive weeks.

("The Melba Moore-Clifton Davis Show" was the original replacement, also for five weeks.)

The BIBLE Says

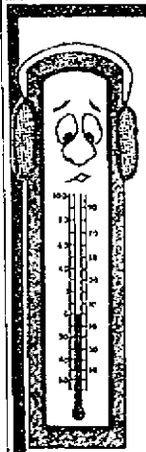

ANNOUNCING A PUBLIC DEBATE

Among the many controversies in the religious world is the question of infant baptism. Some contend that infants of Christians should be baptized, and others believe that baptism is for believers only. Another controversial question concerns the practice of sprinkling and pouring for baptism. Many believe that sprinkling and pouring are legitimate "modes" of baptism, while others believe baptism means immersion, and nothing less than immersion is true baptism. On all sides of these issues it is admitted that the teaching of the Bible must be respected whatever it is. If the Bible teaches infant baptism and sprinkling then that teaching must be accepted along with everything else the Word of God teaches. If the Bible does NOT teach infant baptism and sprinkling then those practices are human traditions which must be rejected by all who desire to follow the Bible alone. If infant baptism and sprinkling are not taught in the Bible then those who were sprinkled when infants (or in adulthood) have not actually been baptized.

On the nights of July 31st, August 1st, 3rd and 4th, Mr. DAVID WATTS of the Studebaker Road Church of Christ, and Mr. CLYDE FIELD of the Bible Presbyterian Church on 37th Street in Long Beach, will engage these issues in debate. All interested parties are invited to attend these public debates in a sincere effort to determine what the Bible teaches regarding these questions. The debate will be held at the church building of the Studebaker Road church of Christ, 3433 Studebaker Road, Long Beach. The nightly discussions will begin at 7:30 each evening. Readers of this column have a special invitation to attend these unique Bible studies.

When hospitalized, benefits are payable at the rate of...

Hospital Benefits
$600.00 a month—$20.00 a day—

while you require hospital confinement . . . for each accident starting the first day in the hospital, and for each illness, starting after the fifth day—continuing for life, if necessary.

65 Or Over Benefits
$300.00 a month—$10.00 a day—

once you have reached age 65, for the first 3 months of hospitalization. Coverage for accidents begins the very first day in the hospital; sickness coverage begins after the fifth day. After 3 months, if you are still confined in the hospital, you then receive . . . $600.00 a month—$20.00 a day—thereafter, even for life, if necessary. This money is paid directly to you unless assigned by you and without regard to any other insurance you may already have.

Children's Benefits
$360.00 a month—$12.00 a day—

while your child is confined to the hospital for any accident or illness, when you have Coverage for Children—no matter how long the confinement may be. Coverage for accidents begins the very first day in the hospital; sickness coverage begins after the fifth day.

Maternity Benefits
$20.00 a day—

for Maternity Benefits when Coverage for Children and Maternity Benefits have been added to the basic plan. (Wife must be enrolled for entire period of pregnancy.)

Registered Nurse Benefit at home after covered hospital confinement.
$400.00 a month—$13.33 a day—

for a registered nurse at home if your doctor has you hire one within five days following a hospital confinement of five days or more for which you received benefits—up to one year.

Increased Accident Benefit when covered husband and wife are simultaneously hospitalized.
$2,400.00 a month—$80.00 a day—

that's $1,200.00 a month, $40.00 a day, for you—and $1,200.00 a month, $40.00 a day, for your spouse . . . while an accident hospitalizes covered husband and wife at the same time. Yes, $2,400.00 a month, $80.00 a day in all (when under 65) while both are confined in the hospital as a result of accident—even for life.

Waiver of Premium.

We waive all premiums that come due for you and all covered members of your family while you—or your spouse—are hospitalized beyond eight consecutive weeks following the elimination period if any. And you don't have to pay us back.

Benefits are payable for as long as you're hospitalized—even for life.

We mean it. If you go to the hospital for a month, we will pay you for a month subject to any elimination period. If you go for 2 months, we'll pay you for 2 months. And if you go to the hospital for life—we will pay you for life. No ifs, ands, or buts.

These are the exclusions!

Your National Home policy covers every kind of sickness or accident except conditions caused by:

1. any sickness or injury originating before the policy went into effect (these pre-existing conditions are covered after policy has been in force for 2 years);

2. war, or any act of war;

3. any mental disease or functional nervous disorder;

4. pregnancy, except as provided under the Maternity Benefit provision;

You collect from your first day in the hospital for accidents and after five days for sickness.

You will be covered for care in any hospital, except a U.S. Government hospital or a nursing or convalescent facility.

Here are your rates.

$1 covers your entire family for the first month. After that you may continue at the monthly rates shown below. We will issue you only one policy of this class. Each adult, 16 or over, pays the rate shown for his or her age.

Age at Enrollment	Monthly Premium per Adult
16-44	$3.45
45-49	$4.00
50-54	$4.40

Only $1.80 more per month covers all your unmarried dependent children . . . from birth through 18 years, including automatic coverage for newborn children at no additional cost. For Maternity Benefits just add $1.35 monthly if both husband and wife are covered under this policy – or $2.10 monthly if the wife only is insured.

NOTE: The regular monthly renewal premium shown (for age at time of enrollment) will not automatically increase as you pass from one age bracket to the next. Once you have enrolled in this National Home plan, your policy is guaranteed renewable and your rate cannot be increased individually because of how much or how often you collect from us—or because of advanced age but only if there is a general rate adjustment on all policies of this class and form number in your entire state.

OVER 30 million people will be admitted to a hospital this year! It could be you—or some beloved member of your family — tomorrow . . . next week . . . next month. Sad to say, very few families have anywhere near enough coverage to meet today's soaring hospital costs. These costs have more than doubled in just a few short years.

Stop for a moment. Think how much a long stay in the hospital will cost you or a loved one. How would you ever pay for costly, but necessary, X-rays, medical bills, drugs and medicines? What would you do if your pay check stopped, but living expenses kept going on the same as ever? The same rent, phone, food, all the day-to-day expenses that never stop.

What is the average breadwinner to do? We believe we have an answer in this National Home plan.

Pays up to $600.00 a month—
$20.00 a day—benefits
when you are hospitalized.

Now you can have $600.00 coming in every month—$20.00 a day—beginning the very first day you are hospitalized due to an accident, and the sixth day for confinements due to sickness.

The benefits are paid directly to you unless you request otherwise and without regard to any other insurance you may already have. Use the money as you see fit—for hospital or medical bills. To replace savings or cover household expenses.

Dear Friend:

How often do we take for granted our good health and that of those we love? It's only natural ... until something happens.

And things do happen. Over 30 million people are admitted to hospitals each year, and with today's skyrocketing hospital and medical costs many people lose their savings and go into debt. That's why you should protect yourself and your family with National Home's health plan. I think this plan is one of the best supplemental hospital insurance plans you can own.

Because I have been retained by National Home as a marketing consultant, I've looked over the policy very carefully. I also know the folks at National Home. And you won't find more decent, competent and friendly people to deal with. I've seen the way they handle claims, too -- quickly and fairly. Believe me, when you need them, they'll be there to help you.

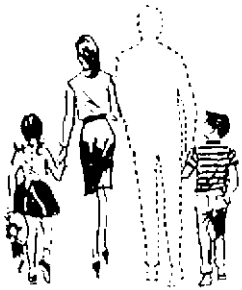

I cannot imagine anybody passing up the chance to enroll in this health plan -- especially when the first month's protection costs only $1 and then continues at reasonable monthly rates.

We all know what a terrible thing it is to be hospitalized. But what a relief it is to know there are insurance benefits coming in when you need them most! Take my advice. Send the Enrollment Form on the back page now -- before you forget.

Sincerely,

Art Linkletter

Member of the Board of Directors,
National Home Life Assurance Company

We guarantee not to cancel your protection no matter how many claims you have . . . or how old you become . . . or for any reason whatsoever.

We cannot increase your rates individually because of how old you become . . . or how many claims you have . . . but only if there is a general rate adjustment on all policies of this class and form number in your entire state.

How much does $600.00 a month --$20.00 a day—protection cost you? Only $1 covers you and your entire family for the first month. After that you may continue at our renewal rates shown on page 2.

Pays $360.00 a month-- $12.00 a day--when any unmarried dependent child is hospitalized.

When you choose Coverage for Children, this National Home plan pays at the rate of $360.00 a month—$12.00 a day--while one of your children is hospitalized. Pays for as long as necessary! Children are covered for accidents from the first day and for sickness after the fifth day.

Benefits for Maternity Care.

Other hospital insurance may take care of part of your expenses when you are confined to the hospital to have a baby. This plan can give you additional help when the new baby arrives. If Coverage for Children and Maternity Benefits are added to the basic plan, and your wife has been covered during entire period of pregnancy, this plan pays $600.00 a month - $20.00 a day to use as you want. If a pregnancy, childbirth or even miscarriage puts your covered wife in the hospital for one day, five days, ten days -as long as necessary—this plan pays benefits for every day of the confinement.

Benefits for registered nurse care at home after a covered hospital confinement.

How comforting it is to know that -- after your stay in the hospital, if you've been there five days or more for which you received benefits—you can return home to recuperate and yet not be a burden to your loved ones. If your doctor has you employ a full-time registered nurse within 5 days after you come home, we'll pay benefits at the rate of $400.00 a month —$13.33 a day. And your benefits continue during employment of the nurse—even up to 12 full months.

Double Accident Benefit
when covered husband and wife are simultaneously hospitalized.

When you and your insured spouse are hospitalized at the same time for an accidental injury, this National Home plan pays DOUBLE BENEFITS. $1,200.00 a month—$40.00 a day—apiece. That's $2,400.00—$80.00 a day—in benefits every month (when under age 65) starting the day you are hospitalized for as long as you both remain confined.

Fast, Reliable Claim Service

"We were most happy with the prompt way that you sent us the claim forms when requested. Your check for the week my husband was in the hospital was received within ten days. Thank you so much – it really helped in a time of need."

MRS. ROBERT H. ROBINSON, Miami, Fla.

"I took out the policy and had only paid two monthly premiums when I was unexpectedly put in the hospital. Was there 11 days and the National Home Life Assurance Company paid exactly what they had said they would. How happy we were we had taken the policy out."

DEWEY M. FAILOR, Upper Sandusky, Ohio

CLAIMS PHILOSOPHY

National Home Life Assurance Company

Our claims philosophy stresses the importance of a prompt and equitable settlement of all claims:

- "EXCELLENCE is not only what we wish to achieve, but that to which our policyowners are entitled."
- "Our guiding principle is to ask ourselves on each submitted claim, 'Is there any way we can pay this claim?'
- always give the benefit of the doubt to the policyowner."
- "Courtesy is an absolute requirement—the policyowner must have the feeling that he is not a number but, rather, a human being, and that we stand ready and willing to assist him in any way we can."

What's up Jack?

It's NAT-UR-ROLLS, a handy new cheese shape for Casino Monterey Jack.

This is the newest addition to Casino Brand's impressive selection of fine natural cheese. It's a one pound roll of excellent Monterey Jack. Notice how you can slice it to top off a hamburger. Or you can cut it like a salami, and eat it with some, for that matter. The whole roll is wrapped in Saran to seal in the freshness, then dipped in clear wax.

This is a fine convenient shape for natural cheese. Kind of a "loaf of bread, jug of wine and thou" shape which adds to the romance of cheese.

Another way to serve this cheese is to turn it on end, cut it crosswise and insert fancy picks. Monterey Jack goes great at parties or just late evening snacking.

Or cut off a fresh slice of Nat-Ur-Rolls Monterey Jack and serve it with fruit for dessert.

Wells Report

'I Give You the Next President of . . .'

This is an election year. I think Sen. Humphrey made everyone aware of that. I mean, everytime he came on the tube you had to get up and go adjust the color control to get a little less red and a little more yellow. I'm referring to his complexion color, not his politics. You have to do the same thing with Jerry Dunphy. Ol' Pink Puss, we call him at our house.

It didn't really come home to me that this was an election year, however, until my neighbor dropped by and announced he was running for office. I wasn't particularly surprised until he told me that he wasn't running for President of the United States like everyone else. He was running for president of our local homeowners association.

I guess before I go any further with this story I had better solve a technical problem. It's the matter of my neighbor's name. I don't want to use his real name even though he probably waived his right to privacy by becoming a candidate. And it's awkward to go on calling him "my neighbor" all the time. The way writers solve this dilemma is by using a fictitious name, "to protect the innocent," although I do not think that my neighbor is so darn innocent.

My colleague, Jack Smith, who does a column for another publication that is occasionally distributed in Southern California, writes about his neighbor all the time. Smith calls his neighbor Dalton. Somebody told me that Dalton is a made-up name, but I do not believe it. It sounds too real. If you called your neighbor Dalton when that wasn't his name, you'd be hearing from all the real Daltons.

No, a fictitious name should be obviously fictitious. It should have a literary flavor, even a heroic ring, like Heathcliffe. Therefore, I shall call my neighbor Coonradt. That's a lovely name, and no one would ever mistake it for a real one.

Anyway, Coonradt (that's not his real name, you understand) dropped by and informed me he was running for president of our neighborhood association. He would like my support.

Well, back when Coonradt was just beginning the long, weary road to the presidency, he was membership chairman. The thing that makes a membership chairman a success and likely to be considered for higher office is to sign up more new members than the previous membership chairman. Not better ones, just more. So Coonradt signed me up. I had never attended a meeting, but apparently I was still a paid-up member. You might call me a member in nonstanding.

It is one thing to consider a candidate's qualifications when you can get up and change his complexion from high-blood-pressure red to Miami tan. It is another when he is standing at your front door needing a shave and a shot of Listerine.

"I would appreciate your support," Coonradt said. "I think with your help we can make this a darn good neighborhood and a good place to raise children. I want to give the little man a voice, not just the politicians. After all, it's the little man who's the backbone of this community."

Coonradt didn't look or smell like the candidates on the tube, but he sure sounded the same.

"Furthermore, good, aggressive leadership at the head of our association can make it clear to those in power that property taxes are exorbitant and have to come down."

That sounded good. Was it just possible, I wondered, that Coonradt might do something about public transit? My section of Orange County doesn't have any bus service. If we could get a local bus line, teenagers without cars wouldn't have to hitchhike everywhere.

"Er . . .," I said, "about getting some buses, how . . .?"

"Don't worry about that," Coonradt snapped. "I'm deadset against busing. We don't want any egghead sociologists experimenting with our children."

Well, anyway, Coonradt was a good neighbor, so I told him he had my vote. I even went to the nominating meeting of the Association. Coonradt's opposition turned out to be Mrs. Honkerschmad, a housewife who had trained for public office by taking the minutes of Association meetings for two years. From where I was seated in the rear of the school auditorium, she appeared to look and smell better than Coonradt. But I couldn't be sure and, anyway, a commitment is a commitment.

A few days later my doorbell rang. It was Mrs. Honkerschmad. She did look and smell better than Coonradt.

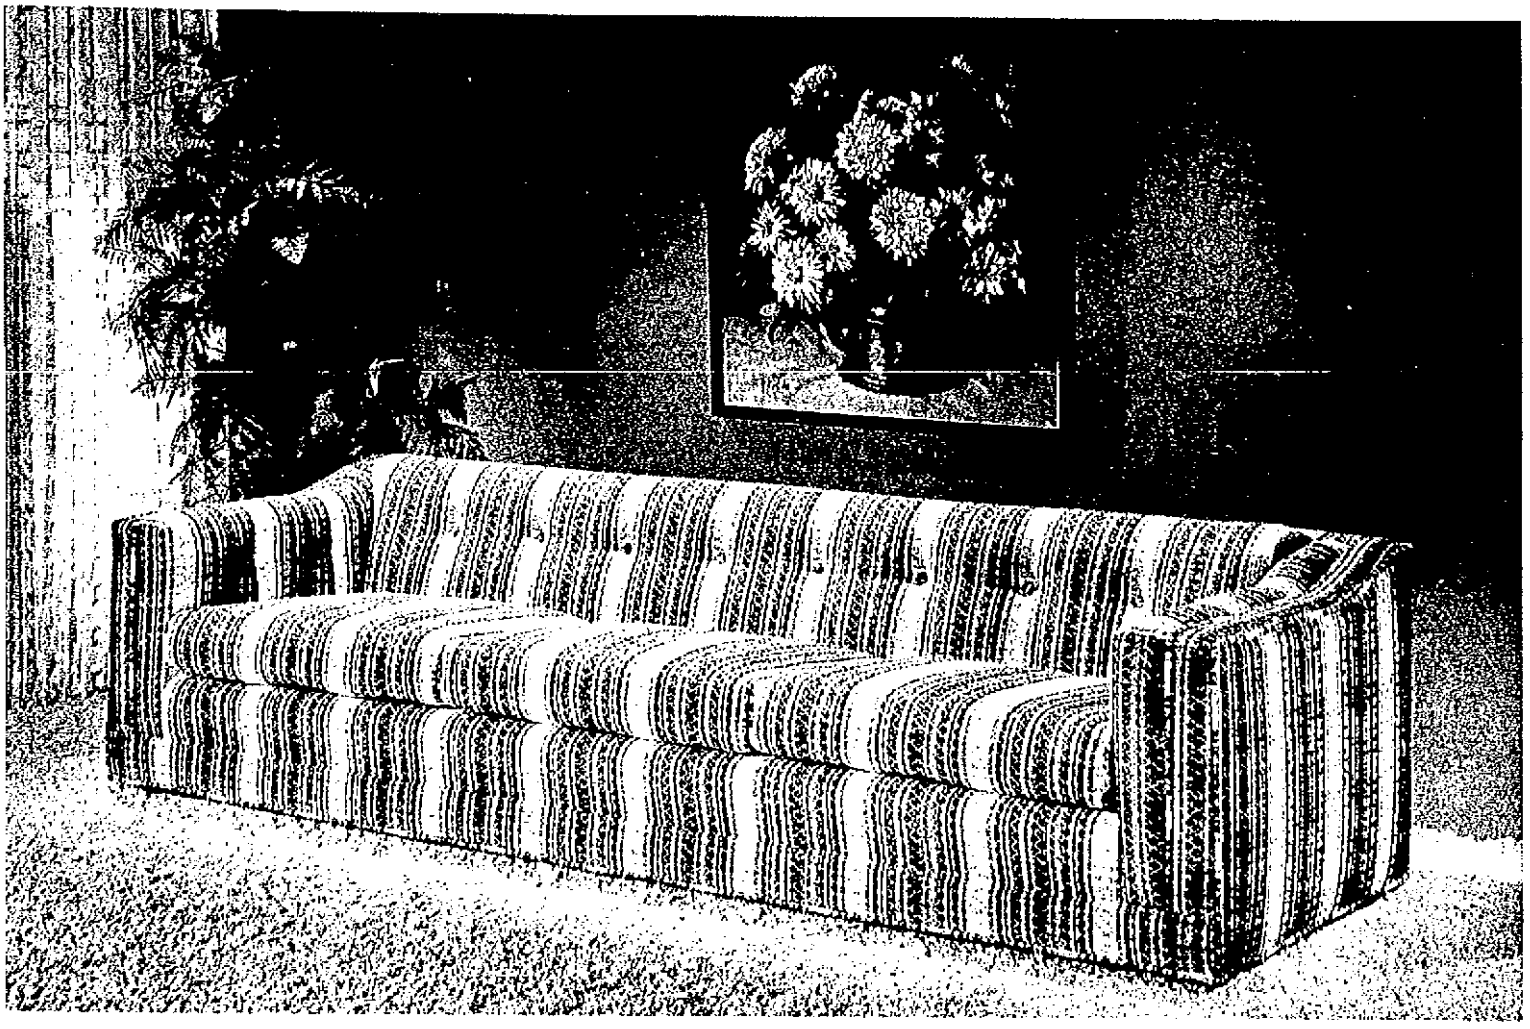

"Mr. Hamm?" she said. "We met the other night at the Association meeting. Nice to see you again. I just wanted to catch you before you mailed your ballot. I think we can make this a darn good neighborhood, a good place to raise children, and maybe we can do something about property taxes, and . . ."

"I'm Mr. Wells," I said. "Mr. Hamm lives next door."

"Oh, yes," she said, frowning at a list in her hand. "Well, I hope I can count on your vote."

I voted for Coonradt, but he lost. Mrs. Honkerschmad was against busing, too. But Coonradt is not dispirited. Next year, he says, will be a different story. Mrs. Honkerschmad is going to run for City Council, and the new secretary has another year of taking Association minutes before she can be serious competition. Coonradt forsees a landslide. □

By HY GARDNER

Churchill . . . he said it, but was misquated.

Erle Stanley Gardner . . . two more books to be published.

Zsa Zsa . . . too smart for Chaplin.

Henry Kissinger . . . a citizen and soldier.

Johnny Cash . . . younger brother Tommy a singer too.

Bogart . . . he has a lookalike

Q: When did Sir Winston Churchill first mention, "I have nothing to offer you but blood, sweat, and tears?" — Minnie S., Jersey City.

A: What the wartime leader said has often been misquoted. "I have nothing to offer but blood, toil, tears and sweat," is what he told the House of Commons on May 13, 1940.

Q: As a Perry Mason fan, I wonder if Erle Stanley Gardner wrote any new detective stories to be published posthumously? — Mrs. Naomi T., Burlington, Vt.

A: Yes, two, reveals his publisher, William Morrow. "The Case of the Fenced-In Woman," due in the bookstores in September, and "The Case of the Postponed Murder" — postponed till sometime in 1973. The 145th and 146th titles in the popular series.

Q: Was Zsa Zsa Gabor ever one of Charlie Chaplin's wives? — Melissa McC., Richmond.

A: No. But she dated him when she first came to America — at the age of 17. "Chaplin saw me at a party," revealed Zsa Zsa. "And took me out a couple of times. Then said, 'I love you and I would marry you, but I can't. You're much too smart for me.' He must have meant it. Because years later his daughter, Geraldine, said to me: 'You know, you could have been my mother. But you weren't, because you were too smart for my daddy!'"

Q: That actor on TV commercials who looks and sounds just like Humphrey Bogart — who is he? And what else is he doing: — Arlene W., Long Beach, Cal.

A: The Bogus Bogey is actor Jerry Lacy — who made a name for himself doing Bogart in TV commercials. He also played Bogey in "Play It Again Sam" on Broadway. And repeats it (complete with trench coat and snaphrim hat), in the Woody Allen Paramount movie version. Jerry started doing Humphrey after people told him he looked and sounded exactly like him. He'd catch every film on TV, watch, study and perfect the old movie master's mannerisms, movements and voice. It paid off.

Q: After all the delicate negotiations he's done for President Nixon, I wonder how Henry Kissinger can be vested with that kind of responsibility when he's not even a U.S. citizen — or is he? Frank M. Gulland, Syracuse, N.Y.

A: Yes. He became a naturalized U.S. citizen in 1943 and served 3 years with the U.S. Army during World War II. Born in Fuerth, Germany, May 27, 1923, he fled Nazi persecution in 1938. As a naturalized citizen, he could hold any U.S. government office, with the possible exception of President or Vice-President. The exact meaning of the Constitution on that question has been the subject of debate for years.

Q: Is country artist star Tommy Cash any kin to Johnny? Or is he just trading on his name and fame? — Gladys and George White, North Miami, Fla.

A: Tommy isn't cashing in on Johnny's name. He's a brother — youngest of seven children, four boys and three girls. Young Cash worked in nightclubs and as a disc jockey in Frankfurt, Germany, for the American Forces Network in Europe. He called his show, "Stickbuddy Jamboree." Tommy and his band, "The Tomcats," are currently setting records in personal appearances. With top TV bookings in the offing.

Send your questions to Hy Gardner, "Glad You Asked That," care of Southland Sunday, P.O. Box 11748, Chicago, Ill. 60611. He will answer as many questions as he can in his column, but the volume of mail makes personal replies impossible. □

HOLLYWOOD VIOLENCE: Boon Or Mental Illness

By MARILYN BECK

By the end of 1971, limp box office receipts proved that big-screen erotica had been a short-lived panacea for Hollywood financial doldrums.

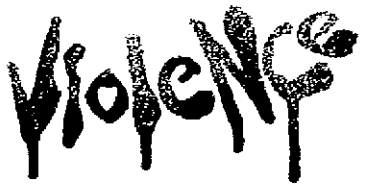

And so it came to pass that those seers who determine motion picture direction were forced to seek new avenues to capture audience attention.

They turned with a vengeance to violence and to horror, creating terror tales ranging from the supernatural to super shoot-'em-ups. Al Ruddy, producer of the brilliant and bloody "The Godfather," sees nothing surprising in the latest trend in film entertainment.

"The industry has always known we have to give a person something he can't get in real life. That's the secret behind box office success.

"Five years ago we were offering spectaculars, and when that phase passed we moved on to sex. Now, with moral codes loosening, there's no need for people to get vicarious sexual thrills out of movies. What else is lacking from life but violence? In what other area does man have to hold back emotions, restrict behavior?

"I think the phenomenal success of 'The Godfather' proves pretty clearly just how hungry the public is for violence."

Ruddy feels that the Federal Communications Commission crackdown of violence on television has set off a counter-point situation which finds Americans rejecting the bland stuff being offered on TV and rushing to theaters to find the action denied them elsewhere.

"Nothing absolutely guarantees motion picture success, of course," he says. "But if I had to pick one element that lends commercial value and becomes a specific element in box office appeal, that element would be violence — whether it's in a modern-day story of realism or a tale of witchcraft or the occult."

He points to many of 1971's successful films as examples of his theory: "Willard," the fluke box office hit of last year; a savage tale or rats against men that has spawned such imitations as its sequel, "Ben,"; also AIP's "The Frogs" and MGM's "Rabbits."

"The French Connection," an untamed action story centered on life on the New York police force, received five Academy Awards.

"The Devils," released by Warner Bros. and starring Oliver Reed and Vanessa Redgrave in a terror tale of life in a 17th century nunnery was so unsparing that reviewers were warned of its content before screenings and invited to leave if they felt they might be offended. It was directed by Ken Russell and featured a scene where hornets, crocodiles and leeches were applied to the bodies of citizens dying of the plague.

"Clockwork Orange," another Warner's release and holder of four Academy Award nominations, included scathing scenes where anti-hero Malcolm McDowell orders his gang to ferociously attack a male victim while he rapes the wife; another bit of action where he kills a woman with a piece of giant statuary shaped in the form of a male organ.

"Straw Dogs," starred Dustin Hoffman as a quiet man brought to the limits of brutality to save his life and his wife's.

Clint Eastwood's "Dirty Harry," one of the most violent of 1971's chain of violent films was produced at a cost of $3 million, it is expected to gross $25 to $30 million.

Paramount's "The Godfather," predicted to become the all-time moneymaker in film history, contains even more graphic brutality than was included in the book version.

"We took an R (restricted) rating on 'Godfather' rather than change two scenes the MPAA wanted toned down," says Ruddy.

Those scenes: The killing of gangster Moe Greene, lying on a massage table when employes of "the family" enter and gun him down; one bullet enters the eye, his glasses shatter and blood spurts from the wire frames and toward the cameras.

The death of James Caan as Sonny, a son of "The Godfather;" waylaid at a highway toll booth, slain in such a vicious barrage of bullets that actress Sue Ane Langdon left the celebrity screening with hands hiding her eyes crying that she had seen more blood on film than she could take.

Peter Bart, assistant to Robert Evans, head of Paramount Studios where "Godfather" was made, disagrees with Ruddy's assertion that it is the promise of violence that has lines stretching around the blocks of every theater featuring that film, which is estimated will gross over $100 million.

"It's a very strong story with which the public can identify," analyzes Bart. "They've read the book, are aware of the problem of organized crime in this country." And such awareness, he feels, is the core of "Godfather's" appeal.

He reminds that there were also successful, non-violent pictures in the year of 1971: "Fiddler on the Roof;" "Boyfriend;" "Nicholas and Alexandra." He asserts, "We don't need violence to save the industry. The industry has already been saved. These past six months have seen a dramatic turnaround, with studios such as Paramount, Warner Bros., United Artists showing profits. The bottom has been hit, and we're on the way back up."

Whether violence is the vital ingredient in Hollywood's continued rise from the pit of financial distress, it is violence we are going to get in upcoming months — in just about every form of unrelenting savagery filmmakers can devise.

Warners is releasing "The Terminal Man," an action tale. Also "The Exorcist," based on William Blatty's novel of modern-day satanism and possession.

That same studio will be giving us "Deliverance," in which Burt Reynolds and Jon Voight deliver themselves from death by committing their share of murder and mayhem.

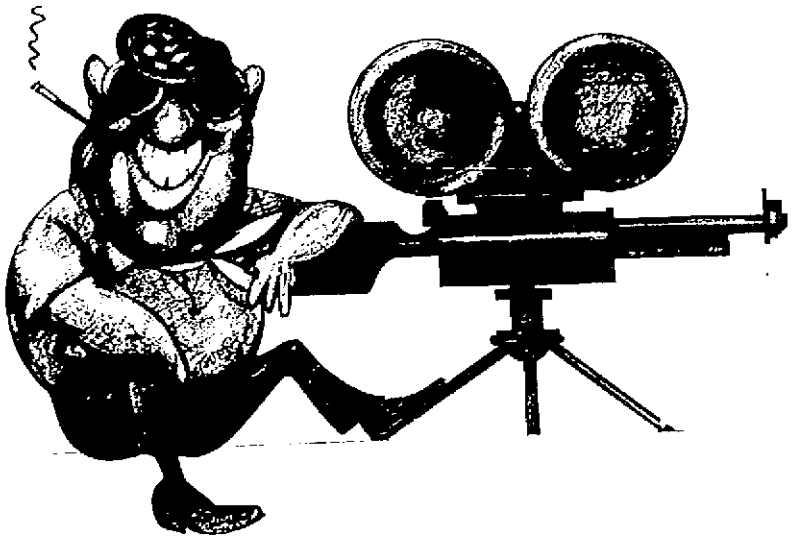

The violent "Jeremiah Johnson" will be hitting the theaters this year. As will Robert Redford's action-packed "The Mountain Man."

Sam Peckinpah, considered the master of cinema savagery, whose credits include the brutal "The Wild Bunch" and "Straw Dogs," is at it again with "Pat Garrett and Billy the Kid." That MGM release will focus on the final three, most-violent months of the notorious bandit's life.

And over at Columbia, policeman-author Joseph Wambaugh is arguing with studio brass to delete some of the brutality from the film adaption of his "The New Centurions" story, pleading that police work isn't as savage as they want to make it seem.

At Paramount, the sequel to "The Godfather" is being planned. And at the same lot Eddie Egan, the New York policeman on whose career "French Connection" was based, is at work helping to devise another action cinema cop caper.

Eve Meyer, former wife and still-current partner of skin flick producer Russ Meyer, has moved out of the sex field and is following the rush to violent fare. But she's not too happy about it.

"Sex might have shocked some," she says, "but it did no real harm. You should see what we're going into now. I could have bought the distribution rights to 'Mark of the Devil,' a 17th century witch-hunting tale. I turned it down because it was so savage it revolted me. It's opened now and the crowds everywhere are unbelievable. It's coining a fortune!"

That fortune is being helped along by the "Mark of the Devil" promotion campaign which is causing a furor among the Motion Picture Association of America and the National Association of Theater Owners. Executives of these groups are incensed over exploitation advertising with a bogus "V" (for violence) rating, and the promise that vomit bags will be provided for those viewers who find the material too strong to stomach.

The horror and occult arms of the terror trend are avenues that television has already tested, with audience approval scoring so high that there will be increased use of stories with such themes in the upcoming season.

But television, under FCC control, cannot even hope to compete with theaters in terms of bloodthirstiness and savagery of product. Which is why motion picture producers are convinced they can only get rich from the public's interest in horror and violence — as long as they give it to them in as bloody and gory terms as possible.

Director Peter Yates doesn't see the horror in such horrors.

"The only people who seem to be shaken by the use of violence and savagery is the industry itself," he claims, "the people who feel they must protect the good name of the movies."

The director of such action-adventure films as "Bullitt" and the Robert Redford starrer, "Hot Rock," he feels, "Violence, like sex, has to be important to the plot or it can ruin a film. But if you're going to feature violence, it's wrong to gloss it over and make it attractive."

There are those gravely concerned about the effect of unbridled cinema violence on audiences, but Ted Ashley, chairman of the board of Warner Bors. Studios, sees much good coming out of films such as "Clockwork Orange," which his firm released.

"Clockwork Orange" he defends as "a serious film about a society that partially exists today in terms of violence, drugs, repressions. If we are not forewarned by films like 'Clockwork,' there is the possibility that our society will deteriorate further and the world of 'Clockwork Orange' will have become a reality instead of a movie."

He asks, "What better warning and awakening could there be for all of those adults who see this movie and care about tomorrow? Would society not have been very well served if before the rise of Hitler a serious and greatly acclaimed film had been released portraying in all its painful detail what life might be like in a dictatorship?

And, though he does concede that 'Clockwork,' with its savage rape scenes, brutality and whippings, is not suitable fare for the squeamish, "it is a highly provocative and cerebral commentary on the complex value of our troubled society."

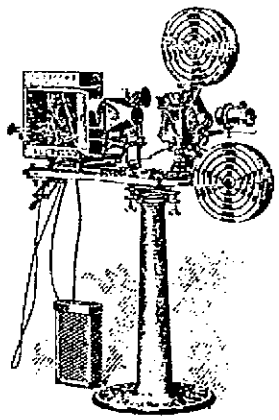

There are those who strongly disagree with Ashley's defense of the film as a "valuable warning and awakening."

There are some, experts in the field of mental illnesses, who believe that in the viewing of such movies we are vicariously living hostilities, finding release for emotions that would be better off bured within.

And there are others who are convinced that the satisfaction we derive from cinema violence is no more than unconscious sexual gratification.

ed to Know About Sex and Were Afraid to Ask"] analyzes cinema fight scenes as they strike the subconscious of audiences and says, "The postures of the players are similar to the positions taken in the sex act. If the sound track was removed, it would frequently be difficult to differentiate between the two."

He views with dread the fact that "Movies are constantly competing with one another to become more brutal and sick, the intensity of cruelty ever stronger. There have always been movies that showed ruthless behavior, but they never came close to approximating what are being made today."

Back in the "Little Caesar" era of the 1930s, when such movie tough guys as James Cagney and Edward G. Robinson roamed the screen, life was simple. Bang, bang, and the bad guy was dead. It was like knocking over tin soldiers, hard to really pretend they were real.

There was also a moral to every story in those uncomplicated days — and that moral was that the villain would be punished in the end.

With the lessening of power of the motion picture board that once ruled over cinema morality with an iron hand, filmmakers have gone further and further afield from the message pictures once preached: that right would invariably triumph and the fellow in the wrong would receive his just reward.

By the 60s, we were caught in the first wave of tell-it-as-the-producer-believed-it-to-be stories which often included acrid, anti-social messages that some critics worried were having a damaging effect on the public.

It wasn't until 1968, with the death of Robert Kennedy, that the conscience of Hollywood seemed to come to the surface, with many suddenly concerned that the industry had helped to breed the violent social climate that had led to the assassination of a president and his brother within the span of only a few years.

Such filmmakers as William Wyler, George Seaton, Delbert Mann and Jerry Paris led a crusade for reform, and the Screen Writers and Screen Actors guilds jumped onto the stop-violence bandwagon, too.

And for a while the guns were silent on the screen, blood flowed no more.

Had Hollywood actually responded to the pleas of those who sought an end to film brutality, or had filmmakers just grown so preoccupied with cinema sex that they had no mind for anything else?

Dr. Reuben considers it ironic that while there are legal limits to the extent of erotica we may witness, "There are no laws that say you shouldn't exhibit or view one human being mistreating another. Society doesn't frown on our seeing violent movies as it frowned on our watching X-rated sex films."

He considers that situation sad, because

Need fire? Just bring a match. There's a plentiful free gas supply around the innocent appearing remnant of an oilwell casing at one of the waterfront playgrounds along Newport's Rivo Alto. Youngsters vouched the flavor of their weenies to be superb.

I.N. Vorie boasts eternal flame in front of his home at 207 43rd St. Pipe was simply placed in ground to tap underground supply.

(Lower)
Along Coast Highway, methane gas from underground collectors is blown to top of 25 foot high pipe where it is ignited by pilot flame, which burns invisibly in daytime.

AT NEWPORT BEACH

HELLFIRE AND BRIMSTONE

Unique among cities with problems is Newport Beach with its flaming sidewalks, burning waters, perpetual tiki torches, natural hibachis and a sea breeze that smells like rotten eggs.

And the earth less than 2,000 feet below the city is on fire!

If the seaside community 23 miles southeast of Long Beach could devise methods of exploiting the annoying problems plaguing the city, it could well boast of having a phenomenon rivaling the upwelling geysers of Sonoma County or the tumbling Bridal Veil Falls in Yosemite.

The city's troubles stem from four seeps that allow smelly gas and highly explosive methane to leak to the surface from oil fields beneath the city.

The gas company once refused to hook up a water heater in a new two-story duplex built over an abandoned well. The company was fearful the pilot light might ignite the upwelling gas trapped beneath the structure's floor.

The interior walls above electric wall sockets in many apartments are stained black by gas seeping up through the floor and out through the junction boxes.

The owner of the duplex at 206 43rd Street attempted to have the abandoned well capped with cement. Before the cement hardened the gas pressure blew out the cement splattering adjacent stucco walls.

A tile standpipe was sunk in the ground beneath the two-family building to bleed off the offending gases. The pipe extends well above the roof line. The gases escaping to the atmosphere produce a flame six feet high when set ablaze.

Across the street at 207 43rd Street, the owner of a small house, I. N. Vorie, 11 years ago fashioned a seven-foot-high tiki torch from a length of water pipe. The torch was lighted and has been burning night and day ever since.

In front of the house next door there is a crack in the shallow concrete curb. Gas escaping through the crevice can be set ablaze and will burn until blown out by the evening breeze.

A block away where 43rd Street dead-ends against a boat canal paralleling River Road, the city sunk a foot-thick concrete wall 16 feet into the ground. The buried barrier was an attempt to stop oil bubbling up through channel waters.

The effort was nearly 100 per cent effective – but not fully. Tiny oil blobs still bubble up and upon reaching the surface, burst into a perfectly round circle of shimmering play of rainbow hues.

Jack Alward, who lives next to the seep at 4208 River Ave., says the upwelling oil was much greater before the city spent about $6,000 to build the concrete oil dam at the water's edge.

Approximately 100 yards to the north, adjacent to a luxury waterfront condominium now under construction, a steady stream of small gas bubbles constantly wiggles upward through the shallow water.

Alward stuck a match. The bursting gas bubbles blazed.

In a children's playground a short distance nearby is a 12-inch casing stub of an abandoned oil well. Summer nights teenagers gather around the pipe, ignite the escaping gases to enjoy the flickering light of a woodless campfire.

The city's problem seeps are not peculiar to the waterfront. About a mile northeast at Broad Street and Holmwood Drive is a well-developed section of attractive homes, except for one vacant lot.

On the lot is a 12-inch diameter pipe protruding about three feet above ground. Inside at ground level, burning gases have heated small rocks creating a glowing bed of "coals" excellent for barbecuing 'burgers' dogs, or a T-bone.

The major problem seep area is a 1,250-foot-long, 500-foot-wide strip underlying the busy West Coast Highway.

In the center of the seep area is a Union Oil Company service station at 3939 West Coast Highway. Methane, a highly explosive gas, leaks upward through cracks in the asphalt apron, out of a water meter box, and through cracks in the sidewalk and curb. (Methane comprises about 90 per cent of the gases used for heating and cooking in Southern California.)

The area stinks of rotting eggs. The odor is that of hydrogen sulfide.

Ernest Badewitz, owner of the station, says:

"You should be here when it rains. The highway, the sidewalks and driveway bubble like an Alka Seltzer in a glass of water."

The Newport Beach Fire Department thought the seeping gas created a potentially explosive atmosphere and ordered the station closed.

The "egg" gas, when combined with water, creates highly corrosive sulfuric acid. The acid has left blue-black splotches on the sidewalk and in some areas actually "eaten" the cement.

The highly flammable methane gas seeping up through the porous concrete can be set ablaze causing wispy small flames to enter into an eerie ballet back and forth over the stained walkway.

In an attempt to eliminate the noxious gases, the city installed a buried network of perforated collector pipes and linked them to a 25-foot-high flare pipe. The gas is sucked from the ground with the aid of a blower and pushed up the pipe and set afire.

To make certain the waste gas would stay afire, city engineers designed and installed a pilot light atop the flare stack. The local gas company was called upon to run a small natural gas pipe up the outside of the stack.

A meter was installed and the city is billed for the gas used to feed the pilot light.

The operator of the nearby '76 gas station claims the pilot light "is a joke."

When people in the neighborhood looked up and saw the flare was out, they complained they could smell rotten eggs. So the city installed the pilot light to make them think the waste gases are being burned," Badewitz claims.

Joseph Devlin, director of public works for the city, admits the collection-blower system has created some problems. Shortly after the underground pipes were installed, it rained. Water flowed into the collection system and burned out the blower motor.

What's the cause of the city's curse?

Experts list several causes:

– The presence of noxious gases in the fields beneath the city.

– A complex geological fault system with surface outcroppings.

– Haphazard well completions and faulty abandonment procedures practiced by oil-producing companies in a pre-environmental conscious era.

– Twice daily high tides.

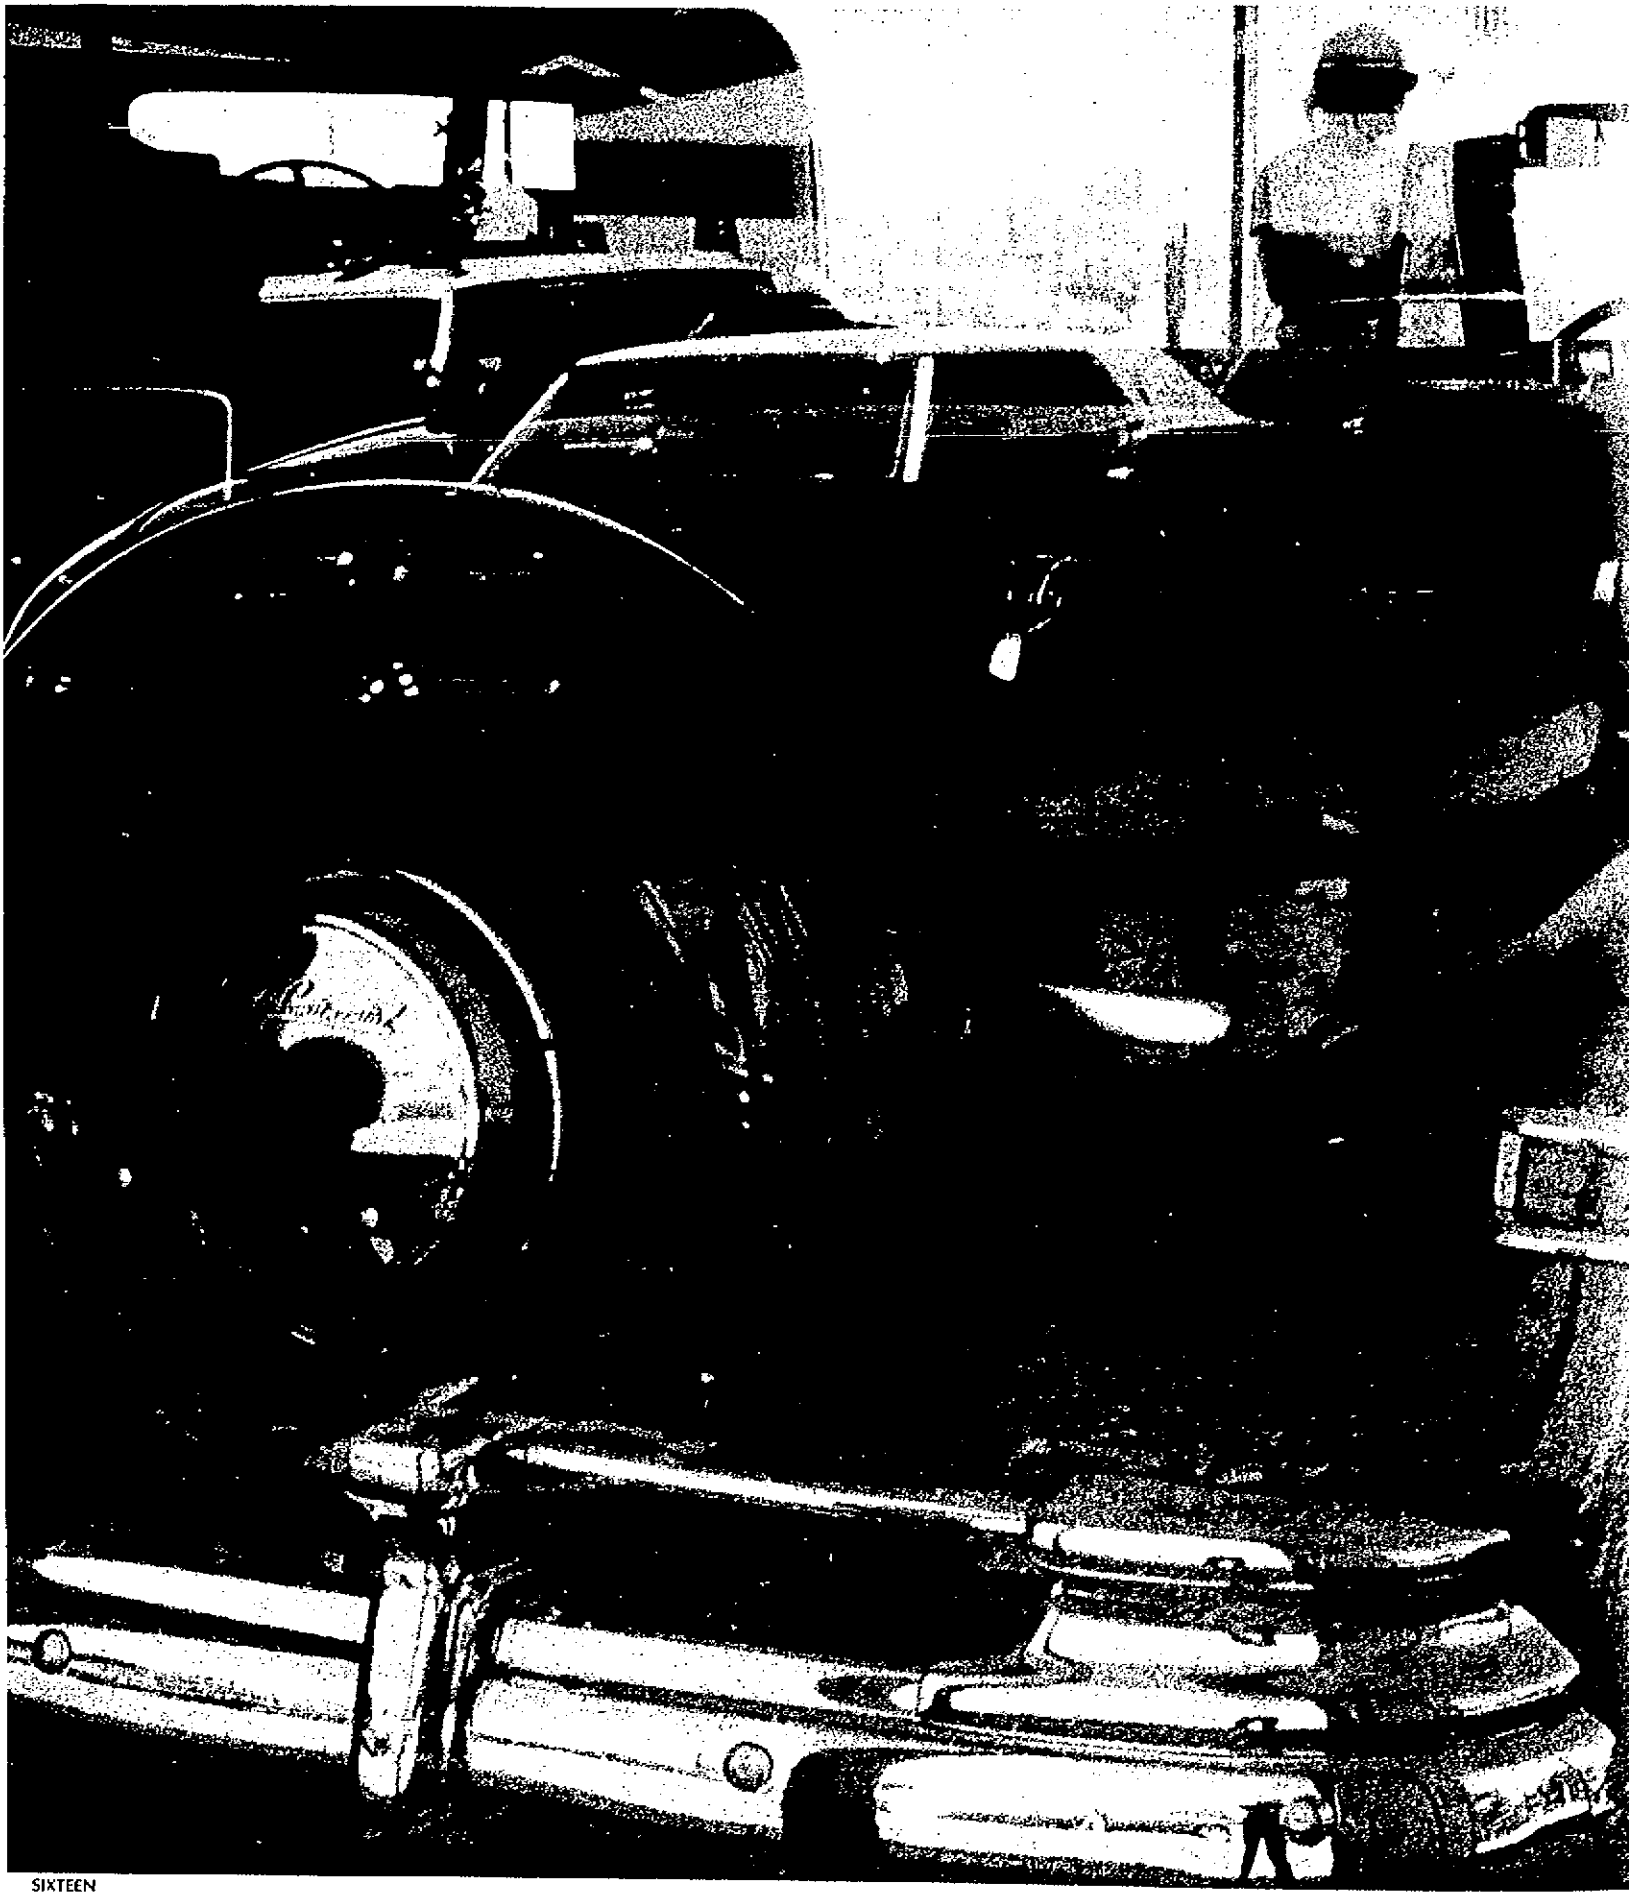

– Runoffs following heavy rains.

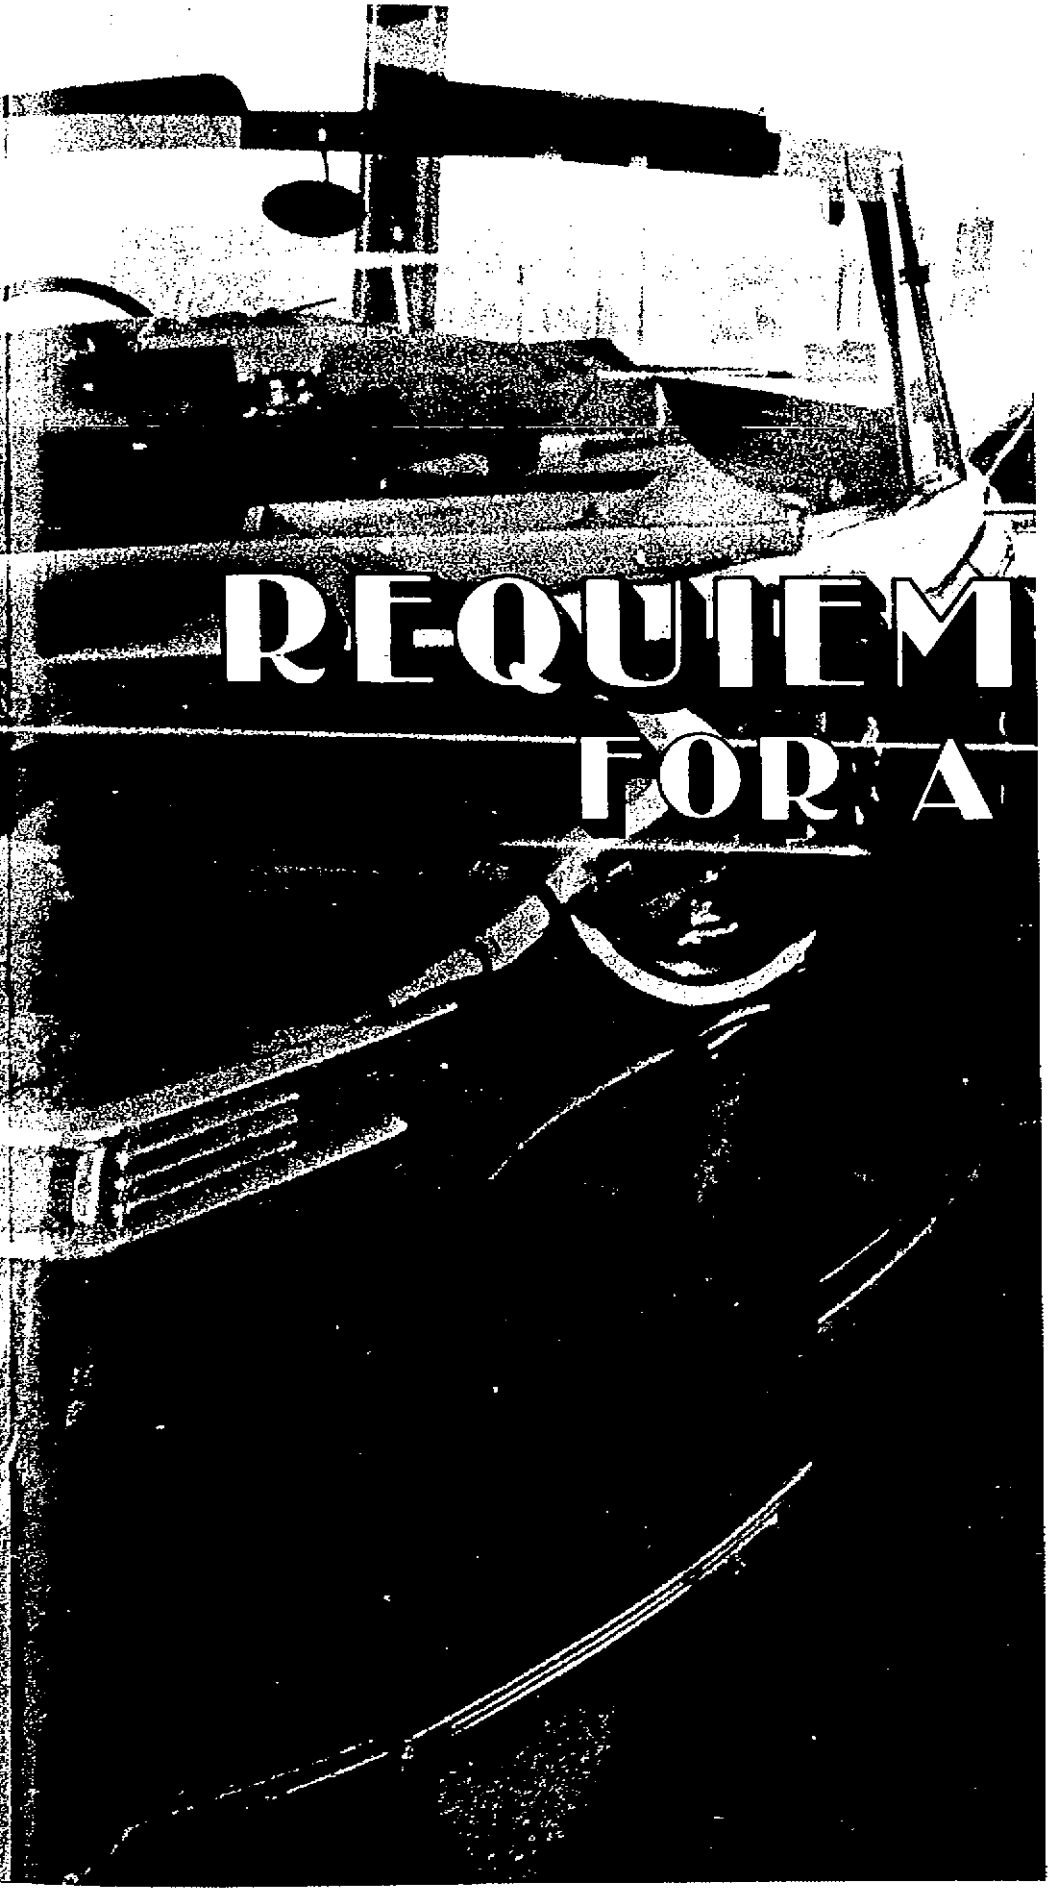

– Secondary oil recovery efforts.

REQUIEM FOR A RAGTOP

By Ed Janicki

At one time it was considered THE "mod" thing, really "cool," to some people. To others it meant sophistication and being right in fashion. And to others it meant just plain adventure.

IT was the automobile convertible.

If you were a teen-ager and were one of the few lucky ones in the gang to be driving a sporty convertible car, you had it made. No girl in her right mind would decline your invitation to go for a breezy spin. If she was worried about messing up her new hairdo, she simply donned a babushka. And away you went — as your comrades watched in envy.

If you were a family man and owned a convertible, you deliberately took your clan for a Sunday drive, with the roof folded down, just to show it off. And your passengers chuckled at those "closed in" cars as you whizzed past them, your hair disheveled from the wind.

There was always something "mannish" about owning a convertible. Many men aspired to eventually own one before they got too old to enjoy life. A convertible gave one a feeling of freedom, carefree, playboyish adventure.

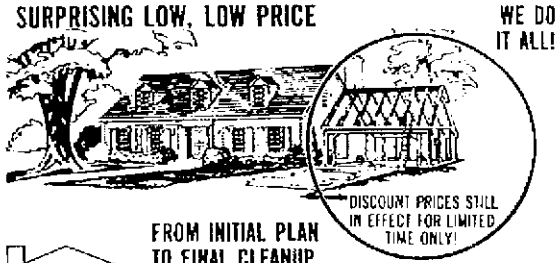

There were beautiful convertibles — the

LaSalles, the Cadillac V-16s, the Packards, the Duesenbergs. Kings, presidents, war heroes and movie stars have been pictured in convertibles.

Unfortunately, that part of Americana is gradually disappearing from the scene — just as the rumble-seat car of yesteryear. The convertible, also affectionately called the "ragtop" or "softtop" by its doting owners, is becoming the victim of modern-day changes and public taste.

In certain parts of the country the convertible is still a symbol of individuality and adventure — the epitome of driving fun. But as a whole, it has become expendable. Ironically, it is no longer popular in such warm climes as California, Texas and Florida — where it once was — but rather in the moderate weather areas such as the Great Lakes and Northeast. But it's waning in those areas too.

When Pontiac introduced its Firebird and Chevrolet brought out its Camaro early in 1970, there were no convertibles in the lineup. Prior to that, other car companies were slowly giving the ragtop the ax. When the 1970 models came out late in 1969, at least one convertible model was ditched in the standard Dodge, standard Ford, standard Plymouth, Dart, Belvedere, Torino, Montego and Tempest. In 1970 there were 37 "softtop" models in the auto industry's stable, 10 fewer than the previous year, and 20 fewer than in 1966, record year for convertibles. Last year that total dropped to 23, and this year there are only 17 convertibles offered. Chrysler Corp. and American Motors Corp. aren't building any at all; General Motors offers 13 and Ford Motor Co. just 4.

What are the reasons for the decline of the convertible, which was once one of America's most popular fun-pleasure cars? There are several. For one, the safety consciousness that has swept the nation is partly the cause — no one likes the thought of turning over in a softtop car. Two decades ago, it was commonly believed that you were somewhat safer when you were "thrown clear" of an accident instead of being "trapped" inside. Today, ejection from a car during a crash continues as a major source of injury and death. New studies by Cornell University, for example, show that you are 30 times as likely to be killed if you are thrown out of a car than if you remain inside.

Introduction of vinyl tops, which give hardtops the look of a convertible are another reason for the decline of the softtop. Popularity of air conditioning is another. Most drivers today would rather have a sporty hardtop with a cool interior than an open car with sun rays pounding on their head. And many hardtops with air conditioning sell for the same price as a softtop without air conditioning.

Today's speeds are another factor. Even though a person may enjoy riding with the top down, he can't stand it at expressway speeds, and a lot of people are doing most of their driving on these highways now.

In the beginning of the auto industry all cars were, in a way, convertibles. At that time, the term "convertible" meant a touring car or roadster. But the true convertible as we know it today probably bowed in 1905, when Peerless Motor Car Corp. introduced its Cape Folding Top. Briscoe and Owen offered convertible roadsters in 1915, on which the top, when down, was completely concealed at the rear of the body. The "California top" came along in the 1920s to decorate the touring car. This was a removable steel roof with glazed windows, which could be stored in a stable or garage in the summer, but would replace the folding fabric top in autumn.

Of course, all of those early convertible tops were rather cumbersome. Later some companies tried to simplify things by hinging the softtop to the body — you just pushed the top to the rear and it folded into a little well behind the seat. It wasn't the best setup. You had to climb out of the car to bring the top back up, and you had to have a pair of strong arms to do it. Actually, two people were required to yank the top back into position. If the rain came down fast, you were all soaked before you could get the top up.

It wasn't until 1939 when Plymouth made convertible life a little easier. The company was the first to come out with a vacuum operated convertible. The top "raised and lowered by means of a convenient control on the instrument panel." And gone was the struggle to change from closed to open car and vice versa.

In 1957, when the convertible market was climbing, Ford decided to try something really different — it came out with the world's first automatic steel-top convertible. Called the "Skyliner," its roof disappeared into the trunk 40 seconds after the driver pushed a button on the instrument panel. It was, thus, both a hardtop and a convertible. Automotive engineers and designers had tried for 40 years to develop an all-weather car that would give the customer open-air pleasure of a convertible in clear weather, and the security and protection of a steel-top sedan in inclement weather. The Skyliner was to be the achievement of this goal. Ford spent $20 million to engineer and tool it and another $2 million to promote the car the first year.

The Skyliner fell by the wayside three years later. Like the Edsel, the Skyliner went on the market at the wrong time, when people were thinking of economical compact cars, and the Skyliner was just too much a luxury with its $3000-plus price tag (or about $337 above the standard convertible). Too, the mechanism which controlled the hideaway steel top was so complicated that it gave mechanics nightmares.

As the soft-top convertible market continued to fade into oblivion in recent years, auto makers have tried different approaches with the roof to keep giving the driver that "open feeling." These have included plexiglas tops, sliding tops — or "sun roofs" — and special removable steel tops.

Will the softtop ever make a comeback on the American scene? Auto men don't think so. Says one: "We didn't drop the convertible. Our customers did, and it's doubtful the demand will ever return." □

Stand Up and Be Cowed

I find that although I can leap mountains in single bounds, I am easily cowed in certain situations. Psychologists know little about the precise dynamics of cowing. But it is generally recognized that laughable amounts of paranoia, guilt and everyday fear are involved — and that nothing of great consequence is ever at stake when cowing strikes. The following quiz will help you determine your "Cow Quotient."

1. Your work has been exemplary and you feel you've earned a raise. Peering into your boss' office, you find him wasting time as usual, making silly designs out of used toothpicks. Would you: (a) Apologize for taking up his valuable time? (b) Knock the toothpicks off his desk and insist on a raise? (c) Sit there and pick your teeth?

2. For months your children ask to be sent to summer camp. You finally manage to float a loan large enough to send them, but they return homesick after a week. Would you: (a) Wring your hands and ask yourself where you went wrong? (b) Make your children work every day for the rest of the summer in spite of child labor laws? (c) Make your children stay home while you go to a rest camp?

3. A friend who has been planning to visit you cancels the trip because of a severe case of pneumonia. You're suspicious, but a telephone call to the friend's oxygen tent room confirms the illness. Would you: (a) Feel you're the kind of person who makes other people sick? (b) Offer to join him in the tent for a game of gin rummy? (c) Step up your own daily dosage of vitamin C?

4. While reaching for a box of fortune cookies, you're struck on the back of your shin by a supermarket pushcart. The injury all but requires skin grafting. Would you: (a) Wonder if you had been walking too slowly? (b) Break the offender's dozen eggs? (c) Walk briskly until you faint?

5. You're shopping and you see a sign announcing that the store is protected against theft. Would you: (a) Become paranoid and figure you're being watched. (b) Attempt to search out and destroy hidden mirrors and television cameras? (c) Ignore your fears long enough to tuck a portable TV into your false stomach?

6. In a cynical mood, you look up and shout, "If you're up there, let's see a lightning bolt." After sobriety returns, would you: (a) Change to rubber shoes and call the weather bureau? (b) Repeat the challenge, this time holding up a kite and key? (c) Speculate about recent brownouts?

7. After four helpings of your mother-in-law's homebaked strudel, neither your stomach nor your throat has any spare room. Still, you're begged to have just one more piece. Would you: (a) Say no, then try to jam it down anyway? (b) Make your wife eat it, even though she's already ill? (c) Make your mother-in-law eat it, even though her eyes became glassy several minutes ago?

8. In filling out an application form to renew your driver's license, you spot a question asking whether you've been arrested for committing a felony? The fact is you've never been arrested for anything. Nevertheless, would you: (a) Spend several minutes searching your memory? (b) Ask the clerk what business it is of his? (c) Demand to see a lawyer before you answer anything?

9. You've arrived at your destination in a taxi and left the driver a 20% tip. The driver returns the tip with the suggestion that you need it more than he does. Would you: (a) Leave a bigger tip? (b) Make the driver eat the tip? (c) Take a bus next time?

10. You're seldom sick, and the few times you are, you usually don't bother to call your doctor. Today, however, you have a fever of 105 and a general feeling of impending death. If you call the doctor, would you: (a) Imply you're being a hypochondriac and apologize for calling? (b) Tell the doctor to hustle over to your place or face a malpractice suit? (c) Call your mother first for advice?

11. You and your spouse have been standing on a movie line for an hour. You leave for a minute to bring back a snack for both of you. Upon returning, would you: (a) Feel that everyone else thinks you've crashed the line? (b) Threaten to punch the first person to make a comment? (c) Try to crash the line nearer to the box office?

12. You're shopping in a crowded butcher store. When your turn comes, throngs of people are still waiting on line. Would you: (a) Stammer and increase the size of several orders to placate the butcher? (b) Demand an explanation of the derivation of the word bologna? (c) Cook your gerbel when you get home?

13. You try to keep the elevator doors open long enough to let someone else come aboard, but fail and nearly lose an arm in the process. Would you: (a) Feel that the person who missed the elevator will think you weren't trying? (b) Vow bitterly to catch the person in the doors next time? (c) Push the emergency stop button to express your displeasure?

14. You're on line at a department store to return an athletic supporter. Would you: (a) Feel you have to explain why you're returning the merchandise? (b) Snap the supporter at the refund clerk? (c) Give the supporter to someone else as a gift?

15. You are temporarily blinded by a speck in your eye. At this same moment, you are wrongly accused of staring in a flirtatious manner at a member of the opposite sex. Would you: (a) Feel obliged to tell the whole story about the speck? (b) Put the speck in the accuser's eye? (c) Stare flirtatiously out of the corner of your eyepatch?

16. The breath of the person standing in front of your reminds you of marinated burnt rubber. In this situation, would you: (a) Worry about your own breath? (b) Give the person a spray from your pocket-sized tube of breath freshener? (c) Become very sick?

17. You're a stereo equipment expert who has just lavishly praised a friend's equipment. The problem is that what you praised is the equipment your friend hates and plans to get rid of. Learning this, would you: (a) Put down your knowledge about stereo equipment? (B) Put down your friend? (c) Predict that the new equipment will make your friend tone deaf?

18. You pay someone a compliment which is rejected as insincere. Would you: (a) Apologize for the compliment and figure nobody likes you? (b) Suggest group encounter therapy? (c) Cry a lot?

19. A bald male friend of yours appears in a floppy stretch wig. You offer critical but well-meant advice. Your friend becomes angry. Would you: (a) Try to make him feel better by saying you've been wearing ill-fitting false teeth for years? (b) Ask him why he decided against a professionally styled wig? (c) Tell him about a female impersonator who wears a wig just like his?

20. You want to change a $100 bill at a bank. Would you: (a) Develop paranoia about the bill being counterfeit? (b) Develop paranoia about the change you get being counterfeit? (c) Buy a pack of gum and get change that way?

Now figure your Cow Quotient. Deduct one point from your score for every (a) answer circled. Give yourself one point for every (b) answer circled. (c) answers are pure gibberish. If you picked more than five, you weren't concentrating.

If your overall score is negative, you've got what I've got. Which is a severe tendency to be cowed in ridiculous situations. An overall positive score indicates you're either superbly adjusted, psychotically hostile or a fantastic liar. Even if you get a perfect score, minus 20, don't be discouraged. Things can't get worse. And think how good you make everyone else feel. □

MARK RYDELL

AN INTERVIEW BY REX REED

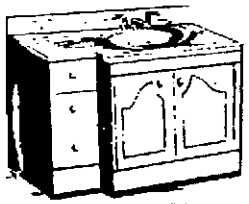

"I always thought John Wayne was a monster. Then I met him and I found a friend."

The young man with the deep saddle-burn tan in the Beverly Hills tweeds just directed the Duke in "The Cowboys," a movie that is cleaning up across the country, and he ought to know. Mark Rydell had stopped off at the Sherry-Netherlands bar in New York for some scrambled eggs on his way to Europe.

He just about had time for one interview and his time is valuable. In the disorderly chaos of the movie industry, at a time when none of the old rules work, while most of the famous old names can't even get their agents on the phone, Mark Rydell is sitting on top of the sundae. Like Peter Bogdanovich, he has become one of the hottest directors in the business after only three films. In the movies, money is the voice of the turtle, and all three of Rydell's films have been so successful that movie moguls hear cash registers when his name is mentioned. His first film, "The Fox," cost $1.5 million and grossed $18 million; his second, the movie version of William Faulkner's Pulitzer-winning "The Reivers" with Steve McQueen, cost $5 million and grossed $18 million; now his third, "The Cowboys," made for another $5 million is expected to gross $20 million in America alone. The boy has a good reason for eating his eggs with a smile.

"The Cowboys" did not do well in New York. Maybe New Yorkers are too sophisticated for John Wayne movies. Maybe people don't like the idea of seeing John Wayne die on film. Maybe New Yorkers just don't like John Wayne. Rydell has other ideas. "I think it got off to a bad start, replacing the big Christmas show at Radio City Music Hall. Then some of the critics harmed it by suggesting that it was a Fascist movie. Their sensitivity was injured seeing the kids in the movie resort to violence to avenge John Wayne's death. But I ask you — how else could it have ended? This was the Old West. You couldn't pick up the phone and call the cops. You had to stand up for right vs. wrong in your own way. As a Jew, it has always troubled me that the Jews didn't fight back in Nazi Germany. If an old lady is mugged in the street should she let herself be killed, or use her hatpin? If John Wayne's crew had been adults, there wouldn't be any criticism. But calling 'The Cowboys' a Fascist movie is just plain stupid. It is the complete opposite. It is a totally anti-Fascist movie. This country is in a state of hysteria. People don't know what they believe in anymore. As much as I hate violence, I cheered like a football fan at the Six Day war in Israel. They refused to be like the Jews who walked right into Hitler's ovens without a fight. And the kids in 'The Cowboys' realized there comes a time when you have to stand up and say 'NO...' and refuse to accept injustice. I think it is a very moral film."

Rydell's remarks do not sound like the prelude to an armistice on a John Wayne set, but he insists Spiro Agnew's favorite movie star was a pussycat. "He stunned me. He never changed one word of the picture in order to project his own political philosophy as a right-wing conservative. He's a literate, genuine, compassionate human being who spent hours discussing Shelley and Keats with Roscoe Lee Browne, a black actor well-known for his liberal, left-wing philosophy. I expected all kinds of clashes on the set, but Duke had everybody eating out of his hand. When we had our first meeting, I came equipped with all the prejudices of a liberal Jew. The first thing I told him was, 'I'm a Jewish boy from the Bronx and the closest I've ever been to a horse is a theater cop.' I met him on his yacht and all I knew about boats was rowboats in Central Park. He just threw back his head and guffawed.

"As we got into the actual work, I found him articulate and sensitive and totally unselfish. The kids crawled all over him like a monkey bar in the Central Park zoo. The great dictator turned out to be a lamb. He also has a sharp, Shavian wit with an uncanny ability to make pungent observations. A week after we started shooting, his famous Playboy interview came out and I told him: 'We must never discuss anything because we're not even in the same world.' But I found myself listening to him and learning. Roscoe Lee Browne disagreed with him on everything, but they can't get off the phone with each other. The key to his success, I think, is that he is so secure as a man you don't have to worry about stepping on his toes. His toes are invulnerable. At first, I was terrified. To begin with, he's so goddam BIG. He did all of his own riding and fighting in the film, refused to use a stand-in. He's 65 years old, has only one lung, and he'll outlive us all. You'll have to beat him to death with a stick."

Mark Rydell, oddly enough, began his career as a jazz musician. He used to sneak out of his window at the age of 12, hop on the subway and listen to Art Tatum on 52nd Street, then sneak back into the subway, go home to the Bronx at 4 a.m., and go to school the next morning. He studied jazz piano at Julliard, had his own radio show in the Far East during his stint with Uncle Sam's army, played Chicago cocktail lounges after he was discharged in 1948, and became a night club star. "I got out of music after five years because everybody I knew was a drug addict. I gave it up before the drug scene became a national reality. I tore up my union card and went into acting.

He won a scholarship to the Neighborhood Playhouse, got into the Actors Studio, landed a continuing role in the soap opera "As The World Turns," and co-starred with John Cassavetes in the movie "Crime in the Streets." In 1963, his old friend from the Actors Studio, director Sydney Pollack, invited him to Hollywood where he learned television production and direction on the "Ben Casey" series. The producer of the show watched his enthusiasm for six months, then one day handed him a script to direct. The show starred Piper Laurie and Richard Basehart, and Mark Rydell, former jazz pianist and budding actor, found his true love. After directing more than 40 hour-long TV dramas, and the overwhelming success of his first film, "The Fox" with Sandy Dennis, he got offers to direct any film of his choosing. Today he calls his own shots and has no interest in going back to music or acting. "Directing," he says, "encompasses all forms of art — music, painting, psychology, rhythm, literature, acting. A movie is like a wife or mistress. You don't want to commit yourself and find out two years later you're horrified at what you've committed yourself to. So it takes me two or three years to do a film. I have nothing in mind for my next project."

One thing is certain. Mark Rydell will never cross back to the other side of the footlights. "Acting at best is an infantile profession. I adore actors and spend most of my time with them" — he'd better say that; he's married to actress Joanne Linville, one of the best — "but it's hard to go back to something so identified with surrender. All actors look for parental approval and since I'm a parent myself I can't get those feelings back. Besides, it's a thrill to control a set and be the parent instead of the kid. I mean, there I was on 'The Cowboys,' directing a western and scared to death of the horses, and John Wayne was calling me sir. I still can't believe it. He called me 'Sir.' "

To some people, that's a good enough reason for going to work in the morning. □

HELLFIRE

George P. Zebal, a geologist and principal scientist, Applied Research Laboratories, Aeronutronic Division of Philco-Ford Corp., noted:

"Drilling, producing and abandonment procedures were extremely haphazard due to the state of technology existing at the time, a general lack of adequate financing and a lack of enforced conservation and protection regulations."

A contributing factor to the city's rather unusual nuisance problem is a method being used to boost production in the 69-year-old oil field underlying portions of the beach city.

Oilmen have set the earth below the surface afire.

The technique is known by the somewhat contradictory term "fireflooding."

In 1958 C. E. Kadane & Sons drilled several "air wells" on a tract less than one-half mile from the three seep areas in West Newport Beach. Air was pumped down between 1175 and 1950 feet and into the oil bearing sands. The oil and air mixture was then ignited.

The resulting fire had several effects including increasing the downhole pressure and heating the oil which allowed it to flow to wells more readily.

But the fireflooding had a detrimental effect. It pushed up more smelly gas.

Zebal, in a comprehensive report compiled in 1968 for the city, observed:

"... it is not beyond the realm of probability the fireflood project in Block Nine may be unintentionally abetting the noxious gas problem in West Newport Beach by adding an increasing volume of gaseous combustion products to historically active sour gas seeps resulting from fault-created migration channels and haphazard abandonment procedures of wells drilled, produced, and abandoned in the pre-depression era."

Zebal notes, however, the sour gas and asphaltic oil seeps have existed in the area long before American habitation.

The consultant offered some suggestions for eliminating or controlling the noxious gases. But today, the city operating on limited funds, has attempted only to control, but not completely, the West Coast Highway seepage.

The report notes that Seep No. 1 at Broad Street and Holmwood Drive "... in its present state is a potentially dangerous nuisance for small children." The uncapped abandoned eight-inch diameter pipe extends less than three feet above ground. A fire burns inside. The mischief into which a small child might get while exploring the possibilities of such an attractive nuisance would make a loving parent shudder.

Zebal has offered some suggestions for eliminating the hazards and nuisances created by the man-aggravated natural seeps. But he cautions that plugging the seeps may only cause the upwelling gas to seek new channels to the surface, creating new problems for the already problem-plagued city. □

The struggle for power.

We could run short of electricity. Conservation is vital.

Remember that record-breaking heat wave last year?

You weren't the only one sweating it out.

So were we. The demand for electricity hit an all-time peak on September 13, 1971. It was 13% higher than the 1970 peak.

We met all demands, but our system was severely strained.

But what about the years ahead? Each year the demand for electricity keeps right on growing. New homes keep going up. And schools. Office buildings. Factories.

All will require additional electricity. So will the new equipment needed to clean up the environment.

Unless Edison is permitted to build additional power plants and transmission lines, it may become necessary to blackout blocks of customers on a rotational basis within two or three years.

Yet permits necessary to build any new major plants have been delayed or blocked for the past four years.

While a power shortage did not become a reality in 1971, the threat of one did. Edison is working with industrial and business firms to conserve electricity in offices and factories.

That's an immediate problem. We're working hard to resolve it.

The long-range problem requires finding more ways to conserve energy and to use our nation's total energy resources wisely. That involves all of us.

In Edison's fossil-fueled plants, for example, we're now able to produce 30% more electricity from a unit of fuel than in 1948. That helps.

And by using higher-voltage transmission lines, we're also able to deliver electricity more efficiently.

Perhaps you can conserve energy, too. Have you considered ways to make every kilowatt count at home? We'll be happy to send you a list of practical suggestions.

Write: Conservation, Edison, P.O. Box 800, Rosemead, California 91770.

he believes savagery in film is far more dangerous than the sex cycle which preceded it.

"The sex exploitation films probably had a tendency to reduce sexual crimes by offering a harmless release to those with such problems. But glamorizing violence definitely tends to create violent behavior in some, particularly children. Perhaps we should solve the problem as France has, where they have restricted children from viewing savage movies, but not from seeing films of human sexuality. It does seem more rational a solution."

France, to be sure, is not the only country to look with increased disfavor on the subject of film brutality.

In Germany, American crime shows and westerns depicting sadism, sex and violence are being blamed for the increase in crime, including bank holdups, kidnaping and taking of hostages.

The present German law against printing material that would endanger youth is due to be replaced by a new proposed law for "The protection of youth against dangers from the media," which will encompass TV and films.

Reuben does not feel that foreign countries are over-reacting in their stand against film brutality.

"We have been conditioned all our lives that violence is not nice, that one should not act out hostilities. But now suddenly movies come along that tell us such things are all right. We are shown it's fun and can be properly done. Our movie heroes are doing it.

"If one is not well-controlled, it is possible to leave a theater with such messages implanted. A month, perhaps two, go by and then comes the night when we've had too much to drink, perhaps, a fight with our wife, and that movie may influence our behavior."

In a final blast at today's brutally realistic film fare, Reuben charges, "Five years ago the sort of fantasies currently being portrayed on the screen only existed in the minds of those committed to mental institutions. To my way of thinking, these stories are a form of mental illness and must be considered nothing else. The harm they can do cannot be ignored or discounted."

Dr. Mitchell S. Rosenthall, a staff member of the Neuro-Psychiatric Clinic at UCLA Medical Center and the Director of the New York Phoenix House for narcotic rehabilitation, does not share Reuben's alarm.

"Violence," he reminds, "is an inherent part of every man."

The witnessing of cinema violence, he believes, can serve as a healthy and harmless release.

"Modern man becomes angrier and angrier at society, at the fact he is not allowed to strike out against injustice to himself and to his family. He needs to see, to be assured that some hero is breaking out. It makes him better able to cope with his own restricted life."

Dr. Rosenthal asserts that the witnessing of violence on screen also puts us in more realistic touch with ourselves.

"If we're reminded that we have the capacity for rage, we have more of a chance for behavioral options. It is the ones who deny that capacity who are more likely to burst out when the threshhold is reached than someone who is turned in on his own aggressions."

Rosenthal doesn't favor films that license senseless brutality, and concedes that such fare can prove to be a destructive force.

"Yet, when an action film handles the subject of aggressiveness correctly, it can be an enlightening tool. We have, in fact, used violent movies as therapy for violent people, finding they gain more ego control and that the films serve as a socializing factor."

Pictures employing an excess of brutality can be harmful in one area, Dr. Rosenthal agrees, "providing sexual release – and not a necessarily healthy one – for those psychologically immature.

"There is the replacement in some who substitute aggressive behavior as a release for sexual tensions. You see this in its most pronounced form among very twisted people in which a short circuit occurs as they approach the sexual act, and they end up killing and mutilating instead."

Many filmmakers who are currently charging into the violent swing of things aren't taking into consideration the unconscious needs of people who favor their cinema creations. They know only that they're giving the public what it wants – and they don't particularly care about the "why" of that want.

But, speaking as one of the most successful film producers in the industry, who has never had to dip into excesses of sex or violence to gain an audience, Ross Hunter feels such analyses are unnecessary.

"This phase, too, will pass," the producer of "Airport" is convinced. "The public will become sated with violence as it has with sex.

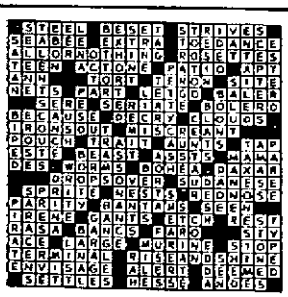

"Public taste will dictate the future course of films, just as it has in the past. And, with faith in the taste of American audiences, I must believe that the violence-for-violence's-sake phase of movie production will die just as quickly as did the dirty picture cycle.

"The public is going to demand a return to enrichment in entertainment -- and that's what we're going to have to provide if we want to remain in business."

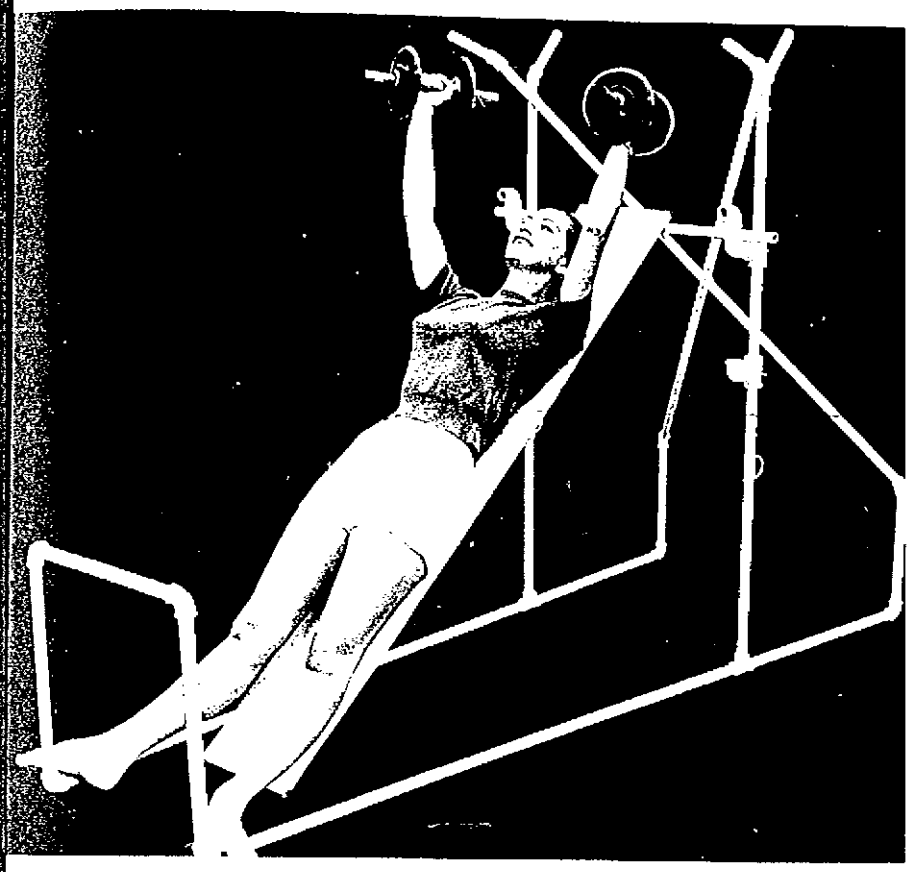

While others dig deeper into the brutality bag, Hunter is currently trying to fulfill that enrichment demand with the production of the musical version of the classic "Lost Horizons."

He expects it to receive a General Audience rating, a rare tag in 1972 filmmaking. □

WORKSHOP

SPRING TRAINING TIME!

By Steve Ellingson

It appears that easy living and too little exercise have created "the soft society." Flabby muscles, bulging waistlines and poor skin tone are common among all age groups today . . . even teenagers. Here's how we propose to do something about it.

Today's project is a family gym, shown here with Lois Lawson. This device enables the entire family to start a bodybuilding program right at home without membership dues in gymnasiums or health clubs. It's inexpensive and can be set up in your backyard, basement or recreation room. Very little space is required.

The framework for this device is made entirely of water pipe and fittings. All are listed in the pattern and can be purchased at your local plumbing shop . . . assembled in less than an hour. The board is made of plywood and fits on the frame work in many other ways than the one shown in the picture. The only tool needed to assemble the gym is a pipe wrench.

Using 38 pictures, the pattern shows over 20 different exercises for developing and trimming down all parts of the body. Most of the exercises done in a large gymnasium can be done equally well on this one, low-cost, health-building unit . . . and they only take a few minutes each day.

To obtain the family gym pattern number 287, send $1 (add 25c extra per pattern for airmail delivery) by currency, check or money order to:

MRS. IVALOU JONES
Here 43 Years

More but strong evidence that throughout the years Harold and Ivalou Jones have offered only top quality food to patrons of their dining room and cafeteria is that last month they celebrated their 43rd year in business in Long Beach.

Jones' Dining Room and Cafeteria may well be the oldest food establishment in the city and undoubtedly can claim, unchallenged, to be the oldest under a single ownership. No establishment could stay in business that long if it did not offer top quality food.

Harold Jr., who started as a dishwasher when he was 12 years old, has taken an active part in the management of the establishment and is protecting the high standards for both food and service set by his folks.

Although a dining room annex was recently gutted by an early morning fire, Jones' still has a 140-seat dining room. The cafeteria area can seat 195 patrons.

Because they serve it fresh while it is still juicy, the Joneses dish up a lot of fish in a day's time.

"Would you believe we serve as much as 180 pounds of sea bass in a single day," asked Harold, Sr.

It really isn't hard to believe noting that "Our Special," fried sea bass, is but $2.60 which includes a choice of soup du jour, fresh vegetable soup, a carrot, apple, raisin salad or V-8 juice plus a choice of potato, a vegetable, dessert, and beverage.

But Jones' is by no means strictly a sea food house.

The highest priced item on the Demi Dinner menu is the broiled top sirloin steak at only $3.85. On the same menu are browned roast beef hash and Loma Linda meat substitute at $1.95.

Jones' is popular among those without their own transportation because it is easily reached by downtown-bound buses. It's on the corner of Fifth Street and Locust Avenue. Easy parking for those in cars is provided.

The family-operated eating house opens at 11 a.m. for lunch in the cafeteria section every day except Saturday when both the dining room and cafeteria are closed. The cafeteria opens at 11 a.m. on Sundays, the dining room at noon. Closing time for the cafeteria is 7 p.m. and 8 p.m. in the dining room.

"He who prepares fine food, served as he would himself be served within a house of arts, soon will bear burden of praise."

That is not an ancient Chinese proverb. It is brand new, coined only hours before this issue of Southland Sunday went to press. But it does describe the predicament of John Kam Yee, senior partner in Li's Restaurant, an ornate Chinese restaurant in Huntington Beach.

The colorful entrance to the 200-seat restaurant gives only a scant hint of the elaborate and colorful interior. The eye is immediately drawn to the ceiling, a checkerboard of relief plaques. Hanging from the ceiling is a 12-sided decoration. On each side is depicted an animal, some real, some legendary, representing the symbol of the 12-year Chinese calendar.

Another portion of the dining room features a 40-foot-long ceiling mural.

Most of the art work in Li's (pronounced Lees) was brought to this country from Hong Kong and Formosa. They were the selections of the creator of the restaurant, John Kam Yee.

For first time visitors the next pleasant surprise comes with the arrival of the multi-dish servings.

Highly popular on the dinner menu is the Empress ($4.95 per person) served by gold-jacketed Chinese waiters to two or more persons. The Empress includes appetizers, fried shrimp, Bar-B-Q ribs, egg rolls, Rumaki, chef's special soup, Mandarin duck, lobster mushroom chow mein, Li's special cashew chicken, fried rice, with tea, almond cakes and those amusing fortune cookies. For three or more persons, Li's adds oyster beef tenderloin.

Recently added to the a la carte menu is sizzling Go Ba ($3.25). It is served on a hot (sizzling) steel plate. The offering is a New York recipe featuring sliced Bar-B-Q pork, bamboo shoots, shrimp served with greens and pea pods, all bathed in a sauce that is a specialty of the house.

Li's is located at the northwest corner of Adams Avenue and Magnolia Avenue. The restaurant offers take out dishes at reduced prices. It is open daily from 11:30 a.m. to midnight weekdays and Sundays and until 2 a.m. Friday and Saturday. While a wide variety of dishes are on the weekday luncheon menu, only dinners are served Sundays. □

New evidence suggests that use of oral contraceptives may inhibit early stages of cancer.

The new findings bear out, in part, the hypothesis of the late Dr. Gregory Pincus. Regarded by many as the father of The Pill, Dr. Pincus thought that women taking oral contraceptives might have a decreased incidence of genital or breast cancer.

The new study was conducted in Puerto Rico. And according to Dr. Abelardo Fuestes de la Huba, director of the maternal health program at the school of medicine at the University of Puerto Rico:

"There is some suggestion that oral progestins (female hormones), especially in the higher dosages, may have some inhibiting influences in the early stages of cancer."

He goes on to say:

"At the very least, there is no evidence that progestional agents cause or accelerate precancerous growth in the cervix (neck of the womb)."

The new study also shows that The Pill appears to enhance response of women to the drug metronidazole in the treatment of Trichomonas vaginalis infections of the vagina.

Details appear in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Fire ants, which now infest large rural areas in the South, pose a problem for allergic persons, a doctor reports in Southern Medical Journal.

Dr. Laurie L. Brown of Medical University of South Carolina, Charleston, S.C., says the fire ant has a "very allergic" venom.

When a person is stung by the fire ant, he may suffer a local reaction varying from mild to severe, or he may undergo a life-threatening reaction.

The venom of the fire ant contains a toxin (poison) that acts similar to that of the brown recluse spider. The toxin, which can cause tissue death, is known as solenamine.

Dr. Brown says it appears advisable for anyone who has ever suffered a general reaction to the venom of a fire ant to undergo the procedure of hyposensitization. This is a series of injections given by a physician to reduce the likelihood of reaction in the future.

In addition, the allergic-prone person should carry a special emergency kit containing, among other medications, epinephrine for injection.

Overprotective mothers may turn out to be a major factor in the development of adult phobias, according to a Canadian doctor.

Dr. Leslie Solyom of the University of Ottawa believes that such mothers, by promoting dependency, prevent their children from unlearning innate and early-learned fears.

Consequently, the fears carry over into adulthood in the form of a phobia, concentrating in such areas as fear of crowded places, fear of leaving home alone or fear of a barber shop.

The report is in Medical World News, a newsmagazine for physicians.

Are splitting fingernails a problem?

A split nail on the left thumb bedeviled Dr. George B. Kuite of North Conway, N.H. He tried gluing it, suturing it, taping it. All these approaches failed.

Then he put a drop of flexible collodion once or twice a day on the point of splitting. The split healed completely, he reports in Consultant, a medical magazine for physicians.

Blood pressure should be checked regularly in all women who use oral contraceptives, contends Dr. J. Edwin Wood III, director of the department of medicine, Pennsylvania Hospital, Philadelphia.

High blood pressure sometimes develops after only one month on such preparations, he says.

Young black women are especially vulnerable to this particular effect of oral contraceptives, he notes.

The Pill may also increase the blood pressure in women whose levels already tend to be elevated, Dr. Wood continues.

His report is in Internal Medicine News, a medical newspaper.

Eyeglasses more than two times as strong as those produced by heat tempering and twice as strong as plastic lenses can now be manufactured.

Such glasses are now being manufactured using a unique chemical tempering process licensed by Research Corp., a scientific foundation in New York City.

The process fills a definite need. New Food and Drug Administration requirements for impact-resistant eye wear took effect last Jan. 1.

The new process, called Chemtempering, gives lenses the capability of withstanding forces up to 60,000 pounds per square inch — far in excess of FDA requirements. □

PRESIDENT NIXON AND JOHN CONNALLY.

Q. Why is President Nixon giving John Connally of Texas such a big buildup? Does he plan to drop Agnew for Connally?—Richard Costello, Galveston, Tex.

A. President Nixon will pragmatically decide on his 1972 running mate. If the polls show Nixon substantially in the lead against his Democratic opponent, he will stay with Spiro Agnew as his Veep. If the polls reflect a tight Presidential race, he may exercise the option of replacing Agnew with Connally, hoping that Connally will generate enough clout to swing Texas and several Southern and border states into the Republican fold. Connally at this point is Nixon's Vice Presidential insurance, if and when he needs him; hence the Connally buildup.

Q. Why has Martha Mitchell left show business? —R.L., Washington, D.C.

A. Mrs. Mitchell's retirement is only temporary. As soon as she regains her voice the public will again become the beneficiary of her pronouncements, and in fact has.

Q. Can you tell me if Diana Ross and her white husband are expecting a second child?—Lee Owen, Detroit, Mich.

A. Yes. Their first child, Rhonda Suzanne, was born in August, 1971. Their second should arrive in December, 1972.

Q. Is it not a fact that the Duke of Windsor died of cancer and that his widow will shortly marry John Utter? Can you tell us something about Mr. Utter? —David Hilton, Boston, Mass.

A. The Duke of Windsor died of cancer. His widow has no intention of marrying John Utter who was private secretary to the Duke for the past 13 years. Utter, 67, ten years younger than the Duchess, is an American diplomat who quit the State Department because of McCarthyism in the early 1950's. Prior to that he worked for diplomat Robert Murphy, served as political adviser to General Eisenhower in World War II, was stationed in our embassies in Cairo and Paris, served for a while as head of the U.S. State Department's North African desk. A former director of the Simmons Company and independently wealthy, Utter went to work for the Windsors in 1959 upon the recommendation of Mrs. Sommerville Tuck, wife of the former U.S. Ambassador to Cairo. Utter is charming, distinguished, diplomatic, will no doubt continue to manage the Duchess of Windsor's affairs.

Q. Who are Sen. George McGovern's biggest financial backers?—Peter Pratt, San Francisco, Calif.

A. A few are Stewart Mott, who inherited a General Motors fortune; Max Palevsky, a Xerox executive from Los Angeles; Joe Sinay of RB Furniture Stores in Los Angeles, and Miles Rubin, a Los Angeles textile company executive.

Q. Why does the Congressional House Committee on Crime hound a good Republican like Frank Sinatra? Why do they treat him as if he is some sort of hood trying to avoid subpoenas? Why do they want him anyway?—M.R., Hoboken, N.J.

A. Sinatra is not a Republican. He is a veteran Democrat turned independent. It has been said that he has a long history of alleged friendships with alleged Mafia figures. It is about these relationships and collateral ownership of racetracks, hotels, and gaming establishments that Rep. Claude Pepper (D., Fla.) wishes to question him. Pepper's committee was prepared to subpoena Sinatra in Baltimore several weeks ago at a tribute dinner to Spiro Agnew who is a Sinatra crony. Mickey Rudin, Sinatra's attorney, as well as Sen. John Tunney (D., Calif.) assured the committee that Sinatra would appear voluntarily. Subsequently Sinatra escaped subpoena by flying to London in a private aircraft. The House committee therefore no longer regards him as a potentially cooperative witness and seeks to question him on July 18th

NANCY SINATRA, MARLO THOMAS, JANE FONDA.

Q. Nancy Sinatra, Marlo Thomas, and Jane Fonda—which of these three daughters of stars has the most talent, and which one could have made it on her own?—Marianne Schloss, Westbury, N.Y.

A. Of the three Jane Fonda is the most talented and could probably have won stardom on her own. The other two are doubtful.

Q. I understand that when President Nixon was in Moscow he invited Brezhnev and the other Soviet leaders to come to Washington. When may we expect Brezhnev, Podgorny, and Kosygin?—Neal Clayton Woods, Cambridge, Mass.

A. Next May, exactly one year after Nixon's 1972 summit meeting in Moscow, Brezhnev and Company will arrive in Washington, D.C., providing, of course, Nixon is reelected, which the Soviets feel is inevitable.

Q. Why does Jackie Kennedy Onassis favor pants over skirts?—Ann Bernard, Bangor, Maine.

A. Because she is slightly bowlegged.

CAROLINE KENNEDY AND HER MOTHER, JACKIE.

VIETNAMESE AMPUTEES PRACTICE WALKING AT REHABILITATION INSTITUTE IN SAIGON.

THE LIMBLESS U.S. Armed Forces have dropped more bombs, grenades, napalm, shells, defoliants, and herbicides on Vietnam than any other country in history.

At the same time the North Vietnamese and the Viet Cong have planted more booby traps and land mines in Vietnam than any other Army.

The combined result is that Vietnam today has become a land of limbless refugees. How many? No one knows. But an estimate of 100,000 limbless men, women and children is probably minimal.

The Vietnamese National Rehabilitation Institute in Saigon has an eight-year backlog of refugees waiting for an artificial arm or leg or both. Since 1966 the institute has fitted 20,000 persons with new limbs. But the demand for prosthetics is far greater than the supply.

One of the most awful, tragic sights of street life in Saigon is the number of children who have stumps instead of arms and legs.

UNWANTED CHILDREN One of the arguments for legalized abortion is that, ultimately, it is the children who suffer from being unwanted.

This is borne out by a Swedish research team in its recent follow-up study of 120 children born between 1939-1942 after their mothers had been refused therapeutic abortions.

Researchers Hans Forssman and Inga Thuwe compared these "unwanted" children with a control group of 120 others born at the same time in the same hospitals. They found that the unwanted children were more likely than the control group to suffer from insecurity and instability in childhood. The incidence of learning problems, psychiatric disorders, delinquency and crime was about twice as high among the unwanted children, and they were about six times more likely to need public assistance between the ages of 16-21 as the control group.

Writing in the "Acta Psychiatric Scandinavaca," Hans Forssman and Inga Thuwe conclude that "the very fact that a woman applies for legal abortion means that the prospective child runs a risk of having to surmount greater social and mental handicaps than its peers....The legislation of therapeutic termination of pregnancy should also consider the social risks to which the expected child will be exposed."

ILL WIND Health-minded apartment hunters may soon spend more time checking the wind currents around a prospective dwelling than the appliances.

Depending on which way the wind blows, an apartment on one side of a city street may be subject to twice as much carbon monoxide as the apartment across the street.

Scientists at the Stanford Research Institute drew this conclusion after a recent study of "street canyons," or the movement of air masses between tall buildings.

The study indicated that when the wind blows parallel to the street direction, it distributes poisonous auto-exhausts equally on both sides of the street. But when the prevailing winds blow at an angle to the street, the buildings deflect it into a circular path. The wind sweeps one side of the street clean and deposits all the street poison on the other.

No matter which side of the street you're on, you'll breathe easier on the top stories, as far away from the street as possible, and in windy rather than calm areas.

CANCER PREDICTION Predicting the life expectancy of a cancer patient is a highly uncertain business.

Dr. C. Murray Parkes of St. Christopher's Hospice in England compared physicians' predictions with the actual life expectancy of 168 terminal cancer patients after hospitalization. In 53 percent of the cases, he found, the patient either lived twice as long or half as long as predicted.

Physicians are more inclined to be optimistic than pessimistic, Dr. Parkes points out in the "British Medical Journal." Of the inaccurate predictions, 83 percent erred on the side of optimism.

This optimism may stem from the physician's desire to reassure patients and their families, Dr. Parkes suggests, but more accurate predictions are vital so that medication and treatment can be administered at the proper time.

JACKIE IN TEHRAN

Our correspondent in Tehran is a beautiful 22-year-old Iranian girl named Maryam Kharazmi. Maryam works as a junior reporter for a local newspaper, the "Kayhan International."

Attractive, perceptive, industrious and personable, Maryam several weeks ago achieved a scoop. She interviewed Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis who nowadays avoids reporters as she avoids the plague.

"Jackie was here with her husband," Maryam explains, "at the invitation of the National Iranian Oil Company, which is interested in working out with Onassis the purchase of some oil tankers.

"Naturally, Jackie had nothing to do with those discussions," Maryam reports, "so I decided I would try to interview her on her free time. I heard that she and Onassis were dining at the Hilton Hotel here one evening, so I raced home, climbed into my best clothes, and got to the hotel. They were having cocktails with Reza Fallah --he's senior executive of National Iranian Oil--and his daughter and some other friends.

"I waited an hour until cocktail time was over, then I edged my way over to Jackie. 'Hello, Mrs. Onassis,' I said, 'I know you hate to talk to reporters. But I've waited such a long time for just a few short minutes with you.'

"Jackie smiled at me, then politely explained that she was there with friends but that she might consider giving me a short interview some time later.

"I started to leave with her and her guests when suddenly a very charming gentleman, short but appealing, took my hand and kissed it. 'Why haven't we been introduced?' he asked.

"I was too astonished to say anything. Luckily Reza Fallah came to my help. He introduced me to Aristotle Onassis.

"'I never know why,' Onassis said, 'but instead of pretty girls being introduced to me they are always introduced to my wife.'

"The following night I met Jacqueline Onassis again, this time at a party given for her and her husband by Fallah. She looked stunning in an orange chiffon evening gown. True to her word, she granted me an interview.

"I asked her what differences there were in her being Mrs. John F. Kennedy and then Mrs. Aristotle Onassis.

"'People often forget,' she answered, 'that I was Jacqueline Lee Bouvier before being Mrs. Kennedy or Mrs. Onassis. Throughout my life, however, I've always tried to remain true to myself. And I'll continue to do this so long as I live. I am today what I was yesterday and with luck what I will be tomorrow.'

"She reminisced about her days in Washington, explaining that she was working as a journalist-photographer conducting interviews when she met Senator Kennedy. 'I don't dislike reporters,' she declared. 'It's just that I get afraid of them when they come at me in a crowd. I don't like crowds because I don't like impersonal masses. They remind me of swarms of locusts. But having been a reporter myself, I'm aware of what problems a journalist encounters. I used to make appointments in advance to interview some very important person. Then he'd cancel at the last minute or wouldn't show up and I'd have to take shots of somebody else and talk to chance acquaintances.'"

Maryam reports that Jackie was exceedingly "clever, shrewd, and professionally experienced in the ways she artfully dodged particular questions."

"When I asked her if she felt better as private Mrs. Onassis than public Mrs. Kennedy, she smiled and replied, 'That's a leading question. I'm a woman above everything else. I love children and I think that seeing one's children grow up is the most delightful thing any woman can think about.

"'I have been through a lot and suffered a great deal. But I've had lots of happy moments as well. I've come to the conclusion that we must not expect too much from life. We must give to life at least as much as we get from it. At its best life is not too secure and one must seize every moment as it comes.

"'Every moment one lives is different from the other,' she went on, 'the good, the bad, the hardships, the joys, the tragedies, loves and happiness are all interwoven into one indescribable whole that is called life. You cannot separate the good from the bad. And perhaps, there is no need to do so.'"

Maryam asked Mrs. Onassis if stories about her quick temper were accurate.

Said Jackie: "The truth of the matter is that I am a very shy person. People take my diffidence for arrogance and my withdrawal from publicity as a sign of my supposedly looking down on the rest of mankind."

Our correspondent in Tehran summed up Mrs. Jacqueline Onassis as "charming, plebian, forthright, polite, with practically no makeup, but with large, bright, glowing eyes the basic ingredient of her facial beauty."

CONSUMER ADVICE Among common drugs, aspirin is the best and cheapest pain killer. It is far superior to other, more expensive drugs.

So declares a Mayo Clinic investigative team whose report is published in the "New England Journal of Medicine."

PRICE OF FREEDOM Would you submit to castration rather than serve a life sentence for sex crimes? Does a court of law have the right to offer such a choice to a sex offender?

Judge Robert McLean of Denver, Colo., recently extended that choice to a 42-year-old man charged with 14 counts of child molesting, but otherwise described as a model citizen. The offender agreed to the operation.

Today, reports Dr. Horace Campbell of Denver, the patient is doing fine, feeling "less aggressive and much happier." He regrets his impotence but successfully holds down a respected position, prefers impotency to life imprisonment.

It was an article authored by Dr. Campbell, describing similar therapy for European sex criminals, which first interested Judge McLean in the option of castration.

Dr. Campbell believes that in some cases such an approach is justified, and in this case the judge agreed with him. Other members of the Colorado medical community, particularly psychiatrists, feel such a punishment is not ethically sound. They favor psychiatric treatment for sex criminals, although in this case the defendant had already undergone psychiatric psychoanalysis but to no avail.

In Scandinavia, castration for sex offenders has been an accepted practice for years.

COMMUNIST CAPITAL PUNISHMENT In the heyday of Stalinism, a man could be put to death for inadvertently breaking a machine. It was called "wrecking," an economic crime which warranted capital punishment.

Stalin has been dead for nearly two decades, but many of his laws still remain on the books in the Soviet Union and its East European satellites.

Just last fall the Hungarian Minister of Justice, Mihaly Korom, announced the abolition of the death penalty for economic crimes in his country.

"While we believe that the death penalty should remain as the most severe punishment," Korom explained, "we think that it should be abolished for economic crimes."

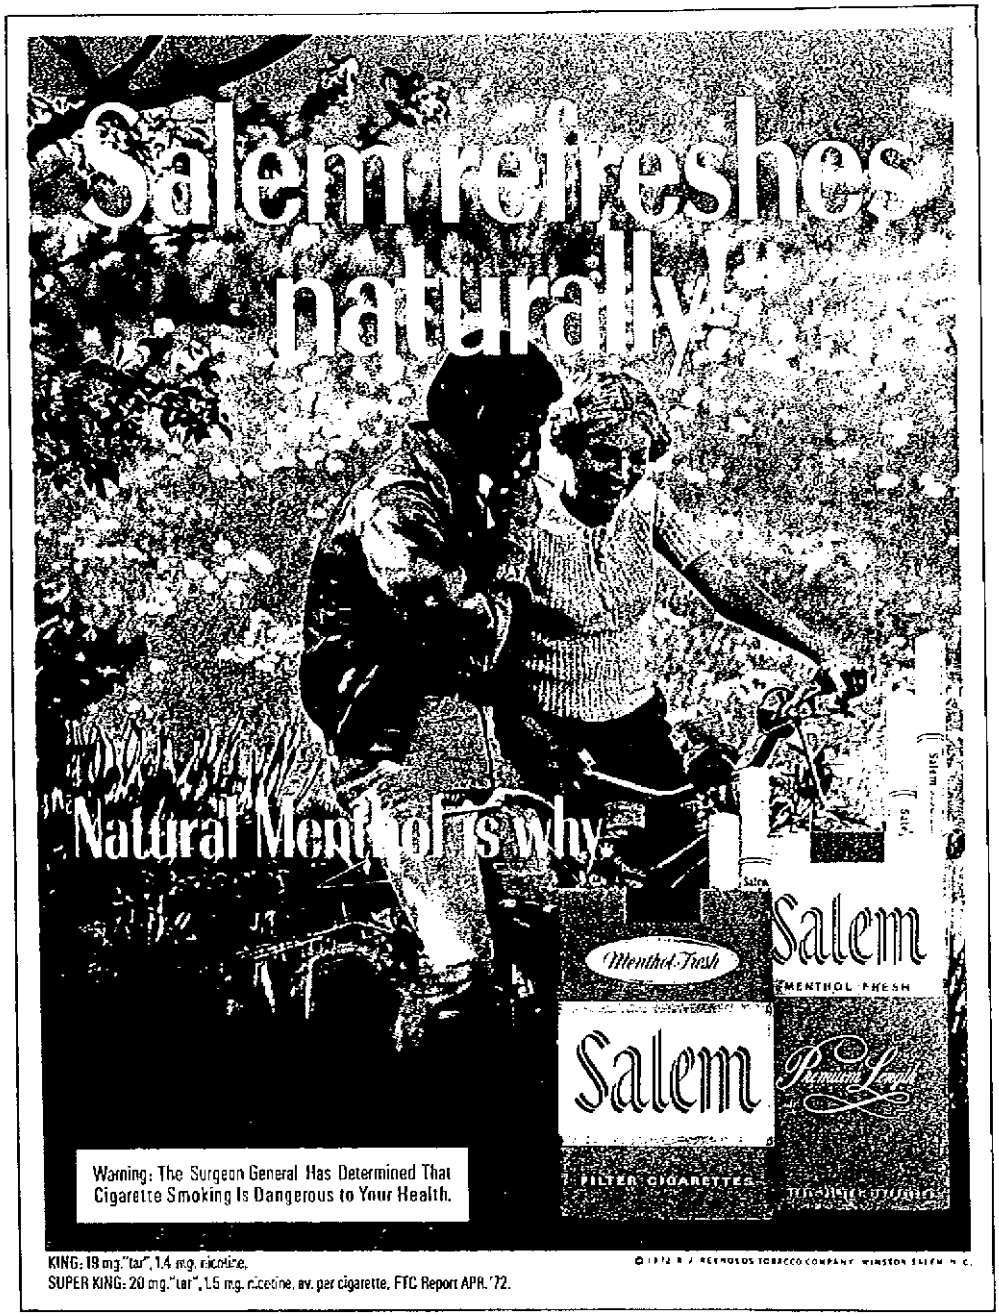

RESTRICTING CAR OWNERSHIP Most countries require drivers to obtain a license to conduct a vehicle.

In Japan, you may soon have to get a license authorizing you to buy a car in the first place.

Tokyo's Metropolitan Safety Council recently met to consider measures of combating pollution and traffic congestion, both of which pose serious problems in the city.

In its recommendations, the council asked for traffic and ownership restrictions on "those vehicles for which the social need is not very great."

Certain areas of Tokyo, for example, would be banned to all but essential vehicles. Smog devices would be required on all cars. Trucks and other large vehicles might be banned altogether during the daytime. And, ultimately, some means would have to be found to curtail private ownership of "socially superfluous" vehicles.

I didn't want to lose him, so I lost 59 pounds.

By Shirley Gallagher—as told to Ruth L. McCarthy

I really had something to be sober about at 160 pounds. I had tremendous arms and a great big sit down.

Ever go to a company picnic and find that you've got competition? Well, I did. I looked at those petite girls my husband works with and I suddenly saw myself as I was: the fat wife. That's when I turned into 160 pounds of fear and jealousy.

It wasn't as if I hadn't known what all my eating was doing to me over the years. But I had always loved to cook and bake and Larry could put it away without gaining. Some husbands are like that. Me? I just blossomed out — on submarine sandwiches, pizzas, pies, cakes, and homemade cookies. Why, that fellow on television who said, "I ate the whole thing!" had nothing on me.

Sometimes Larry and I would even get up in the middle of the night and I'd make pancakes or we'd hop into the car and go out for ice cream. I wasn't pregnant, either.

Next day, though, I'd hate myself. I wouldn't even stand in front of a mirror. Just like I wouldn't go to church without a sweater or coat on to hide my heavy arms.

Larry never said anything about my gaining. He didn't want to hurt me. But I got the message another way. When he saw me in the cow-size clothes I had to buy, he just stopped giving me compliments. That crushed me. But it really took those slender, attractive women at the picnic to convince me a wife can't sit back and get fat. Not if she wants to hold her own.

I had tried to reduce, of course, a number of times with liquid meals, grapefruit diets, reducing pills, skimmed milk. But they didn't work for me, especially the liquids. I needed something to chew on.

Thank goodness I'd read those stories of people who had taken those reducing-plan candies, Ayds®. I finally decided to try them, so I went to the drugstore and bought the plain chocolate fudge kind. I carefully read the direction folder in the box and learned that Ayds contain vitamins and minerals, but no drugs. That made me feel even better about starting the Ayds plan.

At breakfast, I took a couple of Ayds with tea—you can have any hot drink—about 15 minutes before eating. Cereal or an egg and toast for me. At lunch, I'd take my Ayds and tea again and have soup, sometimes a sandwich or a lettuce and tomato salad. Then at dinner, Ayds and tea again and a small portion of whatever the rest of the family was having. Meat loaf, corn, even some mashed potatoes.

I'll tell you, those Ayds really helped curb my appetite. They taste so good, too, that I used to eat a couple in the afternoon and in the evening, watching television. They contain only 26 calories apiece, which was much better than eating a slice of my own homemade "Wacky" cake. This is covered in chocolate and layered with cherry pie filling. Yet as delicious as it is, I could give it up for Ayds.

The plan worked beautifully for me. I began to lose pound after pound. Each time I went down, I'd run out of the bathroom and say: "Come look. I've lost again!" Well, by the time I'd come down to 101 pounds, everybody in my hometown, York, Pennsylvania, was looking. That's when the truth really comes out. Like this friend of mine. I used to complain to her about being fat. But she'd say: "Oh, you're not heavy." Comforting words. But now that I'm slim, she introduces me this way: "Would you believe that Shirley was once pudgy?"

Larry, of course, is just as proud as he can be. Picks me up these days like I'm one of the kids. I'd never let him attempt it when I was fat. But that's all changed now, just like the company picnic was entirely different this year. Thanks to the Ayds plan, I heard someone say: "Wow! Here comes Larry and his 'new' wife."

Here, in my husband's arms, you can see there's a lot of fun in losing 59 pounds.

Cybill Shepherd

From Memphis to Modeling to Movies

by Lloyd Shearer

The road to Hollywood: It began for Cybill when at 18 she won a $25,000-a-year modeling contest, was spotted on magazine cover by young film director.

HOLLYWOOD.

There are three traditional ways for a girl to become a film actress, (1) sleep with an influential producer, (2) prove her photogenic capability by first becoming a successful model, (3) display genuine acting talent.

The last is the least important.

Nowadays the easiest method is the second. Hollywood is no longer interested in so-called "name" actresses -- none of them is worth more than 37 cents at the box office. The star system is dead, for no studio produces enough films to develop a new star or boasts enough of a publicity department to promote one.

The result is that since most films are written around male characters, almost any actress will do for "the woman interest." If the actress in question will pose in the nude that's an added fillip.

An ambitious model with personality can make it as a film actress, because in films, photographic presence is more important than talent.

Take Cybill Shepherd, a fashion model like Ali MacGraw and Jennifer O'Neill. Last year Cybill made her film debut in the widely-acclaimed The Last Picture Show.

Great way to start

Tall, 5 feet 8½, well-curved, 34-23-34, a willowy stalk of loveliness, Cybill is a 22-year-old top fashion model from Memphis, Tenn., who never had any drama training.

In 1968, freshly out of East High School, Cybill—named for her grandfather, Cy, and her father, Bill—won the fashion model of the year competition sponsored by CBS.

"The first prize," she recalls, "was a minimum wage of $25,000 a year for the first year of modeling. If I didn't make the $25,000, then the modeling agency would make up the difference. So I won that contest and came up to New York and started modeling right away. I never had a test or anything. It was a great way to start. Soon my picture was on the cover of different magazines, I was doing dozens of TV commercials, and earning $500 a day.

Commercials, covers

"In 1970 I earned more than $80,000 as a model. I plugged Coca-Cola, Breck shampoo, Ultra-Brite toothpaste, practically everything you can think of. I've been on the cover of Life, Vogue, Harper's Bazaar. I think I've had 17 Glamour magazine covers. No, sir. I'm not giving up my modeling. Picture work, as you know, is not too reliable."

Cybill broke into films accidentally. Peter Bogdanovich, a young director was strolling through a California supermarket when he spotted Cybill on the cover of Glamour. He decided to cast her in The Last Picture Show as Jacy, a spoiled, snitty, small town high school heartbreaker. Cybill worked on the film 10 weeks for which she was paid $5000, and in the process fell in love with Bogdanovich whose girlfriend she is at this writing.

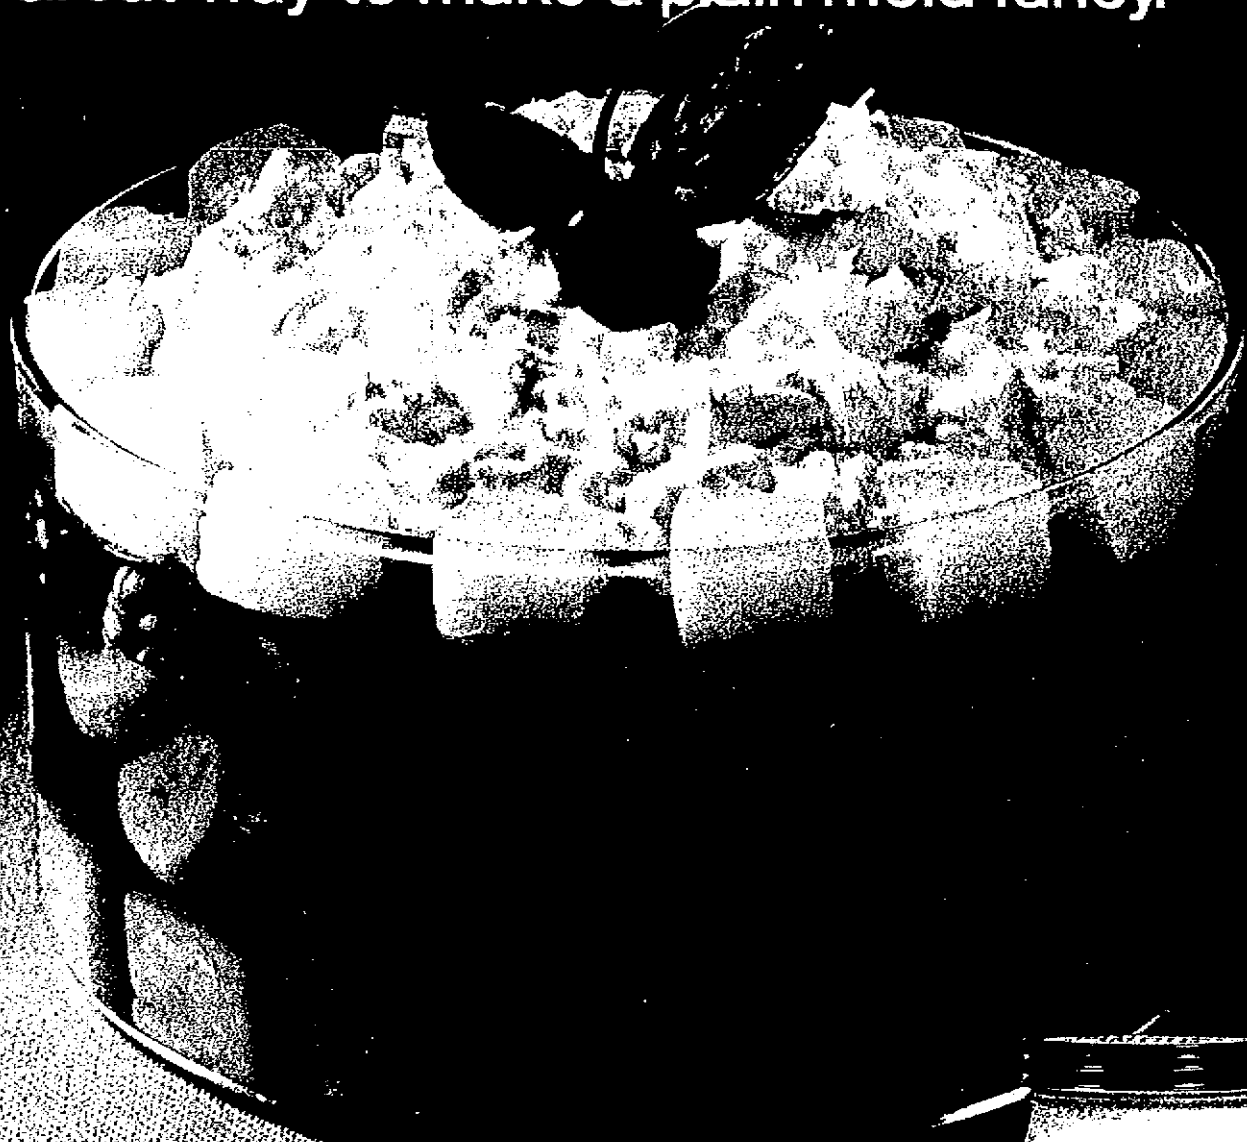

Before Bogdanovich, there was John Bruno, 29, who inherited the Pen and Pencil restaurant in New York City from his father. Cybill was 18 and fresh from Memphis when Bruno met her in 1968. He helped her adjust to the traumas of New York living.

continued

During the years after Memphis when she was top model in New York, one of Cybill's escorts was restaurant-owner John Bruno. They broke up over nude scene in film.

Miracle Whip and Dole Pineapple. Great way to make a plain mold fancy.

Just team up these two favorites—Miracle Whip Salad Dressing from Kraft and Dole Pineapple Chunks! The tart juicy sweetness of Dole Pineapple Chunks and the lively fresh flavor of Miracle Whip make an ordinary mold very fancy, indeed!

AMBROSIA SALAD MOLD

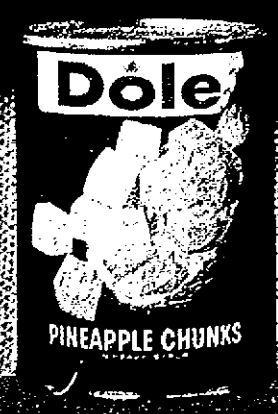

1 (1-lb. 4-oz.) can Dole pineapple chunks
2 pkgs. orange flavored gelatin
2 cups boiling water
1 large banana, sliced
¼ cup chopped nuts
Coconut Dressing

Drain pineapple, reserving syrup. Place half the pineapple chunks around bottom of 10-inch (1½ qt.) glass bowl. Dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Add reserved syrup and enough cold water to make 2 cups; chill until thickened. Fold in banana and nuts. Pour over pineapple. Chill until firm. Arrange remaining pineapple around edge of bowl. Fill center with Coconut Dressing; garnish.

COCONUT DRESSING

1 cup heavy cream, whipped
1 cup coconut

Don't Let Summer Destroy Your Skin

Look at what summer is doing to your skin! The complexion you've pampered is being ravaged by summer weather and summer fun. You stay out too long in the blazing sun. You swim. You go from sun-baked streets to air-conditioned stores to wind-whipped car rides. You squint to cut down sun glare. You bathe and shower frequently to keep fresh and cool. And all these activities can add up to complexion dryness that accentuates lines and wrinkles.

Your skin becomes parched. Flaky. Decidedly older-looking. No wonder you're troubled about the way you look. But there is no reason to worry. Many youthful-looking women who face the ravages of summer weather have discovered the wonderful secret of Oil of Olay as a beautiful answer to the season's complexion damage. They know that summer skin like yours literally thirsts for Oil of Olay and its soothing ministrations. Oil of Olay quickly penetrates the surface layer of your skin, where the beauty blend can work most effectively. To help soften and smooth sun-and-wind-parched skin. To provide generous amounts of tropical moisturizing oils and natural moisture, needed to replenish the vital fluids that have been stolen by summer. To ease away wrinkle-accenting dryness that makes you look so much older. And to establish a protective barrier to keep your skin's own natural moisture from surrendering to the harsh heat and sudden temperature changes.

Ordinarily, youthful-looking women in countries around the world who care for their skin use Oil of Olay morning and night in a skin-cherishing ritual. But when summer robs extra amounts of youth-giving moisture and oil from your skin, your complexion responds favorably to pampering much more frequently than twice a day.

Lavish on the beauty fluid, available from druggists everywhere in the United States as Oil of Olay moisturizing lotion, as often as your skin signals the need. Whenever summer weather makes your complexion feel dry or tight or rough to the touch, nature is asking for and needs all the help it can get from soothing Oil of Olay.

No matter how often you use the beautifying blend during the day, however, don't neglect applying it generously to your face and throat before bedtime, so that it can do its good work during the quiet hours of sleep. And then, of course, first thing in the morning, to face the day beautifully. Oil of Olay penetrates so quickly that it leaves no greasy film, making it an ideal makeup base. Your cosmetics never streak or change color. And, if you let your face go bare of makeup in the summer, Oil of Olay imparts a lovely dewy glow as it protects and cherishes your complexion, day and night.

Summer Beauty Hints

Whenever you come in from the summer sun and heat, apply generous amounts of Oil of Olay on any areas that have been exposed to the skin-drying elements. The beauty blend quickly begins to work with nature to replenish the moisture stolen by summer weather. Your skin will soon show its gratitude for such soothing attention.

* * *

After bathing or swimming, lavish precious Oil of Olay® wherever your skin feels dry, whenever it feels dry. Your whole self will respond to the relaxing and beautifying pampering.

"Some people think because I did a nude scene I'm some horrible thing."

"She was very outdoorsy," Bruno remembers, "fresh, blonde, the all-American type, but basically unsophisticated. She was young and naive and unable to cope with taxi drivers, construction workers shouting obscene things at her, art directors and photographers handling her like merchandise.

"We had some beautiful times together," he dreamily recalls. "Sailing in the Virgin Islands, a weekend in Louisville for the Kentucky Derby, vacationing in Marrakesh, Saint-Tropez, Cannes, skiing in Aspen."

John Bruno was about to marry Cybill Shepherd when The Last Picture Show came into their lives. "What broke us up," he explains, "was the nude scene she did in the film. I felt she had a responsibility to me not to do the nude scene. I felt it was unnecessary. And while I don't want to sound chauvinistic about this, I could perceive that there were certain things in her life that she didn't want to sacrifice. And in a marriage relationship, I feel that sacrifice is essential. I don't think a movie career for her would have disrupted our relationship, but the problem really was that she wanted to make all her own decisions.

Almost married

"We came very close to marriage. She asked for more time, and by the time more time came around, she was into The Last Picture Show, the nude scene, Peter Bogdanovich, and there it went."

Whether Bogdanovich who is married will divorce his wife to marry Cybill Shepherd doesn't seem to faze her.

"I'm not against marriage," Cybill explains, "but I'm not anxious for it either. The trouble with John [Bruno] who comes from a marvelous Italian family is that he thought his work was more important than mine. I don't know if at 22 I'm ready for marriage. I think you ought to realize what kind of paper

In a scene from her film, "The Last Picture Show," Cybill agrees to go to a party with actor Randy Quaid. She is cast in the role of a Texas small town heartbreaker.

On a promotional tour to Australia: Film director Peter Bogdanovich and Cybill Shepherd traveled together, but the 22-year-old actress says she's not anxious to marry.

you're signing when you sign that paper that says forever. I think the main reason for marriage is that two people decide they want to have children. They want to build some kind of stability in their lives. Other than that, I don't see any point to marriage."

Ambitious, competitive, hungry for power "so that I could demand good parts," child of divorced parents, Cybill Shepherd is not particularly anxious for stability.

Goes to school

"I want to roam," she says, "to soar, geographically, educationally, musically. I'm bright, but I'm not particularly well-educated, which is why, whenever I'm in any city for any length of time, I enroll in college classes. I went to Hunter College in New York City and the College of New Rochelle, and I've enrolled in U.S.C. out here. I know what I don't know, and I know what I do.

"I've invested my money in land and stocks and I guess I've got some common sense. Of course, there are a lot of people down home who view me with mixed feelings, mixed reactions. Some people think that because I did a nude scene in The Last Picture Show, I'm some kind of horrible thing. But a lot of people are really proud of me. As a matter of fact, Memphis on the whole has been kind to me. They've kept up with what I'm doing. I'm sort of the home town girl who's made good."

At 22, Cybill Shepherd regards the world as good, golden, and glorious and all men susceptible to her beauty.

"Ten years from now," she says, "I don't know. They say most models are washed up at 28 or 30. But I'm not worried. By then, maybe I'll have made my mark in pictures. I've done a second picture, Heartbreak Kid. Maybe there'll be a third or a fourth, or even a fifth."

Looking as she does, Cybill Shepherd is convinced that at the very least there will always be a man in her life, marriage or not.

Helps Shrink Swelling Of Hemorrhoidal Tissues Caused By Inflammation And Infection

Also Gives Prompt, Temporary Relief in Many Cases from Pain and Burning Itch in Such Tissues.

There's an exclusive formulation which actually helps shrink the painful swelling of hemorrhoidal tissues caused by infection. In many cases the first applications give prompt, temporary relief from itching and pain in hemorrhoidal tissues.

The sufferer first notices relief from such painful discomfort. Then this medication helps to gently reduce swelling of hemorrhoidal tissues. Tests conducted by doctors on hundreds of patients in New York City, Washington, D.C., and at a Midwest Medical Center showed this to be true in many cases.

The medication used by doctors in these tests was Preparation H®—the same exclusive formula you can buy at any drug counter without a prescription. Preparation H also lubricates the affected area to protect the inflamed, irritated surface and so helps make regularity more comfortable.

There is no other formula like Preparation H. In ointment or suppository form.

Calvin Berger pours beer in the dish he and his wife invented.

Sharing Their Kitchen

by Beth Merriman

PARADE FOOD EDITOR

ALBANY, N.Y.

In the household of Elizabeth and Calvin Berger all housework and meal preparation are shared. "We both do the cooking," says Elizabeth Berger. "And Cal splits the grubby details with me as well as the fun part."

The Bergers, parents of two small children, 5-year-old John and 2-year-old Jennifer, both lead busy lives. Cal is a government lawyer. And Lib, a former fourth-grade teacher, frequently speaks to parents' groups about the women's movement and the secondary roles of girls in children's books. "I want my daughter to have the same opportunities as my son," she says. "If there were better child-care facilities I'd be out working full time now."

One opportunity that father and mother, son and daughter share equally is the chance to eat well. The senior Bergers, who grow their own herbs, cook gourmet-style for just the family. This chicken in beer dish is their joint invention, which they serve with rice, vegetable, and a salad. The grown-ups get glasses of cold beer, too.

Chicken in Beer

- 1 frying chicken (3 to 3½ lbs), disjointed
- 4 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 16 small white onions, peeled*
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- Few grains pepper
- ¼ teaspoon thyme
- 1½ teaspoons paprika
- ¾ cup beer
- ¼ cup tomato sauce
- 1 bay leaf
- ¼ cup heavy cream

Brown chicken pieces in butter; add onions; brown slightly. Add remaining ingredients except cream; bring to boil. Cover; simmer 30 minutes. Chill until fat rises to surface; skim off. Stir in cream; reheat. Makes 4 servings.

*Or use drained small white canned onions

Keeping Up... With Youth

by Pamela Swift

Alcohol Not Marijuana

For years, parents, teachers, and the police have warned that marijuana smoking is a prelude to heroin addiction.

Not true in many cases.

Recent findings presented at the International Conference on Alcohol and Addiction in Dublin indicate that alcohol—not marijuana—is more often the stimulant first used by people who later become heroin addicts.

The data is based on a study of the cross-use of alcohol and drugs used by addicts. It was conducted by Drs. Harriet L. Barr, Donald J. Ottenberg, and Alvin Rosen of the Eagleville Hospital and Rehabilitation Center in Eagleville, Pa.

The study group consisted of 129 male patients diagnosed as alcoholics and 61 considered to be drug addicts.

The study found that in a high percentage of cases of drug addiction the first drug used was alcohol. The addict would then graduate from alcohol to opiates, subsequently giving up liquor.

"On the average," says the report, "the alcohol abuse begins about a year-and-a-half before the use of any illegal drug . . . in about half of our addicts had intervention occurred at an earlier age, the diagnosis probably would have been alcoholism or alcohol abuse instead of drug addiction."

Alcohol, of course, is the single most dangerous and abused drug in the United States. There are an estimated 9 million alcoholics or alcohol abusers in this country, draining the economy of $15 billion annually.

According to Elliot Richardson, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, "Alcoholism is one of the tragic, destructive and costly illnesses in the nation today. Directly or indirectly, alcohol-related problems affect the lives of 36 million of our men, women, and children."

Parents and police who know relatively little about marijuana can decry its use by the young, but marijuana is by far a less dangerous drug than alcohol, which in so many cases they passively accept or encourage.

Alcoholism can reduce the lifespan of an imbiber by 10 to 12 years. But hardly ever does a parent tell his offspring that fact.

Educational Discrimination

A college degree ranks in our society as a ticket of admission to the good life.

But is it in fact? And should it be?

Most businesses and industries base employment and promotion to a large extent on educational attainment. But will a college education make you a more effective salesman, secretary, manager, executive? Are we not discriminating against equally qualified people who lack degrees? Conversely, what about the many skilled and semi-skilled professions which require little or no educational preparation?

Andrew C. Wallace, assistant professor of marketing at the University of South Florida, believes that a great many Americans are either over-educated or under-educated for the jobs they hold.

"Most large firms," Wallace wrote in a recent article entitled 'To Hell on a Mortarboard,' "require a college degree, even though there are very few jobs in industry that really need the knowledge acquired."

Wallace cites a 1971 Department of Labor study of education and employment which concluded that, "In eight of ten occupations, there was no relationship between the workers' educational attainment and their degree of job success."

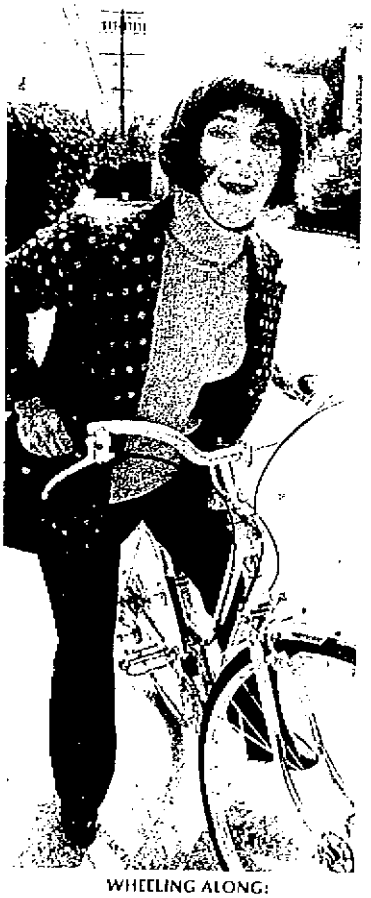

Only the top 10 percent of college graduates get top-level jobs in industry, he reports. The other 90 percent suffer psychologically in jobs which they feel are beneath them and for which academia provides little preparation anyway. As for non-B.A.'s, they are "2nd class citizens" in many job markets.

Many skilled and semi-skilled laborers, on the other hand, earn more than college graduates but with even less in the way of real preparation for their professions. "It is my opinion," Wallace writes, "that the bulk of potentially good tradesmen are college students. This goes a long way towards explaining the poor quality of our goods and services.

"Only one of every 14 dollars that is spent for academic higher education is spent on vocational education," he continues. "Remember that four times as many people will be required in jobs that will not benefit directly from a degree, but we are spending 14 times as much money on degrees as we are on vocational education."

To remedy the imbalance between education and employment, Wallace suggests that the high school curriculum might be extended by one year to include the first year of college and/or vocational training. Furthermore, industry should eliminate its degree requirements where they are irrelevant to the job.

If we can pass a law outlawing discrimination by race and sex," he concludes, "then we certainly should pass a law outlawing educational discrimination."

Bicyclists Beware

Injuries and deaths among bicycle riders zoomed 34 percent in California last year. The California Highway Patrol declares that bicycle riders in the 15 to 34 age group were to blame in most of the cases. Apparently these young people either ignore or do not know the rules of the road which apply equally to motorists and bicyclists.

The three most common violations which led to accidents in 1971 were riding on the wrong side of the road, turning improperly, and violating an automobile driver's right of way. Riding at night without proper lights was another contributing factor.

California Highway Patrol Commissioner Harold W. Sullivan suggests that for safety's sake bicyclists should think like motorists. They should be well versed in their state vehicle codes and follow them carefully.

In general, bicyclists, like motorists, should always signal before turning, always turn from the proper lane, obey all traffic signals and lights. They should ride as close to the right-hand edge of the road as practical.

Other safety tips for bicyclists:

- Don't carry a second passenger on the handlebars.
- Don't carry anything that would prevent at least one hand from being on the handlebars at all times.
- Have good strong night lights —a headlamp visible for 300 feet in front and a reflector visible for 300 feet to the rear.
- Keep brakes in good condition —capable of causing at least one wheel to skid on dry, level pavement.

Reynolds Wrap® is strong all over. Count on it.

Have a delicious picnic. And count on the special strength of Heavy Duty Reynolds Wrap to work for you. Count on it for its special tear-resistance. Count on it to cook in, with no messy pots and pans to clean. Count on it to make picnics easier and more fun.

2 Baked Trout.
Scale and clean fish, removing head. A one lb. fish can be cooked whole, and serve one person. Cut larger fish into individual portions. Place a slice of bacon on a square of extra-strong Heavy Duty Reynolds Wrap. Place fish on bacon. Add sliced onion, a slice of lemon, salt, pepper, paprika and a pat of butter. Bring foil up over fish. Seal tight over top with double fold. Seal ends. Place packets on grill 4" over hot grey coals. Cook about 20 minutes, turning once.

3 Grilled Corn-on-the-Cob.
Strip off outer layers of husks, remove silk. Dip corn in cold water. Wrap tightly with double fold in Heavy Duty Reynolds Wrap. Cook on grill about 20 minutes, turning occasionally.

4 Honey-Glazed Ham Steak.
Mix ¼ cup prepared mustard with 1 tablespoon honey. Spread mixture on both sides of a 2 lb. ham steak, about 1" thick. Place ham on large sheet of Heavy Duty Reynolds Wrap. (The foil that cooks beautifully over the high heat.) Top with 3 slices canned pineapple and mandarin oranges. Sprinkle with 1 tablespoon slivered orange rind. Seal foil tightly. Cook on grill 4" over hot grey coals about 40 minutes, turning every 10 minutes. Serves 4.

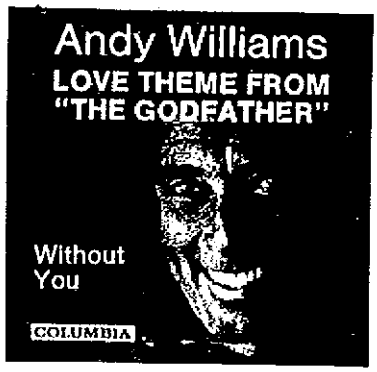

5 The Cooler Cooler.
Cover the ice in your picnic cooler with a sheet of Heavy Duty Reynolds Wrap. Ice will last much longer.

6 Salad Crisper.
Cover bowls of salad with Reynolds Wrap. The foil reflects the heat so salads stay fresher, crisp and cool.

My Favorite Jokes

by Jackie Clark

EDITOR'S NOTE: Strange things happened to Jackie Clark when he left home. First he had to contend with the Army at a special time in its history. "When I was in the Army things were slow—I could tell just how slow when I received my draft papers. On the bottom were the letters R.S.V.P., and then 'P.S. reception will follow.'"

When he decided to go into show business he hired a very innovative agent who's been with him ever since. "My agent really is a nut," says Jackie, "because after the success of Hair, the Beatles album cover, and the new cinema, he said I should become the first nude comic. 'You're kidding, I'm too bashful,' I told him. 'Besides, I've been told too much exposure isn't good!' Well, I made sure to give my agent 10 percent of my unemployment checks. He created the situation so I figured he was entitled to it."

Jackie Clark has worked in top night spots—The Riviera, Las Vegas; Harrah's in Reno; the Carson and Frost shows on television, and will make occasional appearances on the ABC Corner Bar series.

Here are more of his jokes,some of which continue his weird autobiography:

I want to tell you about a strange experience I had when I was only 10 years old. My parents were kidnapped. The day after I received a phone call from the kidnappers telling me what to do. We didn't have a phone so they called me at the corner candy store—and they were a cheap bunch—they reversed the charges. They said they wanted $10,000 for my mother and $10,000 for my father, but if I acted at once I could have them both for $19,999.

I have an uncle who goes into crazy businesses and he always goes bankrupt. The last business he went into he sold damaged bowling balls—there were no holes in them!

When I was a kid we didn't have a radio or TV set in the house. My father believed a piece of furniture should be quiet and mind its own business.

Picasso was mugged in Central Park. Police asked him to identify the mugger. Well, he couldn't so they asked him if he would make a sketch. He did—they arrested a nun, the Eiffel Tower, and a television set.

With automation coming up real fast, they have machines today that will do almost anything. At the Los Angeles airport I saw a machine which read, "Manicure, 25 cents." So I put in a quarter, stuck my hands in and when I pulled them out I had a beautiful manicure. Next to it there was another machine which read, "Haircut, 50 cents," so I put in two quarters, stuck my head in, and when I pulled it out I had a beautiful haircut. Next to it there was another machine which read, "This machine will do what your wife will do." So I puckered up my lips stuck them in the machine and when I pulled them out the machine had sewn a button on them.

In a New York cemetery there is a stone erected by a man still living who wants to be sure that the pertinent details will be on the stone when he's dead. It has his name, birth date, a blank for the date of death and—"Bowled 300 in 1968."

A man walked into a travel agency to buy a steamship ticket. "To where?" the travel agent asked. "Oh, yes, to where—to where," the man pondered. "Have you got a globe of the world?" An Arab and an Israeli are very friendly. It's before the Six Day War. They meet on the street and the Israeli says, "Hasmir, how are you?" "Fine," he says. "Are you married now, Hasmir?" "Yes," Hasmir answers. "Well, where's the wife?" the Israeli asks. "Not one wife," says Hasmir, "six. They're walking behind me." The Israeli exclaims, "Hasmir, this is the 20th century. You shouldn't have wives walking behind you." "No," Hasmir insists, "my wives walk behind me!" They meet again after the war and the Israeli says, "Hasmir, how are you and your wives?" Hasmir says, "There they are walking in front of me." "Great, Hasmir! Welcome to the 20th century." "What 20th century?" says Hasmir, "land mines!"

"Can you keep a top-secret?"

Escape to a world where there's still room for man-size adventure.

Open any book described on this page, and return to a world of red-blooded action. A world of rawhide and gunsmoke. A world where Comanches don war paint to stop the never-ending trains of wagons crossing the plains. Where the lust for gold and silver are so strong that crude, lawless mining towns spring up overnight. And where brave men and women have room to carve out their own destinies.

You can ride into this world right now with The Western Writers of America — a book club whose members are guaranteed a bonanza of Western reading. Every book you choose is endorsed by the WWA, the association of the country's leading Western authors. Which means you can count on every book to deliver exciting action, vivid characters, and authentic Western detail.

Choose your exciting introductory selection of great Western reading right now, and mail the coupon today. About every 4 weeks thereafter you'll receive Spurs, the monthly WWA bulletin which describes the two new books selected for our members. Most selections are priced at just $1.69 plus shipping and handling. (Occasional extra-value selections are slightly more.) You accept only the books you want — as few as four a year. And you get quality, hardcover editions that you'll be proud to add to your permanent library of Western Americana.

BOY! WAS IT HOT ON THE GOLF COURSE!

HEY! WHAT HAPPENED TO THE AIR CONDITIONING?

NOTHING, PETER! I JUST DIDN'T TURN IT ON!

BUT IT MUST BE THE HOTTEST DAY IN THE YEAR!

THAT'S ONE MAN'S OPINION! I'M QUITE COMFORTABLE!

WHAT'S THE POINT OF HAVING AIR CONDITIONING IF YOU'RE NOT GOING TO USE IT?

WHAT'S THE POINT OF FREEZING SIMPLY BECAUSE WE HAVE AIR CONDITIONING?

BUT...

YOU'RE ALWAYS WARM AND I'M ALWAYS COOL! MAYBE SOMETHING'S WRONG, DADDIO!

DID YOU EVER THINK YOU COULD BE SUFFERING FROM A CRACKED THERMOSTAT?

OKAY! I'LL JUST HAVE TO COOL IT!
